

Mayor Gives Up On New Hall Bid

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan said he has abandoned all his plans for a new city hall with a "clear conscience" after the Common Council refused last night to approve his proposal for the purchase of land and the hiring of an architect for a new city hall downtown.

Comments on 6-6 Vote

Commenting on the Council's action which saw the aldermen split 6-6 (nine votes were needed for passage), the mayor said, "I have spent many hours and sleepless nights planning a better Kingston for our taxpayers, employees and youth of the community. During the rest of my term I will fulfill my responsibilities (as mayor). There will be no capital expenditures and any conversation about a new city hall will come from the next mayor of our city."

"My conscience is clear and good wishes to the aldermen," Garraghan concluded. Garraghan also ruled out any alternate plans such as his proposal to buy Central Hudson property on Broadway and East Chester Street for city hall facilities.

Last night's Council action over the city hall featured two rare maneuvers, the relieving of a committee of its duties and the breaking of a tie vote by the alderman-at-large.

Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward) brought the issue to a head by moving that the Finance, Ways and Means Committee, chaired by Peter Mancuso (D-Eighth Ward) be relieved of its duties. The vote was 11-1 Frank Jablonski (R-Fourth Ward) was absent and Mancuso joined in the vote against his own committee, stating that he was "elated" that the issue came to a council vote.

Mancuso explained that he could not sign the committee report that called for the purchase of the land for $25,000 and the hiring of architect Albert E. Milliken but that he wanted the rest of the Council to have a chance to vote on it.

The vote tied at 6-6 with Mancuso, John Naccarato (R-Third Ward), James Madden (D-Ninth Ward), Peter Fisher (R-10th Ward), Joseph Conlin (D-11th Ward) and John Machione (R-12th Ward) voting against it. Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo broke the tie on the committee report by voting for it.

olution was the same but lengthy speeches, both for and against, were given, especially from Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) in whose ward the new hall would have been built.

Epstein said, "Urban Renewal saw fit to create Broadway East. The city has a responsibility to revitalize it. I beg you to vote for this city hall. If you don't vote for it your names will go down in history for wiping out a section of our city."

Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward) said, "Members of this Council have autocratically annihilated a section of our city." He termed a referendum on the hall "poppycock" but added that a survey of the man in the street would find him in favor of a new city hall downtown.

Notes Other Problems

Mancuso discussed city finances, stating that "every time we get a few dollars ahead we rush to spend it." He said he was against a new city hall "anywhere." He also spoke of the state-mandated sewage treatment plant that would cost $785,000 and noted that increased state aid by 1970 will equal that. He also spoke of the city's sewage system in general saying it had been obsolete for years and the problem had been passed from administration to administration.

Mancuso said that he would "back any legislation for the necessary repair of the old city hall." Previous to that, Sinsabaugh and Epstein had commented on the "delapidated" condition of the old hall.

'False Fact'

Naccarato concurred with Mancuso but took exception to a statement by Epstein that the city had to build the hall in an urban renewal project area in order to get an estimated $250,000 credit toward its overall urban renewal debt. Naccarato termed that a "false fact" and said the city could build anywhere in the city and still get the credit. He then asked that Ward B. Tongue, acting executive director of the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency, clarify the issue.

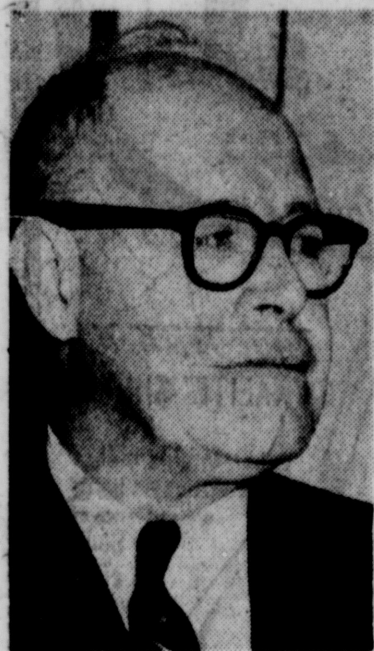

Tongue said that the city had to build within a quarter mile of the project area in order to get the credit, noting that recent requirements by the Department of Housing and Urban Development had mandated this.

The Candidates Warm-up For Big Push

By United Press International

Richard M. Nixon opened his presidential campaign today convinced Republican unity has put his bid for the White House "on an upbeat note" and armed with a nationwide poll that supported his claim.

The Republican presidential candidate's first stop on a five-day trip to six cities was Chicago, where he scheduled a rally at an intersection where police and antiwar demonstrators clashed last week during the Democratic National Convention.

Upbeat

"We start our campaign definitely on an upbeat note, not because of what happened at the Democratic convention but because of what happened at ours and just after that," said Nixon Tuesday at a reception in New York. He noted that the GOP governors of California, New York, Michigan, Ohio, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania have promised to campaign actively for him.

"This is to me a very formidable group of campaigners," he said. Nixon's hopes were bolstered by the results of a public opinion poll conducted over the weekend by Sindlinger & Co., a market research firm. Of 1,844 persons asked who they would vote for if the election were held that day, 33.7 per cent chose Nixon, 28.5 per cent Vice President Hubert Humphrey, 15.7 George C. Wallace, 9.5 per cent a noncandidate and 12.6 had no opinion.

Albert E. Sindlinger, the firm's president, said polls taken immediately after a national convention generally reflect a clear preference for the candidate just nominated and "this is the first time in 20 years that it has not worked out that way."

Other Developments

Humphrey-The vice president decided Tuesday to interrupt campaign strategy sessions in Minnesota and fly to Washington today for a meeting of the National Security Council.

The vice president and his wife, Muriel, celebrated their 32nd wedding anniversary Tuesday with a small party at home.

Gov. John McKeithen-The Louisiana governor said Tuesday he would not support the Humphrey-Muskie ticket in November because the South had been spurned by leaders of the Democratic convention.

"The South was largely ignored during the convention; the indication was we were not needed," he said. McKeithen was among the earliest supporters for Humphrey's nomination, but he said he and the vice president were "acres apart" philosophically.

George C. Wallace-The third party candidate, expected now to carry Louisiana, left Montgomery, Ala., Tuesday for a vacation in Miami Beach before starting his final drive for the presidency. A spokesman said Wallace probably would name his vice presidential running mate Sept. 10.

Sen. Edmund Muskie-The Democratic vice presidential nominee said Tuesday the Wallace candidacy "poses a real threat" to both major parties and may force the presidential election into the House of Representatives. The Maine senator, speaking to newsmen at a golf course near his seaside home in Kennebunk Beach, said Wallace's appeal rested in two areas: Law and order and a white backlash.

3-Day Tour

Gov. Spiro Agnew-The GOP vice presidential candidate set aside campaign activity Tuesday to work on state business at his office in Annapolis, Md. Agnew was leaving today for a three-day swing through Wisconsin, Iowa, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy-The Minnesota Democrat asked his supporters in Iowa Tuesday to withdraw his name as a fourth party candidate in the November election. But McCarthy, defeated by Humphrey for the Democratic presidential nomination, left open the possibility that the might leave his name on the ballot in other states if it would help antiwar candidates for the House and Senate. Friday was the deadline for withdrawal in Iowa.

Youth Killed, Mother Critical In Collision Near Saugerties

By WALTER S. CLARK

A spectacular tractor-trailer sedan collision which occurred on the State Thruway near the Saugerties interchange Tuesday took the life of a 17-year-old Herkimer County youth and critically injured his mother.

The dead youth's 13-year-old brother, Gary, was seriously injured in the mishap, and the driver of the cement truck was reported in serious condition at Kingston Hospital, where the four were taken by the Saugerties Ambulance Service.

Fatally injured in the fatal crash was Daniel McCaffrey of Van Hornesville. His mother, Mrs. Agnes McCaffrey, 47, was critically hurt.

The truck driver, Carl Cary, of 89 North Washington Avenue, in the Greene County community of Athens, reportedly lapsed into a coma sometime after being admitted at the hospital. Troopers said it appeared Cary went into shock after the accident.

State Police Sergeant Henry S. Ganns of Troop T, said Mrs. McCaffrey suffered a fracture of the skull, lacerations and possible internal injuries.

Ulster County Coroner Henry S. Hartley of Saugerties, who investigated the fatality with Trooper Peter Warnecke, today examined the body of the crash victim at the county morgue to determine the cause of death.

According to Trooper Warnecke's report, the McCaffreys were traveling north on the superhighway in the family's car, when apparently the vehicle became disabled. Mrs. McCaffrey, who was driving, pulled to the shoulder of the highway and the three waited for assistance from the Thruway maintenance crew.

It was after 5 p. m. when a northbound tractor-trailer owned by the Schwerman Trucking Company of New York, Inc., of Hudson, and operated by Cary was traveling north in the driving lane.

Troopers said the cement truck entered the shoulder of the highway and crashed into the rear of the McCaffrey car.

Sergeant Ganns said the passenger vehicle was dragged more than 100 feet along the pavement before the truck overturned off the highway. The occupants of the sedan were ejected. Ganns reported the entire upper part of the car was torn away and the sedan was a complete wreck.

The 17-year-old youth apparently was instantly killed. Two vehicles from the Saugerties Ambulance Service were dispatched to the scene. The dead youth, his mother and brother and the truck driver were rushed to the hospital. Attendants on the ambulance administered first aid en route to Kingston.

Troopers theorized that Cary might have intended to leave the Thruway at the Saugerties interchange but "overran" the exit. They also noted it was possible that the truck driver had mistaken the driving lane for the de-acceleration lane for traffic.

According to reports, Cary, following the accident told investigators that he was driving north when he noticed the passenger car stopped on the shoulder. He reportedly said as he approached the sedan the car appeared to be moving toward the pavement and he pulled out to try to pass, but was unable to because another vehicle was passing the truck heading in a northerly direction.

Troopers reported that Cary suffered a fractured hip and possible internal injuries. They said the truck driver lapsed into a coma after he was admitted at the hospital and his condition took a turn for the worse.

A hospital spokesman said today Cary's condition was listed as serious. The death of young McCaffrey was recorded by authorities as the 34th traffic fatality in Ulster County this year. The 34th motor vehicle death in 1967 occurred on Oct. 8 on Route 9W near West Park. The victim was City Patrolman Albert Brown, 25, who was fatally hurt as his car crashed into a stone wall at the entrance to the Marist Brothers Novitiate.

Elude Police Armada

A Watery Getaway

NEW YORK (AP) — Using a speedboat called Cheetah, three gunmen eluded a small armada of police boats and aircraft on Long Island Sound Tuesday after taking possibly as much as $70,000 from a City Island bank, police said.

The unusual getaway vehicle was found abandoned almost five hours later but police did capture a man they said had helped plan the spectacular robbery.

Two Bandits

Police said that two armed men invaded the bank, about 1 p.m., and one forced bank personnel and customers to lie on the floor while the other cleaned from $40,000 to $70,000 from the tellers drawers.

A spokesman for the Manufacturers' Hanover Trust Co. branch said the men disarmed a guard but a teller, seeing the rifle carried by one robber, activated the alarm system and movie cameras.

Bank officials put the amount taken at $30,000 pending an audit.

The two men, one wearing a ski mask and the other carrying a bolt action shotgun, fled from the bank to the waiting outboard motorboat in yellow panel truck which was reported stolen last month.

The gunmen transferred to the boat at a nearby mooring. Witnesses reported they saw the boat's name as it churned away from the pier. They incorrectly reported the boat was blue and white, police said.

A police helicopter, nine police launches, a Coast Guard launch and a Coast Guard cutter spent several hours stopping and searching blue and white pleasure boats in the area before the boat's description was corrected. It was red and white.

The boat was finally found moored about 200 yards offshore in Weir Creek, a branch of Eastchester Bay, near the Throgs Neck Bridge.

Two Bandits

Police said they had discovered the name of the boat's owner and were searching for him. It had been purchased last month in Putnam Valley, N.Y.

The suspect arrested Tuesday night was described as an unemployed computer operator named Dennis Geaney, 25, of the Bronx.

Police, who gave no details of the arrest, said Geaney was not present during the holdup. He is charged with conspiracy in connection with the robbery.

Would Answer the Critics

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor National Broadcasting Co. in Richard J. Daley, displeased New York, which invited the with television coverage of mayor to appear Sept. 13 on a special one-hour version of "Meet the Press" where Daley would be questioned by a panel of reporters.

"That wasn't what he requested," the spokesman said. He quoted Daley as saying, "There is no need for a panel of reporters." Questions by reporters would not allow the mayor to present the city's case in detail, the spokesman said.

Daley has criticized television coverage of police-demonstrator clashes, saying the nation saw police club demonstrators only after demonstrators provoked police by throwing stones and filth at them, spitting at them, and cursing them. He said there was a plot to assassinate presidential contenders and other Democratic leaders, including himself, making strong security measures necessary.

In New York, NBC News Division President Reuben Frank said he advised Daley that NBC did not accept his allegations of a one-sided portrayal.

The Columbia Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. did not immediately respond to Daley's request.

Daley said that during the proposed hour on television—he would detail "the background and planning for the purpose of disrupting the city and the national convention, the tactics used by the demonstrators, the biographies of the organizers and leaders, the role of the law enforcement agencies, and the grave implications of these events to the cities of America, which were not portrayed during the convention coverage."

"Details, because of the unfortunate, inaccurate reporting, have not been brought out properly," Daley said.

One of Chicago's few independent aldermen, Leon Despres, announced he had sent telegrams to CBS, NBC and ABC demanding one hour of equal prime television time "to answer him (Daley) on behalf of the millions of Chicagoans."

Would Answer the Critics

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley, displeased with television coverage of violence during the Democratic National Convention, wants to use the same medium to respond to criticism of police actions against antiwar demonstrators.

Daley said at a one-minute news conference Tuesday he had asked the three major television networks for one hour of prime time Sept. 11 or 12 "for the purpose of balancing the one-sided portrayal of the controversial events that were telecast" during last week's Democratic convention.

A spokesman for Daley said the mayor probably would reject an offer from the National Broadcasting Co. in New York, which invited the mayor to appear Sept. 13 on a special one-hour version of "Meet the Press" where Daley would be questioned by a panel of reporters.

"That wasn't what he requested," the spokesman said. He quoted Daley as saying, "There is no need for a panel of reporters." Questions by reporters would not allow the mayor to present the city's case in detail, the spokesman said.

Daley has criticized television coverage of police-demonstrator clashes, saying the nation saw police club demonstrators only after demonstrators provoked police by throwing stones and filth at them, spitting at them, and cursing them. He said there was a plot to assassinate presidential contenders and other Democratic leaders, including himself, making strong security measures necessary.

In New York, NBC News Division President Reuben Frank said he advised Daley that NBC did not accept his allegations of a one-sided portrayal.

The Columbia Broadcasting Co. and the American Broadcasting Co. did not immediately respond to Daley's request.

Daley said that during the proposed hour on television he would detail "the background and planning for the purpose of disrupting the city and the national convention, the tactics of the millions of Chicagoans, biographies of the organizers and leaders, the role of the law enforcement agencies, and the grave implications of these events to the cities of America, which were not portrayed during the convention coverage."

"Details, because of the unfortunate, inaccurate reporting, have not been brought out properly," Daley said.

One of Chicago's few independent aldermen, Leon Despres, announced he had sent telegrams to CBS, NBC and ABC demanding one hour of equal prime television time "to answer him (Daley) on behalf of the millions of Chicagoans."

Snyder Favored as Clerk

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago in a resolution filed today will ask for the appointment of Edward W. Snyder of this city as clerk of the county board.

The appointment is contingent on the approval of the County Legislature at the Sept. 12 meeting.

Snyder, a native of this city and long time legislative assistant to Assemblyman Kenneth L. Wilson, would succeed the late Edward R. Mance of Kerhenkson, who died Aug. 25. Mr. Mance had served as clerk of the Legislature since December and previous to that was deputy clerk.

A graduate of Kingston High School and Moran's Business School, Snyder served as legislative assistant to the Ulster County assemblyman from 1958 to 1965, and during the past year served as legislative aide to State Sen. Jay P. Rolison Jr.

From 1948 to 1954 Snyder was secretary to Kingston Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and held the same position from 1954 to 1957 with the late Mayor Frederick H. Stang. He has been executive secretary to the the Rhineland Campaign. He received the Bronze Star decoration from 1958 to 1965 and again from 1967 to 1968.

During World War II Snyder served as personnel sergeant major with the 3rd Army. He has campaign ribbons for Northern France, the Ardennes Offensive, Central Europe and of the board and chief budget officer. The combined budgeted salary is $10,500.

He is a member of Trinity Lutheran Church and Kingston Post 150, American Legion. If the recommendation of Chairman Savago is approved by the Legislature, Snyder will serve in the dual role as clerk of the board and chief budget officer. The combined budgeted salary is $10,500. Mrs. Marie Lockwood has been serving as acting clerk of the board since her appointment at the Aug. 29 special meeting of the County Legislature. Mrs. Lockwood is secretary of the Legislature.

ELECT HARKIN—Frank W. Harkin, (l), supervisor of the Town of Wawarsing was elected chairman of the Wawarsing Republican Committee Tuesday night, filling a vacancy created by the death of Edward Mance. Assembly candidate, H. Clark Bell, shown with the retired Air Force colonel, addressed the committeemen and held a general discussion with them concerning issues of the 1968 campaign and the preliminary campaign for the Town of Wawarsing. He said he appreciated the opportunity to establish and develop "this early working arrangement with the Wawarsing Republican Committee." Harkin, in accepting the post, referred to Mance's hard work and dedication, saying he too, would put forth his best effort.

Water Department to Vote Bargaining Agent Sept. 25

Members of the Kingston Water Department will vote on whether they want the Teamsters Union to represent them as bargaining agents or the Civil Service Employees Association on Sept. 25 at the Knights of Columbus Hall on Broadway.

The voting date was set after a meeting of both sides and the Water Board last week. Present at that meeting were Harvey Milo, an investigator for the State Public Employee Relations Board, Edward Wetterhahn, assistant superintendent of the water department and Ward Ingelsbe Jr. and Joseph Rosenthal, attorneys for the CSEA and Teamsters Local 445, respectively.

Originally, the Teamsters had been certified as the representatives for the water department but the CSEA protested. There was some dispute as to how many and what persons would be designated as union personnel and who would be designated as management. Under the Teamsters, the clerical section of the water department was not in the union. However, with the latest agreement, the clerical section will be part of the union and members of that department are expected to vote on the 25th. There is expected to be a maximum of 30 persons voting in the election.

Animal Cruelty Case Adjourned to Sept. 17

The case of Clarence Campbell White, 51, of Pine Bush, facing charges of cruelty to animals has been adjourned to Sept. 17 at 8 p. m. before Town of Rochester Justice Raymond Lawrence.

The case was called before Justice Lawrence Tuesday night and Stewart T. Schantz of Highland, attorney for the defendant asked for adjournment to consider the possibility of requesting a trial by jury. White was charged in connection with a raid staged by the Sheriff's Department on Aug. 12 at the Clove Valley Ranch near High Falls. White entered a plea of innocent at arraignment Aug. 14 when he appeared before Justice Lawrence, and bail was set at $100. The raid was effected by Sheriff William B. Martin, Deputy Marshall Canosa and SPCA Agent Arnold Adams. At the ranch they found several horses obviously mistreated. No water or food was in evidence.

The owner of the ranch, Wilbur Smith, who is in New York City most of the time, permitted White to stable his horses at the ranch, i.e. investigation revealed. Authorities pointed out that Smith was not involved in the investigation.

When the raiding party arrived they found one horse dead and another in poor condition, according to Dr. Charles B. Freer, Ellenville veterinarian. Two other animals were in fair condition. Deputy Canosa, who investigated the initial complaint, said the horses had been locked in the barn because they had broken out of the corral seeking food and water. There had been complaints by the neighbors that the horses were running loose on the road. The animals were taken by van to a horse farm owned by Louis LaFalce at Highland, where they will be stabled until the owner decides what to do with them.

CR Hits 1,201 Total

A total of 1,201 persons registered to vote during central registration at the Ulster County Board of Elections from January 8 to August 29, it was reported today.

Mrs. Valerie Quick Sheehey, deputy commissioner of elections said, during that period, 216 persons applied for absentee ballots and 386 servicemen and their dependents sent applications for registration and military ballots because of anticipated absence from the county on Election Day, Nov. 5.

Prospective voters were advised that there is no further registration at the Board of Elections Office. Those who wish to vote Election Day and are still unregistered may do so at their regular polling place in the county and the City of Kingston on the following three dates:

Saturday, Sept. 28 from 12 noon to 10 p. m.
Friday, Oct. 4 from 6 a. m. to 12 noon.

Saturday, Oct. 5 from 12 noon to 10 p. m.

Any person who registered under the new system of Permanent Personal Registration (PPR) last year, and has changed his address, must register in person at his or her regular polling place on one of the three listed dates.

Any voter may receive application for absentee registration due to illness or physical disability or being continuously absent from the county from the first day of Central Registration through the last day of local registration because of employment or being a student.

Applications for absentee ballots are also available to registered voters who will be absent from the county on Election Day by contacting the Board of Elections Office, Monday through Friday during regular business hours.

Election Timetable

No one at either of the major party conventions expressed any doubt that his man would win the election, but in both there was a dubious thought—what would happen if neither candidate got a majority of the electoral votes? The question had no longer become academic, with George C. Wallace, the candidate of the Independent American party, showing strength among nearly one-fifth of the electorate in various nationwide polls.

Should Wallace be able to translate that strength into electoral votes, no mean task since in all but a few states his following is not enough to win the state's electors, then his chances of throwing the election into the House would be enhanced. Wallace says he will throw his votes to the candidate with whom he "can do business," that is secure certain concessions, before the election goes to the House. But that assumes he can control the electors, who might not follow him to that extent. They would be elected to vote for him, not his proxy. If freed, they might surprise him.

The electoral college meets December 16—under federal law, the time is the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December. It is 41 days after election day November 5. There is plenty of time for maneuvering, if need be, but we are still of the opinion that Wallace would not necessarily control his electors.

There is the fact that the law provides that the electoral votes be sent to Washington and the House and Senate meet in joint session January 6 to count the votes. Next year, January 6 falls on a Monday, so it will be two full months after the election.

The newly elected Congress convenes January 3. That means that if the election is thrown into the House, the decision will be made by the 91st Congress, not the current 90th. Once the House organizes itself, it will have to move quickly to the election of the President, in order that he may take office as the Constitution provides, January 20.

The Wallace threat makes it more important than ever for each party to fight for House seats, because if the election of the President is thrown into the House, each state has a single vote, and the control of House delegations will be vital.

Urban Development Bank

Whoever is elected President, one thing seems certain. Cities will come in for tremendous financing through a combination of public and private funds.

There will be a difference in approach. Richard M. Nixon has been advocating ghetto business and industry financed by private interests, with the Federal government sharing the risk by guaranteeing payment.

Hubert H. Humphrey would establish a Marshall Plan for Cities through an Urban Development Bank. Its operation would be so widespread that it would require fantastic amounts of money, some informed economists say as much as $300 billion, in the first ten years of operation.

Where would such sums of money come from? Two possible sources—the annual increase in taxes due to national growth, and the so-called peace dividend, the money saved from prosecuting the war in Vietnam, when peace comes. Some economists do not think the peace dividend will amount to so much for a number of years, but whatever it is, it would be allocated to the cities.

If the proposed Marshall Plan for Cities is managed as some recent attempts at urban development have been, then we had better forget the scheme.

This is one of the top priority questions to be thrashed out in the coming campaign. We will be interested to learn the details each side proposes.

Czech Hindsight

People of Czechoslovakia must now be looking back at their eagerness for reform these past few months and concluding that they went too fast too soon. They were intoxicated with the freedom vista that opened up before them. They did not reckon with the hard-core communism of their neighbors. The price they must now pay in repression is particularly hard to swallow, along with the bitter pill of the indifference of the free world.

But in the realities of present-day power politics, there is little more that the Czechs can do but to start all over again, and try to achieve slowly and step by step what they tried to take so quickly. For they will host an invasion force for many months, if not years.

There is one possible source of hope. The foreign troops who will be stationed in Czechoslovakia will be exposed to a yearning for freedom for the first time. Already, they have been confused and bewildered by the reaction of the people. Who knows that they will not take the virus of freedom back with them when they return to their countries and one day the whole of eastern Europe will erupt? That seems to be the best hope and the best possibility for the Czechs and for their neighbors.

David Lawrence Says

Role of Vice-Presidential Candidates in Campaign

WASHINGTON — Already there are evidences that the Vice Presidency may be a much more important factor than ever before during a presidential campaign. What each of the vice-presidential candidates—Governor Spiro T. Agnew, Republican, and Senator Edmund S. Muskie, Democrat—said in their speeches before they were chosen and everything they have said since the conventions are being carefully scrutinized.

Senator Muskie, for instance, has indicated that, if he were elected, he might or might not agree with a president and all his policies. While he has been very careful to conform as far as possible with Hubert Humphrey's viewpoint, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee has made some observations in public interviews which are being construed as "differences." In an interview on NBC's "Meet The Press" on Sunday, the following exchange occurred:

"Q. If you, during your vice presidency, found yourself in fundamental disagreement with the president, would you resign? Governor Agnew, I understand, has said that this is the course that a vice president should follow if he did find himself in fundamental disagreement."

"Senator Muskie: I would hope that a man ought to contemplate that possibility could occur. Now, we have no historical precedent along that line, but I think a man ought to contemplate that that will happen and resolve in advance what his attitude would be in that connection. I don't believe I could in any public office endorse a policy that violated my conscience."

All this is an indication that the limited powers of the vice presidency are not as well known as might be imagined. Thus, the Constitution of the United States makes it clear that "the executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States." It also says that "the Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided."

Hence, the Vice President is not a member of the executive branch of the government. As a courtesy, a president may invite him to sit in on Cabinet meetings or other conferences. This has become even more important since the Constitution was amended in 1967 to provide that, whenever a President is physically disabled and "unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office," these same powers and duties "shall be discharged by the Vice President as acting President."

A Vice President, therefore, will have to be an understudy of the President in every sense of the word. He will have to be familiar with what the executive is doing so that he can take over the office at a moment's notice and be aware of the innermost secrets of the administration, particularly in the conduct of foreign affairs, where major crises could emerge at any time.

Certainly it would not be wise for any Vice President to express publicly views that are different from those of the President. But even if a Vice President differed with a President, there is no way by which he can be removed from office just because his views may be at variance with those of a President. In fact, there was no method of filling a vacancy prior to last year when the twenty-fifth amendment to the Constitution was adopted. It says:

"Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take the office upon confirmation by majority vote of both houses of Congress."

During a campaign, of course, there may be some advantages in having a vice-presidential nominee who in his speeches can go a little more to the right or a little more to the left of the presidential nominee in order to attract votes for the ticket. It may be expected, however, that Senator Muskie will hew to the line and make his speeches conform to those of Humphrey on any really important question. For the Democratic or Republican ticket will be dominated by the presidential instead of the vice-presidential nominees. Both the Republican and Democratic conventions have selected for the vice-presidential nomination men who are capable of expressing themselves equivocally as well as unequivocally if they feel that the politics of a two-month campaign may require them to do so.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

"Be a good boy till I get home," Charlotte said, snatching the toy pistol from her boy and jamming it into her handbag. "Guns," she said, "is pure unadulterated trouble." The sun was high and hot and Charlotte stood on the porch looking over the rickety bungalow, wondering why it always looked good after a few sips of wine and so awful a few hours later.

She blew the wisps of dark hair from her forehead. It was a tied house, the porch creaking with arthritis, the weeds tall and sturdy around the sun-washed clappboards. Three old cars rusted in back. They had more windows than the house. "Be a good boy."

The kid thought his mother was beautiful. Her features ran like wax down the side of a candle. She wore a cotton print housecoat wrapped around one and a half times. The burl of her knees stretched down the shinbone. Charlotte had always been a housemaid—"a day-worker," she called it—and, except for the gentle anesthesia of wine, was a hard-working, honest woman.

Ten years before she had married Gunnar Stevens, the only man in the little town who had lost his temper the day he was born and never found it. The utterance of a single unkind word could incite Gunnar to punch a policeman, a filling station owner, a buddy, or a wall. He was always abjectly sorry, and he would crawl to make his apologies, but Gunnar altered a lot of local features.

Last Saturday he had gone to the county fair with some friends and he had taken the rent money. Gunnar asked his friends how to tell a fast horse from a slow one and they told him to count the rhythm of the hoofbeats. He had held onto the rent money for four races. In the fifth, he had seen a bay horse named Behomtonite and Gunnar counted the feet and had gone to the window and slid the rent money—$42—under the grille.

Charlotte had always maintained that everything bad happened to her and Gunnar but, with prayer, everything came out all right. They lived a daily cliff hanger. She believed in the Bible and the sip of wine—her unsophisticated tranquilizers.

Gunnar asked his friends about the race, and they explained: "See, it's a quarter-mile time. Now this is a two-mile race so that jocks have to rap them horses around here, eight times." Gunnar nodded. "Most of them boys," said his sage buddies, "carries eight marbles apiece in their mouth and every time they pass the finish line they spit one. When the last one comes out they know they're in the homestretch."

Behomtonite came out of the gate with all four feet off the earth. He flew. Gunnar Stevens figured to buy himself a motorcycle and present Charlotte with a case of wine. That horse moved. After seven laps, he slowed down to decide whether he should catch up with the pack ahead or let them come up from behind.

A thinking horse is as dangerous as a woman who can read a man's mind. Behomtonite began to meditate. Gunnar Stevens' expression didn't change as four horses passed Behomtonite. He just sighed and walked slowly down the grandstand, across the infield, and hopped the fence. He held Behomtonite's bridle in his left hand, to the surprise of one and all, and hit him flush on the mouth with his right.

Gunnar was in the county jail. Getting out of that stall, the judge said, would come to $200. Nobody had that kind of tea. Charlotte had a check for $25—three days' pay plus a dollar for gasoline—and she drove off to the bank knowing that the good Lord would bring her man back to her. She liked to tell her girl friends that she was loyal—she drank and drove Thunderbird.

The car looked as though it had spent a couple of sunny years in a swamp. It had one gear: low. The springs on the front seat were so insulating that Charlotte used an old sofa pillow. At the bank, she presented her check and Miss Effie, the clerk behind the window, said it would have to be endorsed. Charlotte opened her handbag to find a pen. Her son's toy gun was on top. Miss Effie swallowed and said: "That will be all right."

She handed out bundles of currency. Charlotte kept mumbling: "Thank you. Thank you." She left with $1,440. At a near by tavern, she sipped wine and bought drinks for the house. "I tell you," she said solemnly, "that was one hell of a check."

The police bagged her, well bagged. She had $1,200. When the law unraveled the situation, it was decided that Charlotte had not intended to hold up anybody. The next morning, she went to court and paid $200 and get her man home. "You just gotta have faith in the Lord," she said.

Drew Pearson Says It Was Johnson Who Fluctuated, Not HHH

MUSKIE FOR VP

In view of the nomination of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine to be the Democratic nominee for Vice President, it is interesting to recall a Drew Pearson column of July 15 in which he said, "Humphrey leans toward Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, but is open-minded regarding various other candidates."

DREW PEARSON SAYS: MRS. ROOSEVELT CHOSE TO PROTECT FDR'S CAREER RATHER THAN DIVORCE HIM. IT WAS LBJ NOT HHH WHO FLUCTUATED: HIGH SPEED TRAINS BEHIND SCHEDULE.

WASHINGTON — Mr. Henry Jay MacMillan of Wilmington, N.C., has thrown more light on the romance of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Winthrop Rutherford, formerly Lucy Mercer, which Jonathan Daniels has so carefully documented in his latest book, "Washington Quadrille." Mr. MacMillan was associated with Elsie Cobb Wilson, who had previously told me something about her part in sidetracking a Roosevelt divorce.

"I did designing for Elsie Cobb Wilson from 1929 until the depression put an end to the big decorating jobs," writes Mr. MacMillan, referring to the Washington socialite who later married Gen. Louis Little of the U.S. Marine Corps.

"One evening at Mrs. Little's (Elsie Cobb Wilson) house in Georgetown, 3010 0 St., she told me in great detail about the Mercer-Roosevelt affair."

"There are several points that have never been brought out as far as I know."

"Miss Mercer worked in Mrs. Wilson's shop at 1709 H St., N.W. When Mrs. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Cobb, died, Mrs. Wilson gave her lovely new clothes to Miss Mercer as she was going into mourning. It was amusing that Mrs. Wilson attributed much of Lucy Mercer's great social success to her own wardrobe."

"When FDR asked Eleanor to divorce him they arranged to meet on the neutral territory of Elsie Cobb Wilson's apartment at the Drake in New York."

"Roosevelt went to New York for the conference and when he returned by train in the early morning hours Mrs. Wilson met him at the station. Mrs. Wilson described to me dramatically how fatigued and dejected Roosevelt looked in the dim light of dawn. He told Mrs. Wilson that, although he had pleaded, Eleanor had refused to divorce him because it would put an end to his political future."

The only footnote to history which might be added here is that although FDR won the reputation of being a great politician, Mrs. Roosevelt obviously had a better insight into politics.

HHH Hawk or Dove? Vice President Humphrey has been criticized for fluctuating on the Vietnam war issue on the eve of the Democratic convention. The inside story is that he was merely reflecting President Johnson's backstage attitude.

At an Aug. 9th meeting at the LBJ ranch, the President held out the possibility that he might order a complete halt of the bombing. Humphrey went away cheered, and began taking a softer line. Meanwhile, the North Vietnamese representatives in Paris flatly refused to offer any sign that they would also de-escalate the fighting.

This angered the President. He then returned to his hard line against a bombing cessation. The unhappy Humphrey, caught in a dovish posture, had to maneuver back as gracefully as possible into a hawkish stance.

New Speed Trains

The "Claiborne Pell Special," the nickname given by Senate colleagues to the new fast-line between Boston and Washington proposed by Sen. Pell of Rhode Island, has run into all sorts of snafus. It is expected that the first fast trains will start running between Boston and New York this fall, possibly in September. But the rest of the fast-line to Washington has been delayed, and it will be something of a miracle if the trains start operating a year from now.

These fast passenger trains are intended to relieve air traffic between Washington, New York and Boston, and are patterned after the fast trains which travel between Tokyo and Osaka, Japan. The Japanese trains reach a speed of around 150 miles an hour, and have cut in half the time of commuting along the Japanese industrial seaboard.

The trouble with the American experiment, however, is that it has been attempted at a cost of only $80 million and in one year's time; whereas the Japanese spent $1,300,000,000 and planned their operation over a five-year period.

As a result, the American project has run into all sorts of headaches. In the first place, the Budd Company, which is manufacturing the cars, and the Penn Central Railroad, which is putting together the trains, divided the orders for the electrical work on the cars between General Electric and Westinghouse.

There are ten miles of wiring in each car, and the companies have followed different techniques in their electrical construction. This means that if a GE car and a Westinghouse car are shunted together to make up a train, the different wiring offers complications.

The speed of the trains has also presented problems. They have gone so fast on trial runs that the vacuum tends to suck out the windows of passing trains. On a recent trial run between Washington and Philadelphia, as the train approached a speed of 150 miles an hour a window broke open, the this automatically applied the brakes. In addition, the current is so powerful that it has a tendency to flow from one series of electrical cables to another, despite insulation.

The line from New York to Washington will be electrically operated, whereas the line from New York to Boston will be powered by turbojet airplane engines fueled by gasoline. These trains will be operated by the New Haven Railroad under a lease from the federal government which actually will own the rolling stock. The New Haven Railroad will merely act as the operator.

In order to facilitate quick discharge of passengers, platforms along the New Haven have been elevated parallel to the railroad cars. This, however, has caused problems. The heat from the turbojet engines is so intense that when the locomotive stands in close proximity to the platform it becomes overheated. As a result, blowers have to be attached to cool down the engine as it stops at a station.

Such are some of the vexations connected with fast rail transportation through the megalopolis extending from Boston to Washington. Despite these problems, the "Claiborne Pell Special" will probably start rolling between Boston and New York in late September.

Hard to Find a Winner

By PETER LISAGOR

CHICAGO — When the smoke lifted over the Chicago battlefield, it was hard to find a real winner at the 1968 Democratic Convention. The winners looked like losers and the losers like soreheads.

Hubert H. Humphrey's plight reminded one of a tale of the old west in which the lone survivor of an Indian ambush lay under his fallen wife and children, with an arrow through his chest. When the rescuers asked if it hurt, he muttered, "Only when I laugh."

Through a miracle of good will and the breaks, the Democratic Presidential candidate might salvage something from the debris. But his prospects depend upon a conversion of the spirit found only in the old Cecil B. DeMille movies. The Democrats left this city as they came, in agony.

The city itself has been given a black eye before the nation and the world. Millions of Americans gaped as they watched the police clash with young militants in the streets, and London newspapers carried such headlines as "Police Horror in Chicago" and "Blood Flows in Chicago."

as Humphrey Wins." It was all so overdone and unnecessary.

Mayor Richard J. Daley had to know that this strike-crippled city was no place for a political convention at a time of inflamed emotions over Vietnam. President Johnson had to know it, too, but false pride and excessive vanity got in the way of reason. Everything that happened was forecast, and nobody lifted a finger, except the cops. Powerful men stood by powerlessly, and the whole sordid affair was allowed to unfold like a Greek tragedy.

If there was a bright note in the bawling and the brawling, it was that Chicago's Negroes chose to sit this one out. Their grievances, despite the liberal claims that the war is responsible for all of the nation's problems, psychosomatic judgement that only Eugene McCarthy could make with such a glib certainty.

The antiwar demonstrators came to Chicago bent upon disruption. Their leaders exhorted them with obscenities issued through bullhorns in Grant Park into the early morning hours, and if nothing else they were guilty of disturbing the peace.

The police were undoubtedly under provocation but, in the words of that eminently decent man, George McGovern, they lost their cool and their brutal response was inexcusable.

Television heightened the tension, of course, but Daley couldn't hang the main rap on it. It didn't equip the cops with truncheons, although it probably helped to inspire the nihilists in the crowd who wanted nothing more than to dispare the convention and destroy its credibility, as if it needed help in that direction.

It may be that like prize fights and wrestling matches, national conventions have become a creature and captive of TV. Perhaps they can be scaled down to size, say, one or two delegates from each state, and staged in TV studios in the future. For in their present form they have become a Roman circus, with the TV reporters engaged as virtual participants, as stars of the show, and that makes no sense at all.

In political terms, the saddest spectacle of all was one that didn't occur. A president of the United States was unable to come to a conclave of his own party for fear of being demeaned.

Lyndon Johnson has been heard to remark bitterly that the Kennedys own the Democratic Party, which is an exaggeration but which he and his Texas colleagues nevertheless believe devoutly. The elaborate cake prepared for his 60th birthday celebration last Tuesday went stale, like much else at the convention, and the sadness of this is that LBJ has a remarkable record as President. The war devoured him, and that strange personality which made him incapable of raising men above their fears prepared him for the feast.

And Hubert Humphrey? An essentially humane and happy man, he has the burden not only of a dubious legacy but of divorcing himself from the influence of the President. His loyalty will prevent him from a cheap disavowal of Vietnam. He is, as one observer noted, a man on a high wire in a high wind. And maybe, just maybe, the President can spread a net for him by managing events in a way that will settle the war. But first, Humphrey has a party to pitch up, and that will take more than the stickum of exhortation and good will.

Letters to the Editor

33 Elmendorf St.
Kingston, N.Y.
Aug. 24, 1968

Editor, The Freeman

Every citizen is interested in safety and the prevention of accidents no matter how minor.

There — as a citizen, I would like to convey my observations to other citizens and our police department relative to safety of our juvenile citizens.

We take great pride in adopting laws to protect children and I am speaking here about the carelessness of young bicycle riders.

The other day I observed three youngsters on one bicycle—the driver, handlebars and rear rack. It happened in one-way traffic on Fair St. and other streets too numerous to mention. In some cases, they were going in the wrong direction on a one-way street. This places even a careful auto driver in jeopardy, and at the same time great danger to the bicycle operator.

I believe it's important to teach our children to protect themselves when they are alone by observing all traffic rules, if no one responsible is there to guide them.

There is another item about safety that I desire to mention here—a cemetery is not the proper setting for a playground.

I speak specifically about the Albany Ave. Cemetery. The monuments have been there for many years. They are loose at the base and a child could be seriously hurt or fatally injured.

A child should be when he obeys the law he is protecting himself and not to think because he is a minor he is exempt.

In closing, I'd like to mention about automobile drivers. Although the law stipulates one hand on the steering wheel is sufficient, I can't see how a driver can totally concentrate on the road and his driving when he has his right arm around his feminine passenger.

Sincerely yours
Edwin J. Higby

Election Timetable

No one at either of the major party conventions expressed any doubt that his man would win the election, but in both there was a dubious thought—what would happen if neither candidate got a majority of the electoral votes? The question had no longer become academic, with George C. Wallace, the candidate of the Independent American party, showing strength among nearly one fifth of the electorate in various nationwide polls.

Should Wallace be able to translate that strength into electoral votes, no mean task since in all but a few states his following is not enough to win the state's electors, then his chances of throwing the election into the House would be enhanced. Wallace says he will throw his votes to the candidate with whom he "can do business," that is secure certain concessions, before the election goes to the House. But that assumes he can control the electors, who might not follow him to that extent. They would be elected to vote for him, not his proxy. If freed, they might surprise him.

The electoral college meets December 16—under federal law, the time is the first Monday after the second Wednesday in December. It is 41 days after election day November 5. There is plenty of time for maneuvering, if need be, but we are still of the opinion that Wallace would not necessarily control his electors.

There is the fact that the law provides that the electoral votes be sent to Washington and the House and Senate meet in joint session January 6 to count the votes. Next year, January 6 falls on a Monday, so it will be two full months after the election.

The newly elected Congress convenes January 3. That means that if the election is thrown into the House, the decision will be made by the 91st Congress, not the current 90th. Once the House organizes itself, it will have to move quickly to the election of the President, in order that he may take office as the Constitution provides, January 20.

The Wallace threat makes it more important than ever for each party to fight for House seats, because if the election of the President is thrown into the House, each state has a single vote, and the control of House delegations will be vital.

Urban Development Bank

Whoever is elected President, one thing seems certain. Cities will come in for tremendous financing through a combination of public and private funds.

There will be a difference in approach. Richard M. Nixon has been advocating ghetto business and industry financed by private interests, with the Federal government sharing the risk by guaranteeing payment.

Hubert H. Humphrey would establish a Marshall Plan for Cities through an Urban Development Bank. Its operation would be so widespread that it would require fantastic amounts of money, some informed economists say as much as $300 billion, in the first ten years of operation.

Where would such sums of money come from? Two possible sources—the annual increase in taxes due to national growth, and the so-called peace dividend, the money saved from prosecuting the war in Vietnam, when peace comes. Some economists do not think the peace dividend will amount to so much for a number of years, but whatever it is, it would be allocated to the cities.

This is one of the top priority questions to be thrashed out in the coming campaign. We will be interested to learn the details each side proposes.

Czech Hindsight

People of Czechoslovakia must now be looking back at their eagerness for reform these past few months and concluding that they went too fast too soon. They were intoxicated with the freedom vista that opened up before them. They did not reckon with the hard-core communism of their neighbors. There is one possible source of hope. The foreign troops who will be stationed in Czechoslovakia will be exposed to a yearning for freedom for the first time. Already, they have been confused and bewildered by the reaction of the people. Who knows that they will not take the virus of freedom back with them when they return to their countries and one day the whole of eastern Europe will erupt? That seems to be the best hope and the best possibility for the Czechs and for their neighbors.

Role of Vice-Presidential Candidates in Campaign

WASHINGTON — Already there are evidences that the Vice Presidency may be a much more important factor than ever before during a presidential campaign. What each of the vice-presidential candidates—Governor Spiro T. Agnew, Republican, and Senator Edmund S. Muskie, Democrat—said in their speeches before they were chosen and everything they have said since the conventions are being carefully scrutinized.

Senator Muskie, for instance, has indicated that, if he were elected, he might or might not agree with a president and all his policies. While he has been very careful to conform as far as possible with Hubert Humphrey's viewpoint, the Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee has made some observations in public interviews, which are being construed as "differences." In an interview on NBC's "Meet The Press" on Sunday, the following exchange occurred:

"Q. If you, during your vice presidency, found yourself in fundamental disagreement with the president, would you resign? Governor Agnew, I understand, has said that this is the course that a vice president should follow if he did find himself in fundamental disagreement."

"Senator Muskie: I would hope that a man ought to contemplate that possibility could occur. Now, we have no historical precedent along that line, but I think a man ought to contemplate that that will happen and resolve in advance what his attitude would be in that connection. I don't believe I could in any public office endorse a policy that violated my conscience."

All this is an indication that the limited powers of the vice presidency are not as well known as might be imagined. Thus, the Constitution of the United States makes it clear that "the executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States." It also says that "the Vice President of the United States shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless they be equally divided."

Hence, the Vice President is not a member of the executive branch of the government. As a courtesy, a president may invite him to sit in on Cabinet meetings or other conferences. This has become even more important since the Constitution was amended in 1967 to provide that, whenever a President is physically disabled and "unable to discharge the powers and duties of his office," these same powers and duties "shall be discharged by the Vice President as acting President."

A Vice President, therefore, will have to be an understudy of the President in every sense of the word. He will have to be familiar with what the executive is doing so that he can take over the office at a moment's notice and be aware of the innermost secrets of the administration, particularly in the conduct of foreign affairs, where major crises could emerge at any time.

Certainly it would not be wise for any Vice President to express publicly views that are different from those of the President. But even if a Vice President differed with a President, there is no way by which he can be removed from office just because his views may be at variance with those of a President. In fact, there was no method of filling a vacancy prior to last year when the twenty-fifth amendment to the Constitution was adopted. It says: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take the office upon confirmation by majority vote of both houses of Congress."

During a campaign, of course, there may be some advantages in having a vice-presidential nominee who in his speeches can go a little more to the right or a little more to the left of the presidential nominee in order to attract votes for the ticket.

It may be expected, however, that Senator Muskie will hew to the line and make his speeches conform to those of Humphrey on any really important question. For the Democratic or Republican ticket will be dominated by the presidential instead of the vice-presidential nominees. Both the Republican and Democratic conventions have selected for the vice-presidential nomination men who are capable of expressing themselves equivocally as well as unequivocally if they feel that the politics of a two-month campaign may require them to do so.

They told him to count the rhythm of the hoofbeats. He had held onto the rent money for four races. In the fifth, he had seen a bay horse named Behometonite and Gunnar counted the feet and had gone to the window and slid the rent money—$42—under the grille.

Charlotte had always maintained that everything had happened to her and Gunnar but, with prayer, everything came out all right. They lived a daily cliff hanger. She believed in the Bible and the sip of wine—her unsophisticated tranquilizers.

Gunnar asked his friends about the race, and they explained: "See, it's a quarter-mile thing. Now this is a two-mile race so that jocks have to rap them horses around here eight times." Gunnar nodded. "Most of them boys," said his sage buddies, "carries eight marbles apiece in their mouth and every time they pass the finish line they spit one. When the last one comes out they all know they're in the homestretch."

Behometonite came out of the gate with all four feet off the earth. He flew. Gunnar Stevens figured to buy himself a motorcycle and present Charlotte with a case of wine. That horse moved. After seven laps, he slowed down to decide whether he should catch up with the pack ahead or let them come up from behind.

A thinking horse is as dangerous as a woman who can read a man's mind. Behometonite began to meditate. Gunnar Stevens' expression didn't change as four horses passed Behometonite. He just sighed and walked slowly down the grandstand, across the infield, and hopped the fence. He held Behometonite's bridle in his left hand, to the surprise of one and all, and hit him flush on the mouth with his right.

Gunnar was in the county jail. Getting out of that stall, the judge said, would come to $200. Nobody had that kind of cash. Charlotte had a check for $25—three days' pay plus a dollar for gasoline—and she drove off to the bank knowing that the good Lord would bring her man back to her. She liked to tell her girl friends that she was loyal—she drank and drove Thunderbird.

The car looked as though it had spent a couple of sunny years in a swamp. It had one gear: low. The springs on the front seat were so insulting that Charlotte used an old sofa pillow. At the bank, she presented her check and Miss Effie, the clerk behind the window, said it would have to be indorsed. Charlotte opened her handbag to find a pen. Her son's toy gun was on top. Miss Effie swallowed and said: "That will be all right."

She handed out bundles of currency. Charlotte kept mumbling: "Thank you. Thank you." She left with $1,440. At a near by tavern, she sipped wine and bought drinks for the house. "I tell you," she said solemnly, "that was one hell of a check."

The police bagged her, well bagged. She had $1,200. When the law unraveled the situation, it was decided that Charlotte had not intended to hold up anybody. The next morning, she went to court and paid $200 and get her man home. "You just gotta have faith in the Lord," she said.

Through a miracle of good will and the breaks, the Democratic Presidential candidate might salvage something from the debris. But his prospects depend upon a conversion of the spirit found only in the old Cecil B. DeMille movies. The Democrats left this city as they came, in agony.

The city itself has been given a black eye before the nation and the world. Millions of Americans gaped as they watched the police clash with young militants in the streets, and London newspapers carried such headlines as "Police Horror in Chicago" and "Blood Flows in Chicago."

Drew Pearson Says It Was Johnson Who Fluctuated, Not HHH

MUSKIE FOR VP
In view of the nomination of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine to be the Democratic nominee for Vice President, it is interesting to recall a Drew Pearson column of July 15 in which he said, "Humphrey leans toward Sen. Edmund Muskie of Maine, but is open-minded regarding various other candidates."

DREW PEARSON SAYS: MRS. ROOSEVELT CHOSE TO PROTECT FDR'S CAREER RATHER THAN DIVORCE HIM: IT WAS LBJ NOT HHH WHO FLUCTUATED: HIGH SPEED TRAINS BEHIND SCHEDULE.
WASHINGTON — Mr. Henry Jay MacMillan of Wilmington, N.C., has thrown more light on the romance of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller, formerly Lucy Mercer, which Jonathan Daniels has so carefully documented in his latest book, "Washington Quadrille." Mr. MacMillan was associated with Elsie Cobb Wilson, who had previously told me something about her part in sidetracking a Roosevelt divorce.

"I did designing for Elsie Cobb Wilson from 1929 until the depression put an end to the big decorating jobs," writes Mr. MacMillan, referring to the Washington socialite who later married Gen. Louis Little of the U.S. Marine Corps.

"One evening at Mrs. Little's (Elsie Cobb Wilson) house in Georgetown, 3010 O St., she told me in great detail about the Mercer-Roosevelt affair."

"There are several points that have never been brought out as far as I know."

"Miss Mercer worked in Mrs. Wilson's shop at 1709 H St., N.W. When Mrs. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Cobb, died, Mrs. Wilson gave her lovely new clothes to Miss Mercer as she was going into mourning. It was amusing that Mrs. Wilson attributed much of Lucy Mercer's great social success to her own wardrobe."

"When FDR asked Eleanor to divorce him they arranged to meet on the neutral territory of Elsie Cobb Wilson's apartment at the Drake in New York."

"Roosevelt went to New York for the conference and when he returned by train in the early morning hours Mrs. Wilson met him at the station. Mrs. Wilson described to me dramatically how fatigued and dejected Roosevelt looked

The only footnote to history which might be added here is that although FDR won the reputation of being a great politician, Mrs. Roosevelt obviously had a better insight into politics.

HHH Hawk or Dove?
Vice President Humphrey has been criticized for fluctuating on the Vietnam war issue on the eve of the Democratic convention. The inside story is that he was merely reflecting President Johnson's backstage attitude.

At an Aug. 9th meeting at the LBJ ranch, the President held out the possibility that he might order a complete halt of the bombing. Humphrey went away cheered, and began taking a softer line. Meanwhile, the North Vietnamese representatives in Paris flatly refused to offer any sign that they would also de-escalate the fighting.

This angered the President. He then returned to his hard line against a bombing cessation. The unhappy Humphrey, caught in a dovish posture, had to maneuver back as gracefully as possible into a hawkish stance.

New Speed Trains
The "Claiborne Pell Special," the nickname given by Senate colleagues to the new fast-line between Boston and Washington proposed by Sen. Pell of Rhode Island, has run into all sorts of snafus.

It's expected that the first fast trains will start running between Boston and New York this fall, possibly in September. But the rest of the fast-line to Washington has been delayed, and it will be something of a miracle if the trains start operating a year from now.

These fast passenger trains are intended to relieve air traffic between Washington, New York and Boston, and are patterned after the fast trains which travel between Tokyo and Osaka, Japan. The Japanese trains reach a speed of around 150 miles an hour, and have cut in half the time of commuting along the Japanese industrial seaboard.

The trouble with the American experiment, however, is that it has been attempted at a cost of only $80 million and in one year's time; where as the Japanese spent $1,300,000,000 and planned their operation over a five-year period.

As a result, the American project has run into all sorts of headaches. In the first place, the Budd Company, which is manufacturing the cars, and the Penn Central Railroad, which is putting together the trains, divided the orders for the electrical work on the cars between General Electric and Westinghouse.

There are ten miles of wiring in each car, and the companies have followed different techniques in their electrical construction. This means that if a GE car and a Westinghouse car are shunted together to make up a train, the different wiring offers complications.

The speed of the trains has also presented problems. They have gone so fast on trial runs that the vacuum tends to suck out the windows of passing trains. On a recent trial run between Washington and Philadelphia, as the train approached a speed of 150 miles an hour a window broke open, the this automatically applied the brakes. In addition, the current is so powerful that it has a tendency to flow from one series of electrical cables to another, despite insulation.

The line from New York to Washington will be electrically operated, whereas the line from New York to Boston will be powered by turbojet airplane engines fueled by gasoline. These trains will be operated by the New Haven Railroad under a lease from the federal government which actually will own the rolling stock. The New Haven Railroad will merely act as the operator.

In order to facilitate quick discharge of passengers, platforms along the New Haven have been elevated parallel to the railroad cars. This, however, has caused problems. The heat from the turbojet engines is so intense that when the locomotive stands in close proximity to the platform it becomes overheated. As a result, blowers have to be attached to cool down the engine as it stops at a station.

Such are some of the vexations connected with fast rail transportation through the megalopolis extending from Boston to Washington. Despite these problems, the "Claiborne Pell Special" will probably start rolling between Boston and New York in late September.

Hard to Find a Winner

By PETER LISAGOR

CHICAGO — When the smoke lifted over the Chicago battlefield, it was hard to find a real winner at the 1968 Democratic Convention. The winners looked like losers and the losers like soreheads.

Hubert H. Humphrey's plight reminded one of a tale of the old west in which the lone survivor of an Indian ambush lay under his overturned wagon near his fallen wife and children, with an arrow through his chest. When the rescuers asked if it hurt, he muttered, "only when I laugh."

Through a miracle of good will and the breaks, the Democratic Presidential candidate might salvage something from the debris. But his prospects depend upon a conversion of the spirit found only in the old Cecil B. DeMille movies. The Democrats left this city as they came, in agony.

The city itself has been given a black eye before the nation and the world. Millions of Americans gaped as they watched the police clash with young militants in the streets, and London newspapers carried such headlines as "Police Horror in Chicago" and "Blood Flows in Chicago."

Every citizen is interested in safety and the prevention of accidents no matter how minor.

There — as a citizen, I would like to convey my observations to other citizens and our police department relative to safety of our juvenile citizens.

We take great pride in adopting laws to protect children and I am speaking here about the carelessness of young bicycle riders.

The other day I observed three youngsters on one bicycle—the driver, handlebars and rear rack. It happened in one-way traffic on Fair St. and other streets too numerous to mention. In some cases, they were going in the wrong direction on a one-way street. This places even a careful auto driver in jeopardy, and at the same time great danger to the bicycle operator.

I believe it's important to as Humphrey Wins." It was all so overdue and unnecessary.

Mayor Richard J. Daley had to know that this strike-criddled city was no place for a political convention at a time of inflamed emotions over Vietnam. President Johnson had to know it, too, but false pride and excessive vanity got in the way of reason. Everything that happened was forecast, and nobody lifted a finger, except the cops. Powerful men stood by powerlessly, and the whole sordid affair was allowed to unfold like a Greek tragedy.

If there was a bright note in the bawling and the brawling, it was that Chicago's Negroes chose to sit this one out. Their grievances were not spawned in Vietnam, despite the liberal claims that the war is responsible for all of the nation's problems, psychosomatic judgement that only Eugene McCarthy could make with such a glib certainty.

The antiwar demonstrators came to Chicago bent upon disruption. Their leaders exhorted them with obscenities issued through bullhorns in Grant Park into the early morning hours, and if nothing else they were guilty of disturbing the peace.

Television heightened the tension, of course, but Daley couldn't hang the main rap on it. It didn't equip the cops with truncheons, although it probably helped to inspire the nihilists in the crowd who wanted nothing more than to disparage the convention and destroy its credibility, as if it needed help in that direction.

It may be that like prize fights and wrestling matches, national conventions have become a creature and captive of TV. Perhaps they can be scaled down to size, say, one or two delegates from each state, and staged in TV studios in the future. For in their present form they have become a Roman circus, with the TV reporters engaged as virtual participants, as stars of the show, and that makes no sense at all.

In political terms, the saddest spectacle of all was one that didn't occur. A president of the United States was unable to come to a convalesce of his own party for fear of being demeaned. Lyndon Johnson has been heard to remark bitterly that the Kennedys own the Democratic Party, which is an exaggeration but which he and his Texas colleagues nevertheless believe devoutly. The elaborate cake prepared for his 60th birthday celebration last Tuesday went stale, like much else at the convention, and the sadness of this is that L.B.J. has a remarkable record as President. The war devoured him, and that strange personality which made him incapable of raising him above their fears prepared him for the feast.

And Hubert Humphrey? An essentially humane and happy man, he has the burden not only of a dubious legacy but of divorcing himself from the influence of the President. His loyalty will prevent him from a cheap disavowal of Vietnam. He is, as one observer noted, a man on a high wire in a high wind. And maybe, just maybe, the President can spread a net for him by managing events in a way that will settle the war. But first, Humphrey has a party to pitch up, and that will take more than the stickum of exhortation and good will.

Every citizen is interested in safety and the prevention of accidents no matter how minor.

There — as a citizen, I would like to convey my observations to other citizens and our police department relative to safety of our juvenile citizens.

We take great pride in adopting laws to protect children and I am speaking here about the carelessness of young bicycle riders.

The other day I observed three youngsters on one bicycle—the driver, handlebars and rear rack. It happened in one-way traffic on Fair St. and other streets too numerous to mention. In some cases, they were going in the wrong direction on a one-way street. This places even a careful auto driver in jeopardy, and at the same time great danger to the bicycle operator.

I believe it's important to teach our children to protect themselves when they are alone by observing all traffic rules, if no one responsible is there to guide them.

There is another item about safety that I desire to mention here—a cemetery is not the proper setting for a playground.

I speak specifically about the Albany Ave. Cemetery. The monuments have been there for many years. They are loose at the base and a child could be seriously hurt or fatally injured.

A child should be made to understand that when he obeys the law he is protecting himself and not to think because he is a minor he is exempt.

In closing, I'd like to mention about automobile drivers. Although the law stipulates one hand on the steering wheel is sufficient, I can't see how a driver can totally concentrate on the road and his driving when he has his right arm around his feminine passenger.

Sincerely yours
Edwin J. Higby

Reportedly there is much more than meets the eye in the denial of a new Republican Supreme Court judgeship to Ulster County.

The decision was made last Thursday night at a Kingston meeting of the seven-county GOP chairmen of the Third Judicial District.

In a seemingly magnanimous gesture, Albany County Republican boss Anthony Frangella did not seek a judgeship for his own county (which already has five) and urged the three available posts instead go to Columbia, Greene and Rensselaer counties.

BY DOING THIS Frangella, it is logical to assume, makes it appear as though no deals have been made and he in turn ingratiate himself to the three counties who will no doubt get their candidates on the ballot.

Frangella has also reportedly picked up the support of Schoharie County's Dwight Lane, who is reportedly put out with Ulster County and the 28th Congressional District for not allowing him to be a delegate to the National Convention.

That leaves Sullivan County who went along with the idea probably figuring that by not bucking the powers that be, it would stand a better chance the next time the candy was being passed around.

Why does Frangella want and need to win the favor of all these chairmen?

Well, it is thought that he has a most intense desire to become a member of the powerful Republican State Committee which has a big Sept. 5 meeting planned in New York City.

Only one man from the Third Judicial District can be on that 39-member committee and Frangella wants it to be him.

In order for him to attain the post, he has to have a majority endorsement of the seven county chairmen.

And, now he has it.

NOW, DESPITE Ulster County Judge John B. Sterley's reportedly tireless effort in Ulster's behalf, it seems not even reciprocity seems to work in his favor although Sterley's case was argued mainly on the basis of the court caseloads.

There is always the possibility, no matter how remote, that the Ulster GOP just might decide to support whomever the Democrats select as a candidate.

Ulster's candidate is Attorney Abraham Streifer, but that party's king-maker is also an Albany boss, Dan O'Connell and it is logical to assume he will make the choice.

If the local GOP did back a Democrat, there is no question the Republican candidate could be hurt at the polls because of Ulster's large bloc of voters compared to the smaller counties of the seven-county district.

Also, what Republican candidate would be willing to put up the $50,000 to $75,000 needed to run without the support of the Ulster GOP which has the third biggest vote of the district?

Alaska Has New Major Oil Field

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
OTTAWA, Ontario—Discovery of a major oil field in Alaska has stirred speculation about future markets for Canadian oil both in Canada and in the United States.

As of now there is a sort of gentleman's agreement between the two countries on a continental oil policy, under which oil producers in Alberta enjoy substantial markets in the United States, providing they don't compete too hard in areas served by American producers.

At the same time Canada's own "national oil policy" gives western Canadian producers the markets of central Canada, west of the Ottawa river valley, while reserving the districts east of that for offshore oil imported by ship into Montreal during the summer and by pipeline through New England the year-round.

Much interest therefore attaches to how the owners of the new Alaska oil finds get their products to market. If they move it by pipeline the easiest way is by a long line east of the Rocky Mountains.

That would parallel the present flow of Canadian oil into the U.S. midwest. If they move it by short pipeline to the tanks on Alaska's Pacific coast the flow would go into the far western U.S. states in which Canadian oil doesn't yet compete.

The Alaska discovery has also sparked a rash of applications for exploration permits in Northwestern Canada, especially in the Mackenzie river delta, the Arctic islands and the offshore regions adjoining these areas.

The Alaskan find is on the northern slope of the state about 200 miles west of the Canadian border. The same geological formations are believed to extend well to the east and to the north. Bitumen sands similar to those found in Alaska lie on the surface of Melville Island 700 miles to the northeast.

Even before the Alaskan find exploration rights on large belts of the Canadian Arctic have been taken up by Canadian and international oil companies. The government has gone into partnership with a group of private companies in a company called Panarctic Oils Limited which is now embarked on a $20 million three-year program on the Arctic islands.

This Canadian region is even more remote from oil markets than is the north slope of Alaska and big questions arise about how the oil could be marketed if it is found. The most novel development on this score is the building of a fleet of submarine tankers. They would travel under the Arctic ice the year round and perhaps deliver oil to Europe.

The Gallup Report LBJ's Popularity Rating Declines to New Low

By GEORGE GALLUP
Copyright, 1968, American Institute of Public Opinion. All rights reserved. Reproduction in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with written consent of the copyright holders.

PRINCETON, N.J., Sept. 3 — President Johnson's popularity rating has declined to one of the lowest points recorded in his administration. The latest sampling of the U.S. public shows that 35 per cent approve of the way he is handling his job, 52 per cent disapprove. The previous low point was 36 per cent in late March of this year.

President Johnson's popularity has been highly correlated with the public's attitudes toward the war in Vietnam. As the unpopularity of the conflict has grown, the President's rating has declined.

Another President — Harry Truman — found that a stalemate war in Southeast Asia had a powerful impact on his popularity. Five months before the end of his term of office in 1952, and at the beginning of the presidential race that election year, his popularity dropped to 32 per cent.

President Johnson's popularity has followed the same course as a growing number of persons in the United States believe it was a mistake to become involved with troops in Vietnam.

Feel War a Mistake
The first test of probing this aspect of the public's attitude toward Vietnam was undertaken in August, 1965. It showed only 24 per cent disapproving of America's intervention with troops. Three years later that figure has reached 53 per cent.

During this period of time the President's popularity has slipped from 65 per cent in August, 1965, to the present figure of 35 per cent.

President Johnson's popularity took sharp upturns when the public thought that peace efforts might succeed. The same proved to be the case when President Truman was in office. When truce began in Korea he recouped some of his lost popularity. But when these talks bogged down — as the American public believes the Paris talks have — his popularity sagged again.

Peace Could Improve Humphrey's Position

These facts give weight to the view that any brightening of prospects for peace not only will change attitudes toward President Johnson but will affect greatly Hubert Humphrey's chances to win in November.

Richard Nixon clearly has the advantage on the war issue, as reported earlier. When asked which man — Nixon or Humphrey — can deal better with Vietnam, the voters said Nixon by a 2-to-1 margin over the Vice President.

Following is the question regularly asked to gauge the popularity of the incumbent president:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Johnson is handling his job as President?"

Czechs Will Get Soviet Loan

By DONALD R. SHANOR
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service

PRAGUE — Czechoslovakia is expected to get a substantial loan from the Soviet Union as part settlement of the current crisis between the two countries.

Nothing has been announced by either government, but the pattern of previous Soviet loans to its allies and satellites makes the loan seem likely.

It is ironic that the money denied Alexander Dubcek's reform government during the last few months, when it was trying to modernize its economy, will be given to a beaten and occupied Czechoslovakia as a kind of consolation prize.

A large part of whatever money is granted will have to go to pay for the enormous damage to roads, buildings and fields caused by the 250,000 occupation troops.

No estimates have yet been made, but the nation has 42,000 miles of major highways, and from the reports of travelers coming from every direction, the majority of those miles are ripped up or damaged by tank treads, crop damage also is extensive.

In Prague, thousands of bullet holes, burned-out apartment buildings near the radio station, and an entire narrow street of smashed cars give an idea of the damage. Owners of the cars, parked on that particular downtown street, because they knew it was too narrow for the tanks. The tanks went down it anyway.

A Soviet loan to get the economy going again would be in accord with Moscow's foreign aid practice of the last two decades, in which most major grants were made either as bribes to keep satellites loyal or to buy back the favor of those crushed.

And, now he has it.

NOW, DESPITE Ulster County Judge John B. Sterley's reportedly tireless effort in Ulster's behalf, it seems not even reciprocity seems to work in his favor although Sterley's case was argued mainly on the basis of the court caseloads.

There is always the possibility, no matter how remote, that the Ulster GOP just might decide to support whomever the Democrats select as a candidate.

Ulster's candidate is Attorney Abraham Streifer, but that party's king-maker is also an Albany boss, Dan O'Connell and it is logical to assume he will make the choice.

If the local GOP did back a Democrat, there is no question the Republican candidate could be hurt at the polls because of Ulster's large bloc of voters compared to the smaller counties of the seven-county district.

Also, what Republican candidate would be willing to put up the $50,000 to $75,000 needed to run without the support of the Ulster GOP which has the third biggest vote of the district?

The Gallup Report LBJ's Popularity Rating Declines to New Low

PRINCETON, N.J., Sept. 3 — President Johnson's popularity rating has declined to one of the lowest points recorded in his administration. The latest sampling of the U.S. public shows that 35 per cent approve of the way he is handling his job, 52 per cent disapprove. The previous low point was 36 per cent in late March of this year.

President Johnson's popularity has been highly correlated with the public's attitudes toward the war in Vietnam. As the unpopularity of the conflict has grown, the President's rating has declined.

Another President — Harry Truman — found that a stalemate war in Southeast Asia had a powerful impact on his popularity. Five months before the end of his term of office in 1952, and at the beginning of the presidential race that election year, his popularity dropped to 32 per cent.

President Johnson's popularity has followed the same course as a growing number of persons in the United States believe it was a mistake to become involved with troops in Vietnam.

Feel War a Mistake
The first test of probing this aspect of the public's attitude toward Vietnam was undertaken in August, 1965. It showed only 24 per cent disapproving of America's intervention with troops. Three years later that figure has reached 53 per cent.

During this period of time the President's popularity has slipped from 65 per cent in August, 1965, to the present figure of 35 per cent.

President Johnson's popularity took sharp upturns when the public thought that peace efforts might succeed. The same proved to be the case when President Truman was in office. When truce began in Korea he recouped some of his lost popularity. But when these talks bogged down — as the American public believes the Paris talks have — his popularity sagged again.

Peace Could Improve Humphrey's Position
These facts give weight to the view that any brightening of prospects for peace not only will change attitudes toward President Johnson but will affect greatly Hubert Humphrey's chances to win in November.

Richard Nixon clearly has the advantage on the war issue, as reported earlier. When asked which man — Nixon or Humphrey — can deal better with Vietnam, the voters said Nixon by a 2-to-1 margin over the Vice President.

Following is the question regularly asked to gauge the popularity of the incumbent president:

"Do you approve or disapprove of the way Johnson is handling his job as President?"

Czechs Will Get Soviet Loan

By DONALD R. SHANOR
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
PRAGUE — Czechoslovakia is expected to get a substantial loan from the Soviet Union as part settlement of the current crisis between the two countries.

Nothing has been announced by either government, but the pattern of previous Soviet loans to its allies and satellites makes the loan seem likely.

It is ironic that the money denied Alexander Dubcek's reform government during the last few months, when it was trying to modernize its economy, will be given to a beaten and occupied Czechoslovakia as a kind of consolation prize.

A large part of whatever money is granted will have to go to pay for the enormous damage to roads, buildings and fields caused by the 250,000 occupation troops.

No estimates have yet been made, but the nation has 42,000 miles of major highways, and from the reports of travelers coming from every direction, the majority of those miles are ripped up or damaged by tank treads, crop damage also is extensive.

In Prague, thousands of bullet holes, burned-out apartment buildings near the radio station, and an entire narrow street of smashed cars give an idea of the damage. Owners of the cars, parked on that particular downtown street, because they knew it was too narrow for the tanks. The tanks went down it anyway.

A Soviet loan to get the economy going again would be in accord with Moscow's foreign aid practice of the last two decades, in which most major grants were made either as bribes to keep satellites loyal or to buy back the favor of those crushed.

Alaska Has New Major Oil Field

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Chicago Daily News Foreign Service
OTTAWA, Ontario—Discovery of a major oil field in Alaska has stirred speculation about future markets for Canadian oil both in Canada and in the United States.

As of now there is a sort of gentleman's agreement between the two countries on a continental oil policy, under which oil producers in Alberta enjoy substantial markets in the United States, providing they don't compete too hard in areas served by American producers.

At the same time Canada's own "national oil policy" gives western Canadian producers the markets of central Canada, west of the Ottawa river valley, while reserving the districts east of that for offshore oil imported by ship into Montreal during the summer and by pipeline through New England the year-round.

Much interest therefore attaches to how the owners of the new Alaska oil finds get their products to market. If they move it by pipeline the easiest way is by a long line east of the Rocky Mountains.

That would parallel the present flow of Canadian oil into the U.S. midwest. If they move it by short pipeline to the tanks on Alaska's Pacific coast the flow would go into the far western U.S. states in which Canadian oil doesn't yet compete.

The Alaska discovery has also sparked a rash of applications for exploration permits in Northwestern Canada, especially in the Mackenzie river delta, the Arctic islands and the offshore regions adjoining these areas. The Alaskan find is on the northern slope of the state about 200 miles west of the Canadian border. The same geological formations are believed to extend well to the east and to the north. Bitumen sands similar to those found in Alaska lie on the surface of Melville Island 700 miles to the northeast.

Even before the Alaskan find exploration rights on large belts of the Canadian Arctic have been taken up by Canadian and international oil companies. The government has gone into partnership with a group of private companies in a company called Panarctic Oils Limited which is now embarked on a $20 million three-year program on the Arctic islands.

This Canadian region is even more remote from oil markets than is the north slope of Alaska and big questions arise about how the oil could be marketed if it is found. The most novel development on this score is the building of a fleet of submarine tankers. They would travel under the Arctic ice the year round and perhaps deliver oil to Europe.

44-Inch Rattler Killed In Paltz-Rosendale Area

A 44-inch timber rattlesnake was found and killed Monday on a dirt road between the Bonticou area of New Paltz and the Village of Rosendale.

John Dailey, and sons Dean, 16, Robert, 10, and Pat, 8, all of 100 Dug Road, New Paltz, killed the snake with a large rock.

Had 16 Rattles

The snake had 16 rattles at the end of its body and weighed about two pounds.

The rattler was found coiled on a dirt road some five miles from the abandoned railroad station in Rosendale.

An official at the New York

State Conservation Department's New Paltz office claimed that the appearance of the rattlesnake was not at all unusual.

"There are hundreds and hundreds of rattlers and copperheads all over Ulster," the spokesman said, but he added that it was unusual for a snake to bite a human.

The official declared that most snakes, whether rattlers, copperheads, or non-poison varieties, will "run away" from humans.

"For the most part," the official said, "it is physical contact with the snake that will cause a bite."

He said, however, that a bite from a rattlesnake was much more dangerous than a bite from a copperhead.

"Copperheads aren't that deadly. A person bit by a copperhead may be sick for a few days, but that's about all," he said.

As for rattlers, the spokesman claimed that hospitals and doctors in the area have the serum to treat poisonous snake bites.

The Conservation Department official further stated that most snakes are now seeking the safety of rock ledges and crevices and that they will be out of sight when the first frost occurs.

Hydrant Caps Taken

Rosendale Fire Chief Albert Morrell reported to the County Sheriff's Department that 9 caps were taken off fire hydrants in the village. He told Deputies Harold Dohnken and Roger Lapp that the caps were discovered missing at about 9 p. m. Tuesday. County Investigator Harold T. Bowers is continuing the investigation.

Rosendale Clinic

A Child Health Conference, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, will be held at the Town Clerk's Office, Rosendale on Sept. 12 from 1 to 3 p. m.

In order to avoid overcrowded clinics, an appointment is required for admission to these clinics. Appointments may be made with the local public health nurse at the Marletown Health Center between 9 and 10 a. m., Monday through Friday.

Fish Report—U.S. Force Is In Readiness

Hamilton Fish, issuing his first report from Vietnam, Tuesday morning Saigon time, revealed that U. S. forces are bracing for the third enemy offensive.

Describing the city, Fish said, "Saigon is a capital going about its daily business but war's evidence is omnipresent." He noted that armed soldiers stood at every corner, sandbags and barbed wire lacing all major buildings.

Fish, who arrived in Vietnam Aug. 31, stated that he visited the 3rd Field Hospital Sunday, a compound serving Corps III and IV or 40 per cent of South Vietnam. He disclosed that doctors are under orders to keep patient occupancy below 65 per cent in lieu of the Communist push. The hospital contains 340 beds, Fish added.

At a defectors' camp in South Vietnam named "Open Arms," Fish spoke at length to a former North Vietnamese officer. Fish, the Republican congressional candidate, will return next week via Thailand and Israel.

Episcopal Bishop Lichtenberger Dies

BETHEL, Vt. (AP) — The retired presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church of the United States, the Rt. Rev. Arthur C. Lichtenberger, died at his summer home Tuesday. He was 68. He was an early fighter of racial discrimination, and he believed in stressing the similarities, not the differences, of Christian churches. He was elected 21st presiding bishop on Oct. 11, 1958.

Bishop Lichtenberger served until 1964 when he was forced to resign because of Parkinson's disease which had affected his speech. Since that time he had been a visiting professor at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

In 1961 he met with Pope John XXIII for the first such meeting between a Pope and presiding bishop of the U.S. Protestant Episcopal Church. Bishop Lichtenberger said later, "We did not discuss our differences. That would have been quite beside the point."

Transferred

Injured in a two-car collision on Route 28 at the intersection of the Glenford Road on Sunday, William H. Lewis Sr., 47, of 85 Presidential Boulevard, Paterson, N. J., was transferred Tuesday afternoon from Kingsport Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson. Lewis suffered a fractured left femur and other injuries. En route from New Jersey to Kingston, the ambulance crew came upon an accident on the Thruway three miles north of New Paltz. They took Fotias Katsanas, 43, of 507 West 52nd Street, New York City, to Kingsport Hospital. The man suffered facial lacerations and possible nose fracture.

He took a strong stand on racial issues.

"A class church is not a church," he said. "Only when the church is serving all people, when it appeals to everyone, is it doing what it should. This is the kind of church we must be, are becoming, and in many areas already are."

Bishop Lichtenberger was a relaxed and approachable person who became riled on occasion. He was known to murmur a resigned "oh, hell" when an impatient motorist sounded a horn behind him when traffic ahead was blocked.

He was born in Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 8, 1900. His father was a grocer and, for a time, city council president. The future bishop played baseball and football in high school and entered the University of Wisconsin intending to become a lawyer.

Dissatisfied, he quit college to work for the Waterloo, Iowa, Telephone Co. He became interested in the ministry through his future father-in-law, the Rev. Martin Tate, a Waterloo Episcopal clergyman.

Lichtenberger was graduated from Kenyon College in Ohio and the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. He married Florence Tate midway through his studies at Cambridge.

They went to China where he taught at St. Paul's Divinity School in Wuchang. He was ordained there in 1926. He later served parishes in the Midwest, became rector of St. Paul's Church in Brookline, Mass., in 1933 and dean of Trinity Cathedral in Newark, N.J., in 1941.

He served as bishop of the diocese of Missouri from 1951 until elected as presiding bishop. He wrote several books including "Day is at Hand."

To Head UMC

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Lewis W. Blumie, a Pennsylvania college dean, will become president of the State University's Upstate Medical Center at Syracuse on Jan. 1 it was announced today.

Ground School Sessions Set In Dutchess

A private pilots' ground school will start at Dutchess Community College next week.

Beginning September 6, Robert L. Hamilton, a certified flight instructor, will offer a 15-week course to prepare students for the private pilots' written examination given by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Topics will include meteorology, navigation, federal aviation regulations, and principles of flight.

Classes will be held on the DCC campus Fridays from 7 to 10 p. m.

The non-credit course is for beginning students as well as for experienced pilots who wish to start flying again.

Hamilton, a commercial pilot, has taught flying at the Thor Solberg International Flight Training Center and the Morris Knolls Regional Adult School, both in New Jersey.

Ellenville Seeks New Manager; May Pick Sept. 9

Ellenville is now without a village manager.

The past manager, John Geist, presented his resignation to the village board last month and he left the post yesterday.

Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman that the board is considering another applicant for the position but that there was a great demand for such people.

Should a decision be made, the announcement will be made at a meeting of the board rescheduled, because of the Labor Day holiday, for Sept. 9.

The manager is the chief administrative officer for the village. He serves in the appointed position at the pleasure of the board and is answerable only to them.

Mayor Gives Up

'Great Smokescreen'

Machione termed the whole city hall downtown issue "a great smokescreen." "Downtown is being neglected. These plans were never meant to go through," he said. He added that he had "personally meeting" at an urban renewal project was being held up until the city made a decision on city hall downtown.

Fisher said that a leading grocery chain was "denied permission to build in Broadway East by the Urban Renewal Agency."

Tongue was once again called and said that no one had ever been denied permission to build in Broadway East.

Fisher also asked for consideration of the Mayor's plan to purchase Central Hudson property for city hall facilities. Speaking on the same subject, Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) said he had toured the Central Hudson facility on Broadway with company officials and said that when he had mentioned the mayor's offer of $125,000 for the building the officials were "shocked."

Other Action

In other Council action, the aldermen unanimously approved a motion by Epstein to ask the State Highway Department to hold a public hearing in Kingston on the proposed Ulster Arterial which will run through Broadway East after it crosses the Rondout Creek over a new proposed bridge.

Harry M. Thayer of Mt. View Avenue addressed the Council and suggested registration of bicycles for city youths. According to the plan the program would be administered by the schools and police department. That was referred to committee for further study.

The firm of Ronder and Ronder, certified public accountants, was hired to audit the city treasurer's books at a cost of $4,500.

The aldermen gave approval to an urban renewal request to buy a section of Catherine Street for a dollar. There are 3.8 acres involved.

Also approved was a resolution sponsored by Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-First Ward) to extend city bus service to the John A. Coleman High School on Hurley Avenue.

Note $292,965 Ulster Welfare For September

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt recently announced the distribution of $292,965 for September to the social service district of Ulster County.

This money is part of the $32,969,900 distribution to the 63 social service districts of New York State. These monies represent approximately 80 per cent of the federal and state share of the anticipated welfare expenditures by the localities.

The federal share of these advances amounts to $30,866,000.

In addition, the comptroller announced the distribution of $48,454,100 to the City of New York for the first half of September. A similar payment of anticipated welfare expenditures to New York City will be made on Sept. 15, as Federal regulation requires semi-monthly payments to New York City.

'Sermon' Falls On Deaf Ears—Return Patient

Two patrolmen were cruising along Wall Street at 5:30 a. m. today when they spotted a young man acting suspiciously. They stopped to question the pedestrian and noticed he was carrying a bible.

Police said the man wanted to preach a sermon to the officers, who took the stranger to police headquarters. It was subsequently learned the man was Michael Earl, 22, a patient at Hudson River State Hospital who had been reported missing from the institution in Poughkeepsie since 4 p. m. yesterday.

Earl, whose home is in Albany, was detained by police until the arrival of attendants from the hospital, who returned the patient.

Dutchess Fire Causes Water Damage at IBM

HOPEWELL JUNCTION, N. Y. (UPI) — Fire early today destroyed a dry cleaning establishment and damaged two other businesses in a shopping plaza on Route 82 west of this Dutchess County community.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started above a gas-operated dryer in the Norge cleaning place. Buildings on each side-one housing an IBM complex, the other a diner-were damaged by smoke and water.

Recover Body From River

Dutchess County deputy sheriffs at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, recovered the body of George W. Teator, 27, of 35 West Market Street, Red Hook, who drowned Saturday night in the Hudson River off the state hospital dock just north of Poughkeepsie.

Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said Deputies John Mancuso and Frank Sartori were in a police boat when they saw the body near the surface of the water, and they brought it to shore.

Teator and his wife were with others at the Hudson River State Hospital club near the dock, when he saw a man fall from a boat about 80 feet off shore. Teator, authorities said, thought the man was in trouble and he swam to his aid. He was close to the boat when he disappeared.

The man managed to climb back into his boat and was unhurt.

An autopsy was ordered by Dutchess County Medical Examiner Dr. Chester H. Golding. The sheriff's deputies with the aid of Scuba divers, had conducted search for the body daily since the drowning mishap.

Teator was employed as an attendant at the state hospital.

Rosendale Clinic

A Child Health Conference, conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, will be held at the Town Clerk's Office, Rosendale on Sept. 12 from 1 to 3 p. m.

In order to avoid overcrowded clinics, an appointment is required for admission to these clinics. Appointments may be made with the local public health nurse at the Marletown Health Center between 9 and 10 a. m., Monday through Friday.

Fish Report—U.S. Force Is In Readiness

Hamilton Fish, issuing his first report from Vietnam, Tuesday morning Saigon time, revealed that U. S. forces are bracing for the third enemy offensive.

Describing the city, Fish said, "Saigon is a capital going about its daily business but war's evidence is omnipresent." He noted that armed soldiers stood at every corner, sandbags and barbed wire lacing all major buildings.

Fish, who arrived in Vietnam Aug. 31, stated that he visited the 3rd Field Hospital Sunday, a compound serving Corps III and IV or 40 per cent of South Vietnam. He disclosed that doctors are under orders to keep patient occupancy below 65 per cent in lieu of the Communist push. The hospital contains 340 beds, Fish added.

At a defectors' camp in South Vietnam named "Open Arms," Fish spoke at length to a former North Vietnamese officer. Fish, the Republican congressional candidate, will return next week via Thailand and Israel.

Episcopal Bishop Lichtenberger Dies

BETHEL, Vt. (AP) — The retired presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church of the United States, the Rt. Rev. Arthur C. Lichtenberger, died at his summer home Tuesday. He was 68. He was an early fighter of racial discrimination, and he believed in stressing the similarities, not the differences, of Christian churches. He was elected 21st presiding bishop on Oct. 11, 1958.

Bishop Lichtenberger served until 1964 when he was forced to resign because of Parkinson's disease which had affected his speech. Since that time he had been a visiting professor at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass.

Transferred

Injured in a two-car collision on Route 28 at the intersection of the Glenford Road on Sunday, William H. Lewis Sr., 47, of 85 Presidential Boulevard, Paterson, N. J., was transferred Tuesday afternoon from Kings- ton Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance to St. Joseph's Hospital in Paterson. Lewis suffered a fractured left femur and other injuries. En route from New Jersey to Kingston, the ambulance crew came upon an accident on the Thruway three miles north of New Paltz. They took Fotias Katsanas, 43, of 507 West 52nd Street, New York City, to Kings- ton Hospital. The man suffered facial lacerations and possible nose fracture.

He took a strong stand on racial issues. "A class church is not a church," he said. "Only when the church is serving all people, when it appeals to everyone, is it doing what it should. This is the kind of church we must be, are becoming, and in many areas already are."

Bishop Lichtenberger was a relaxed and approachable person who became riled on occasion. He was known to murmur a resigned "oh, hell" when an impatient motorist sounded a horn behind him when traffic ahead was blocked.

He was born in Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 8, 1900. His father was a grocer and, for a time, city council president. The future bishop played baseball and football in high school and entered the University of Wisconsin intending to become a lawyer.

Dissatisfied, he quit college to work for the Waterloo, Iowa, Telephone Co. He became interested in the ministry through his future father-in-law, the Rev. Martin Tate, a Waterloo Episcopal clergyman.

Lichtenberger was graduated from Kenyon College in Ohio and the Episcopal Theological School in Cambridge. He married Florence Tate midway through his studies at Cambridge.

They went to China where he taught at St. Paul's Divinity School in Wuchang. He was ordained there in 1926. He later served parishes in the Midwest, became rector of St. Paul's Church in Brookline, Mass., in 1933 and dean of Trinity Cathedral in Newark, N.J., in 1941.

He served as bishop of the diocese of Missouri from 1951 until elected as presiding bishop. He wrote several books including "Day is at Hand."

To Head UMC

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Lewis W. Bluemle, a Pennsylvania college dean, will become president of the State University's Upstate Medical Center at Syracuse on Jan. 1 it was announced today.

Chancellor Samuel B. Gould reported that he had chosen Bluemle to succeed Dr. Carlyle Jacobsen, who retired from the $36,000-a-year post in June.

Ground School Sessions Set In Dutchess

A private pilots' ground school will start at Dutchess Community College next week.

Beginning September 6, Robert L. Hamilton, a certified flight instructor, will offer a 15-week course to prepare students for the private pilots' written examination given by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Topics will include meteorology, navigation, federal aviation regulations, and principles of flight.

Classes will be held on the DCC campus Fridays from 7 to 10 p. m.

The non-credit course is for beginning students as well as for experienced pilots who wish to start flying again.

Ellenville Seeks New Manager; May Pick Sept. 9

Ellenville is now without a village manager.

The past manager, John Geist, presented his resignation to the village board last month and he left the post yesterday.

Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman that the board is considering another applicant for the position but that there was a great demand for such people.

Should a decision be made, the announcement will be made at a meeting of the board rescheduled, because of the Labor Day holiday, for Sept. 9.

The manager is the chief administrative officer for the village. He serves in the appointed position at the pleasure of the board and is answerable only to them.

Mayor Gives Up

'Great Smokescreen' Machine termed the whole city hall Downtown issue "a great smokescreen." "Downtown is being neglected. These plans were never meant to go through," he said. He added that he had "personally heard" at an urban renewal meeting that the "whole Broadway East project was being held up until the city made a decision on city hall Downtown."

Fisher said that a leading grocery chain was "denied permission to build in Broadway East" by the Urban Renewal Agency.

Tongue was once again called and said that no one had ever been denied permission to build in Broadway East.

Fisher also asked for consideration of the Mayor's plan to purchase Central Hudson property for city hall facilities. Speaking on the same subject, Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) said he had toured the Central Hudson facility on Broadway with company officials and said that when he had mentioned the mayor's offer of $125,000 for the building the officials were "shocked."

Other Action The aldermen unanimously approved a motion by Epstein to ask the State Highway Department to hold a public hearing in Kingston on the proposed Ulster Arterial which will run through Broadway East after it crosses the Rondout Creek over a new proposed bridge.

Harry M. Thayer of Mt. View Avenue addressed the Council and suggested registration of bicycles for city youths. According to the plan the program would be administered by the schools and police department. That was referred to committee for further study.

The firm of Ronder and Ronder, certified public accountants, was hired to audit the city treasurer's books at a cost of $4,500.

The aldermen gave approval to an urban renewal request to buy a section of Catherine Street for a dollar. There are 3.8 acres involved.

Also approved was a resolution sponsored by Mrs. Florence S. Ludlow (D-First Ward) to extend city bus service to the John A. Coleman High School on Hurley Avenue.

Note $292,965 Ulster Welfare For September

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt recently announced the distribution of $292,965 for September to the social service district of Ulster County.

This money is part of the $32,969,900 distribution to the 63 social service districts of New York State. These monies represent approximately 80 per cent of the federal and state share of the anticipated welfare expenditures by the localities. The federal share of these advances amounts to $20,866,000.

In addition, the comptroller announced the distribution of $48,454,100 to the City of New York for the first half of September. A similar payment of anticipated welfare expenditures to New York City will be made on Sept. 15, as Federal regulation requires semi-monthly payments to New York City.

'Sermon' Falls On Deaf Ears—Return Patient

Two patrolmen were cruising along Wall Street at 5:30 a. m. today when they spotted a young man acting suspiciously. They stopped to question the pedestrian and noticed he was carrying a bible.

Police said the man wanted to preach a sermon to the officers, who took the stranger to police headquarters. It was subsequently learned the man was Michael Earl, 22, a patient at Hudson River State Hospital who had been reported missing from the institution in Poughkeepsie since 4 p. m. yesterday.

Earl, whose home is in Albany, was detained by police until the arrival of attendants from the hospital, who returned the patient.

Dutchess Fire Causes Water Damage at IBM

HOPEWELL JUNCTION, N. Y. (UPI) — Fire early today destroyed a dry cleaning establishment and damaged two other businesses in a shopping plaza on Route 82 west of this Dutchess County community.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started above a gas-operated dryer in the Norge cleaning place. Buildings on each side-one housing an IBM complex, the other a diner-were damaged by smoke and water.

Recover Body From River

Dutchess County deputy sheriffs at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday, recovered the body of George W. Teator, 27, of 35 West Market Street, Red Hook, who drowned Saturday night in the Hudson River off the state hospital dock just north of Poughkeepsie.

Sheriff Lawrence M. Quinlan said Deputies John Mancuso and Frank Sartori were in a police boat when they saw the body near the surface of the water, and they brought it to shore.

Teator and his wife were with others at the Hudson River State Hospital dock near the dock, when he saw a man fall from a boat about 80 feet off shore. Teator, authorities said, thought the man was in trouble and he swam to his aid. He was close to the boat when he disappeared.

The man managed to climb back into his boat and was unhurt.

An autopsy was ordered by Dutchess County Medical Examiner Dr. Chester H. Golding. The sheriff's deputies with the aid of Scuba divers, had conducted search for the body daily since the drowning mishap.

Teator was employed as an attendant at the state hospital.

Britts Correction The price of new embroidered Brookdale shirts in the Britts' advertisement appearing in Tuesday's Freeman should have read $6.00.

Memoriam In memoriam of Francis X. Walsh.

Charge Army With Inept Action In Giving M-16 Rifle Contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate investigating subcommittee today charged the Army with "a most inept performance" in awarding contracts to accelerate production of the M16 rifle.

While it will not attempt to undo decisions already taken, the subcommittee said, "this should be the last time that any defense agency conducts a procurement in such a backward, unreasonable manner."

The five-member unit of the Senate Armed Services Committee commented in a final report on a long investigation of Army contract awards for a sharp increase in M16 production to meet Vietnam needs.

The contracts were awarded to General Motors Corp. and Harrington & Richardson, without competitive bidding.

The subcommittee said two other companies—Maremont Corp. of Saco, Maine, and Cadillac Gage—were prepared to submit lower prices than those of the winners. The report summed up major findings with these comments: "The Army's method eliminated two companies before considering the prices they would and could have submitted. They could have been considered without delaying either contracts or production."

"General Motors was selected as one of the contractors without considering that their price was $20 million more than other producers found competent by the Army's own evaluation."

"The removal of price as a factor is not even plausibly supported by the reasons advanced by the Army."

The subcommittee said that General Motors and Harrington & Richardson had each received orders for 240,000 rifles at ceiling prices of $56.3 million and $41.5 million, respectively.

Maremont testified during hearings it was prepared to bid $36.5 million. The report cited testimony to a House subcommittee that Cadillac Gage had set a price of $36.8 million. The subcommittee renewed its objection to the Army's criticism of the existing Maremont test-firing range while approving a GM plan to build such a range in an open area above its proposed production line.

And it again held that the urgency advanced as a reason for abandoning competitive-bidding procedures should have required more consideration to having Colt Industries Inc., previously the sole supplier of the rifle, increase its production.

"The process of obtaining additional production of M16 rifles reflects no credit on those involved in supervising and directing the action. It has been, to say the least, a most inept performance," the subcommittee said.

"It would not now serve the national interest to call a halt to the production efforts already underway. Certainly, however, this should be the last time that any defense agency conducts a procurement in such an awkward, unreasonable manner."

Dyson Endorses Golf Group's Loan Efforts

John Dyson, Democratic candidate for Congress, today endorsed the effort of the Rondout Pool and Golf Association to obtain a loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

In a letter to Barthly Beach, state director of the FHA, the Millbrook publisher urged "most serious consideration" by that agency for the application from the Ulster County group.

The Rondout Pool and Golf Association has applied to the FHA for an assistance loan to aid their effort to build a recreation facility in Accord.

In his letter to Beach, Dyson declared, "The work of these Ulster County citizens is highly commendable. They seek to build an extensive and beautiful recreation area, complete with an indoor-outdoor pool, a club house, a golf course and eventually tennis courts. The facility will be open on a membership basis; however, membership is available to any resident of Ulster County on a non-discriminatory basis. When the area is completed it will be one of only five such county-wide facilities in New York State."

"If the rural areas are to remain attractive to both young and old, such efforts as those by the Rondout Pool and Golf Association, to truly realize the great potential of the rural areas, must, I strongly believe, be encouraged in every way."

Dyson concluded, "The Ulster County group has proven that private initiative can get the ball rolling. It is now time for the public sector to give the needed boost."

John Dyson, today also pledged support for the Greene County Industrial Development Corporation, and sought assistance for its application to the Small Business Administration. In a letter to Howard Samuels, head of the SBA, Dyson asked for "serious consideration" to the Greene County corporation's application for a development loan. Dyson invited Samuels to visit the area "to see for yourself the work

Charge Army With Inept Action In Giving M-16 Rifle Contracts

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate investigating subcommittee today charged the Army with "a most inept performance" in awarding contracts to accelerate production of the M16 rifle.

While it will not attempt to undo decisions already taken, the subcommittee said, "this should be the last time that any defense agency conducts a procurement in such a awkward, unreasonable manner."

The five-member unit of the Senate Armed Services Committee commented in a final report on a long investigation of Army contract awards for a sharp increase in M16 production to meet Vietnam needs.

The contracts were awarded to General Motors Corp. and Harrington & Richardson, without competitive bidding.

The subcommittee said two other companies—Maremont Corp. of Saco, Maine, and Cadillac Gage—were prepared to submit lower prices than those of the winners.

The report summed up major findings with these comments: "The Army's method eliminated two companies before considering the prices they would and could have submitted. They could have been considered without delaying either contracts or production."

"General Motors was selected as one of the contractors without considering that their price was $20 million more than other producers found competent by the Army's own evaluation."

"The removal of price as a factor is not even plausibly supported by the reasons advanced by the Army."

The subcommittee said that General Motors and Harrington & Richardson had each received orders for 240,000 rifles at ceiling prices of $56.3 million and $41.5 million, respectively.

Maremont testified during hearings it was prepared to bid $36.5 million. The report cited testimony to a House subcommittee that Cadillac Gage had set a price of $36.8 million.

The subcommittee renewed its objection to the Army's criticism of the existing Maremont test-firing range while approving a GM plan to build such a range in an open area above its proposed production line.

And it again held that the urgency advanced as a reason for abandoning competitive-bidding procedures should have required more consideration to having Colt Industries Inc., previously the sole supplier of the rifle, increase its production.

"The process of obtaining additional production of M16 rifles reflects no credit on those involved in supervising and directing the action. It has been, to say the least, a most inept performance," the subcommittee said.

"It would not now serve the national interest to call a halt to the production efforts already underway. 'Certainly, however, this should be the last time that any defense agency conducts a procurement in such an awkward, unreasonable manner.'"

Dyson Endorses Golf Group's Loan Efforts

John Dyson, Democratic candidate for Congress, today endorsed the effort of the Rondout Pool and Golf Association to obtain a loan from the Farmers Home Administration.

In a letter to Barthly Beach, state director of the FHA, the Millbrook publisher urged "most serious consideration" by that agency for the application from the Ulster County group.

The Rondout Pool and Golf Association has applied to the FHA for an assistance loan to aid their effort to build a recreation facility in Accord.

In his letter to Beach, Dyson declared, "The work of these Ulster County citizens is highly commendable. They seek to build an extensive and beautiful recreation area, complete with an indoor-outdoor pool, a club house, a golf course and eventually tennis courts. The facility will be open on a membership basis; however, membership is available to any resident of Ulster County on a non-discriminatory basis. When the area is completed it will be one of only five such county-wide facilities in New York State.

"If the rural areas are to remain attractive to both young and old, such efforts as those by the Rondout Pool and Golf Association, to truly realize the great potential of the rural areas, must, I strongly believe, be encouraged in every way."

Dyson concluded, "The Ulster County group has proven that private initiative can get the ball rolling. It is now time for the public sector to give the needed boost."

John Dyson, today also pledged support for the Greene County Industrial Development Corporation, and sought assistance for its application to the Small Business Administration. In a letter to Howard Samuels, head of the SBA, Dyson asked for "serious consideration" to the Greene County corporation's application for a development loan. Dyson invited Samuels to visit the area "to see for yourself the work

Introducing two great new economy cars: the 1969 Renault-16 Sedan-Wagon.

P.O.E. $2395*

You can own the Renault-16 for $2400.* A sedan you could buy for its looks alone. That becomes a rugged station wagon with a flick of the seats. It's already a three year old success in Europe and Canada.

Maybe because of its front wheel drive system, for safety in turning, traction, plus extra interior space. Maybe because of its eight way seating arrangement, for convenience in hauling everything from Cub Scouts to furniture. Or maybe because a lot of people couldn't decide between a sedan and a station wagon and decided on both. For the price of one.

Army Specialist Four Edward L. Anderson Jr., whose parents live at 60 Madison Avenue was named soldier of the month for Special Troops, Eighth U.S. Army Guard Company in Korea, July 26. A member of the ceremonial marching platoon of the company, Spec. Anderson was selected for his soldierly appearance, knowledge and performance of duties and military courtesy. Spec. Anderson entered the Army in September 1966 and completed basic training at Ft. Dix, N. J. Before arriving overseas he was stationed at Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md.

The 24-year-old soldier received a BA degree in English from State University of New York at Albany, in 1965.

Carey Anderson

Carey A. Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Anderson, Broad Street, West Hurley, a student at Georgia Military College, Milledgeville, Ga., completed the nation's only basic Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps summer camp at Ft. Benning, Ga. Upon completion of the advanced ROTC program and graduation from college, he is eligible to be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army. Cadet Anderson is a 1968 graduate of Ontario Central High School, Boiceville.

Barris Commissioned

Richard Barris of 37 Millers Lane was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Army artillery at ceremonies in Camp Smith, Peekskill, Aug. 16. Barris is attached to the Service Battery, 1st Battalion of the 156th Field Artillery which meets in Kingston at the New York State Armory on North Manor Avenue.

Harry Burkhardt

Harry W. Burkhardt III, 22, whose parents live on Route 2, New Paltz, was commissioned an Army second lieutenant after graduating from the Infantry Officer Candidate School, Ft. Benning, Ga., July 29. During the 25-week course, he was trained in leadership, tactics of small infantry units and use of infantry weapons. He also received instruction in map and aerial photograph reading, guerrilla warfare and counterinsurgency operations. Lt. Burkhardt was graduated from New Paltz Central High School in 1963 and received his BA degree in 1967 from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Delta Chi fraternities.

Introducing two great new economy cars: the 1969 Renault-16 Sedan-Wagon.

P.O.E. $2395*

You can own the Renault-16 for $2400. A sedan you could buy for its looks alone. That becomes a rugged station wagon with a flick of the seats. It's already a three year old success in Europe and Canada.

Maybe because of its front wheel drive system, for safety in turning, traction, plus extra interior space. Maybe because of its eight way seating arrangement, for convenience in hauling everything from Cub Scouts to furniture. Or maybe because a lot of people couldn't decide between a sedan and a station wagon and decided on both. For the price of one.

Sponsor Cooperation Called Key to Success of HRVC

The often-stated misconception about the Hudson River Valley Commission that the State agency is bent on stopping construction projects in the Hudson Valley is all wrong, its associate executive director said in reviewing the first full year of the Commission's formal project review function, completed at the beginning of August.

"The facts just can't support any such hypothesis," said Bruce E. Howlett. "There were 127 decisions reached by the Commission in that year, and 111 of these were approved. In some not approved, we made recommendations for change or modification, and subsequently they were approved."

The disapprovals — although the Commission itself does not ordinarily use that term, preferring rather to say it "withheld approval" of a project — were not made on haphazard grounds, said Frederick Elmiger, chief of project review.

Stay Within Mandate
"We must stay within our legislative mandate. We must render Commission decisions based on specific areas of involvement spelled out by the law. If a significant impairment cannot be demonstrated as a result of a proposed project, we are required to approve it."

"We can suggest modifications even when approving a project, and we regularly do," Elmiger pointed out. "Most sponsors welcome these suggestions, and the majority adopt many of them. It's not universal, but we cannot force anyone to do what we suggest. Nevertheless, our batting average is surprisingly high."

Only one sponsor out of all those with which the Commission was involved in its first year of formal project review refused point blank to consider Commission recommendations. "He figuratively thumbed his nose at us," Elmiger said sadly. "There was nothing we could do, and he didn't feel any responsibility beyond his own small project."

Most Responsible People
"Fortunately, an overwhelming majority of project sponsors are responsible people, interested not only in their one project at its one site, but interested, too, in the larger picture — their area as a whole, the Valley region, and not just for right now, but for the years ahead."

"It's the cooperation of sponsors that makes this job not only satisfying, but possible."

Approval is never withheld from a project until after a public hearing has been held and a further study made of its merits or disadvantages over those that first caused question over its approval, Howlett explained.

"In all, the Commission held 12 public hearings in this first year of project review — hearings after a determination had been made that a possible impairment might exist. Several other projects were scheduled to go to hearings, but their sponsors changed their minds and withdrew them when the Commission hearing was announced."

It is the weight of public attention and public opinion resulting from this attention that is the Commission's strongest tool, the State official said.

"One of our principle functions is to get people thinking about this Valley and its future," said Howlett. "Meetings and hearings do this, and so does action on these projects."

"The project review function also serves a long-range purpose as well as the obvious day-to-day one. The most important part of our change from the State Legislature is for the creation of a comprehensive plan a road map, if you will — for the Valley for the years ahead."

"Project review gives us a chance to know what is going on and to start shaping it somewhat right now. We don't have to wait for the comprehensive plan to take shape suggest ways of improving their projects. There have been instances in which sponsors have failed to submit even the simplest of plans until the very last minute. As a result, these are some of the projects that then have created problems and have come in for the greatest amount of criticism."

"The informal review period, which was created because our maximum 45-day review period is so short, gives us a chance to work closely — and confidentially — with sponsors and to reworking that would have eliminated many problems could not be made in advance," Howlett said. "Information that might have caused shifts in project locations or different ways of approaching problems could not be gotten to the parties involved."

The projects that have moved through the Commission's review procedure in the minimum amount of time — 15 days — and with the least amount of controversy have been those in which sponsors came into the Commission early and worked with the agency's professional staff.

The Demos of Georgia

The 'Underdog of All Underdogs'

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Georgia Democrats have divergent views on their party as a result of the Democratic National Convention, which threw out half its regular delegation because of its racial makeup and the manner in which it was selected.

"Right now, the Georgia Democratic party is the underdog of all underdogs. It's got a long way to go. I think it will survive, but things may have to get worse before they get better," said former Gov. Carl E. Sanders.

"The Georgia party is stronger than ever. I don't see what happened at the convention affecting the structure of the state party at all," said James Gray, state party chairman.

"I would hope we could rebuild the Democratic party so it has room for all groups, liberals and conservatives," said State Rep. Julian Bond.

The convention rejected half the regular delegation and seated half of a challenge group led by Bond—a move which has driven some conservatives out of the party, left most of the moderates angry and resentful, and created a polarization of party factions.

The effects of the credentials committee's action, which state party officials contend was politically motivated and resulted from a "double cross" by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey's forces, already are being felt.

Gray, who under party rules must certify all Democratic candidates, says he will make a determined attempt to keep electors for the national party nominees off the Georgia ballot.

"I'm not going to certify the national party electors," he said. "I'm going to call a meeting of the state executive committee and try to put up our own electors under the Democratic emblem.

"Now that the convention is over, they (national party leaders) have got to come back and do business with us," said Gray, who headed the Georgia Democrats for Goldwater in 1964. Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential candidate, carried the state in the first GOP victory since Reconstruction.

Gray's plan to keep the national nominees off the Georgia ballot already has touched off what some observers inside the party describe as the beginning of bitter infighting on whether to turn away from the national party.

Some moderates say they reluctantly went to Chicago with a delegation led by Gov. Lester Maddox, then stayed to ride out the storm and don't intend now to watch their efforts go down the drain.

And if Gray is successful in convincing the state executive committee to run a slate of independent electors, a legal fight is likely to ensue.

A list of avowed independent electors running under the Democratic emblem almost certainly would be challenged in the courts, by the group which challenged the delegation and which is now challenging the reapportionment of the state's national committeewoman and committeeman.

Even Maddox has expressed differences with Gray on the matter. Despite his announced plan to oppose the national ticket, Maddox says Georgians should be able to vote for it if they wish.

Some long-range effects of the convention defeat on the state party also are already evident. Party leaders and officials such as Sanders, Lt. Gov. George T. Smith and Comptroller Gen. James L. Bentley say publicly and others acknowledge privately, that the party's old method of selecting its executive committee and its delegation to national conventions is dead.

In the past, the incumbent governor has named all members of each convention delegation, and controlled all its votes under a unit rule.

He also has appointed all members of the executive committee, giving him virtually complete control over the party. Sanders, an almost certain candidate for governor again in 1970, is already publicly calling for a liberalization of party rules to allow more grass roots participation in party affairs.

"I don't say that the old method did not serve the party in the past, but now, for the sake of all Democrats, there will have to be some changes," he said.

Resnick Will Be Guest of Local Kiwanis

Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick will be guest speaker at the Sept. 9 meeting of the Kingston Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel. Ladies are invited.

At a recent meeting William J. Pearson, manager of the New York Telephone Company business office, outlined the aims and activities of the United Fund campaign for this year. The goal is $345,000. Pearson gave details of the drive and the benefits derived by the community.

Nicholas Teskovich reported he has a full committee for the pre-election pancake breakfast and Harold Macholdt reported on events at the division caucus held in Middletown recently.

Strassburg pie is pate de foie gras.

CLINTONDALE NEWS

CLINTONDALE — Clintondale Fire Department is one of 14 companies that will participate in the parade at Wallkill Saturday afternoon as the Wallkill department celebrates its 65th anniversary. Chief Harry Ronk will lead the contingent of marchers and one fire truck. The local firemen have engaged the Rainbow Drum Corps of Highland to play for them in the parade. There will be a service for worship at the Clintondale Friends Church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning with the Rev. Gerald Sutch occupying the pulpit and delivering the sermon. A number of families from here will attend the campout of the Huguenot Hobos, local chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Association to be held at the Whip-O-Will campsite near Cairo in Greene County on September 13, 14 and 15. Dr. Frieda Trainor who is on the staff of Goldwater Hospital in New York City spent the holiday weekend at her home on Tuckers Corners Road. Francis Gaffney, president of the Clintondale Fire Department was the presiding officer at the meeting held at the firehouse Tuesday night. Preliminary reports indicate that the recent three-night bazaar was a very successful event. Gaffney will appoint delegates to attend the meeting of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at Active Hose Company of Rosendale on Tuesday, Sept. 19. Mrs. William Minard and infant daughter, Jill Marie, have returned home from Vassar Hospital. The executive committee and officers of Clintondale Grange met Tuesday at the home of Andrew Montrola to discuss further steps in the selling of the Grange Hall and it was voted to retain Attorney William Gruner to represent the Grange in the matters. Bank appraisers will examine the building to establish the price. Mrs. Alida Smith, Clintondale, and Marion Smith of Gardiner spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Benton of Catskill. Mr. Benton is a former resident of Clintondale.

CLINTONDALE NEWS

CLINTONDALE — Clintondale Friends Church at 11 o'clock Sunday morning with the Rev. Gerald Sutch occupying the pulpit and delivering the sermon.

A number of families from here will attend the campout of the Huguenot Hobos, local chapter of the National Campers and Hikers Association to be held at the Whip-O-Will campsite near Cairo in Greene County on September 13, 14 and 15.

Dr. Frieda Trainor who is on the staff of Goldwater Hospital in New York City spent the holiday weekend at her home on Tuckers Corners Road.

Francis Gaffney, president of the Clintondale Fire Department was the presiding officer at the meeting held at the firehouse Tuesday night.

Preliminary reports indicate that the recent three-night bazaar was a very successful event. Gaffney will appoint delegates to attend the meeting of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at Active Hose Company of Rosendale on Tuesday, Sept. 19.

Mrs. William Minard and infant daughter, Jill Marie, have returned home from Vassar Hospital.

The executive committee and officers of Clintondale Grange met Tuesday at the home of Andrew Montrola to discuss further steps in the selling of the Grange Hall and it was voted to retain Attorney William Gruner to represent the Grange in the matters. Bank appraisers will examine the building to establish the price.

Mrs. Alida Smith, Clintondale, Mrs. Grace Bernard, Modena and Marion Smith of Gardiner spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Myron Benton of Catskill. Mr. Benton is a former resident of Clintondale.

Cyclists Hurt In Road Mishap

Two men were injured at 9:50 p. m. Monday when the motorcycle on which they were riding hit a curb on the Taconic Parkway 1.4 miles north of Nine Partners Road in the Town of Stanford.
Noel Wright, 25, of Hackensack, N. J., the operator, suffered a fractured left arm and bruises. A passenger, Ronald A. Chambers, 19, of Millinocket, Me., received abrasions of the left arm.
Rhinebeck troopers said the vehicle was slowing down to turn off the parkway when the front wheel hit a curb. The motorcycle overturned and both riders were ejected. They were taken to a local hospital for treatment.

New Building Concept Seen Boon to Housing

J. Paul Frampton, a licensed professional engineer from Highland, has come up with what he believes to be a method for constructing modern residential homes for low income families at costs far below those normally required to build, what often turn out to be, inferior structures.

Claiming that most low income housing units are no more than "shells" or "boxes," Frampton has proposed a method whereby structurally superior homes can be built in only a few days at decreased costs merely by combining all of the technological innovations that are now available to builders.

Frampton hopes to persuade officials in several Mid-Hudson Valley cities that his proposed method is workable and can be profitable. He states that, if his houses could be built on city property, they would provide added revenue as a result of being taxable items. He is expected to contact officials in both Kingston and Poughkeepsie in regards to his experimental project.

Frampton's idea is based on the use of plywood paneling for foundations, floors, walls and roofs. He claims that scientific tests have proven that plywood panels supported by regular two inch by four inch beams are structurally stronger than the conventional frame structures that are currently being used. His plan calls for injecting a foam insulating substance between the panels and coating the outer layers of the plywood with a vinyl substance. Together, these substances make the entire home virtually impervious to water and atmospheric conditions. The panels themselves are connected by the vinyl coating at the joints; eliminating nails, building paper and shingles and, consequently, reducing the cost of construction by as much as 50 per cent.

while making the home more attractive and sound. Frampton's homes are entirely electric. One small unit heats, cools and supplies electricity for the entire home without the use of pipes or air ducts. Baseboard heating, which Frampton calls an "obnoxious looking device," is eliminated. His plan is to pump air into a "plenum" in the attic area where it expands and heats itself and then seeps down into the home at a uniform and constant rate through ventilated tiles in the ceiling. Frampton said that none of the first builder to use all of these innovations at the same time in one single home. He has been used quite successfully by builders across the country. One example that Frampton mentioned was the Guggenheim Museum in New York City, which is entirely the reach of even the poorest family.

New Building Concept Seen Boon to Housing

J. Paul Frampton, a licensed professional engineer from Highland, has come up with what he believes to be a method for constructing modern residential homes for low income families at costs far below those normally required to build, what often turn out to be, inferior structures.

Claiming that most low income housing units are no more than "shells" or "boxes," Frampton has proposed a method whereby structurally superior homes can be built in only a few days at decreased costs merely by combining all of the technological innovations that are now available to builders.

Frampton hopes to persuade officials in several Mid-Hudson Valley cities that his proposed method is workable and can be profitable. He states that, if his houses could be built on city property, they would provide added revenue as a result of being taxable items. He is expected to contact officials in both Kingston and Poughkeepsie in regards to his experimental project.

Frampton's idea is based on the use of plywood paneling for foundations, floors, walls and roofs. He claims that scientific tests have proven that plywood panels supported by regular two inch by four inch beams are structurally stronger than the conventional frame structures that are currently being used. His plan calls for injecting a foam insulating substance between the panels and coating the outer layers of the plywood with a vinyl substance. Together, these substances make the entire home virtually impervious to water and atmospheric conditions. The panels themselves are connected by the vinyl coating at the joints, eliminating nails, building paper and shingles and, consequently, reducing the cost of construction by as much as 50 per cent.

while making the home more attractive and sound. Frampton's homes are entirely electric. One small unit heats, cools and supplies electricity for the entire home without the use of pipes or air ducts. Baseboard heating, which Frampton calls an "obnoxious looking device," is eliminated. His plan is to pump air into a "plenum" in the attic area where it expands and heats itself and then seeps coated on the outside by the family.

down into the home at a uniform and constant rate through ventilated tiles in the ceiling. Frampton said that none of his techniques are new and that all, at some time or another, have been used quite successfully by builders across the country. One example that he mentioned was the for the lower income earning groups at a cost that is within the reach of even the poorest family.

Delay in the Red China Test of ICBM Eases Urgency of U.S. Defense System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China is nearly a year late testing its first long-range missiles and Pentagon officials say the lag may allow the United States to put off starting a controversial defense system tailored to the Chinese threat.

"We don't see any evidence of Chinese preparations for an ICBM test," one official said.

Defense sources said the U.S. government has information that elements pushing Mao Tse Tung's cultural revolution have been harassing nuclear and missile scientists and managers.

For a long time, U.S. authorities felt that these elite specialists were exempted from attack as China placed an apparent top priority on developing an intercontinental ballistic missile arsenal.

Back in January 1967, then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara forecast to Congress that Red China might stage a long-range missile test before the end of 1967.

McNamara predicted last September that Red China would have "an initial intercontinental ballistic missile capability in the early 1970's."

With a slippage of nearly a year in testing the first Chinese ICBM, it is logical to assume that Red China might stage a full weapon system is lagging.

This, in turn, would seem to ease the urgency of going ahead with deployment soon of a U.S. system designed to guard the United States against a possible Chinese missile attack.

Officials said there has been some discussion in the Pentagon of whether or not the Sentinel antimissile system deployment should be stretched out.

There has been no change in the decision to go ahead with the $5-billion Sentinel, these officials said, but the possibility has been raised of deferring its start for some months.

The discussions have additional point at this time because the Defense Department is searching for ways to cut down on spending this fiscal year.

The Pentagon is under orders to come up with some $3 billion in spending reductions. The going has been slow.

A number of actions have been announced, but they add up to only about $500 million so far.

Viet Teenybopper—Tries for BB Look

SAIGON (AP) Vietnam's conservative elders are shocked. Saigon's intellectual community is in an uproar.

Despite the war, the rain and the weight of tradition, the "mini-jupe"—known most often as the miniskirt—has arrived.

Saigon has spawned a generation of teenyboppers who cavort on the rain-splashed city streets in mod attire. They add brilliant splashes of color to the drab, war-tinted thoroughfares.

But most Vietnamese males don't seem to approve. Expressing an Oriental distaste for exhibitionism, particularly when the prying eyes of foreigners are around, one writer to a Saigon newspaper said: "These children, these flowers would wilt without their marijuana. They are obscene."

Like many others, he yearns for the continued use of the ao dai, Vietnam's traditional garb that girls strolled in along the once-graceful French boulevards of Saigon and Hanoi. A long white or flowered silk skirt slit at each side revealed loose white silk trousers and met, at a tiny waist, a bodice with a high collar and long sleeves.

Nowadays, the young Vietnamese girl may have thighs tied up her calves, a tiny miniskirt hugged to her thighs with a low-slung leather belt, topped off by a tight sweater.

She will splash through the puddles on Tu Do St., tilting her heels at the U.S. military policemen inside the barbed wire of American billets, or giggling from a motorcycle as she roars past in traffic, the flash of a thigh visible.

The ao dai is still worn in Vietnam, particularly in the countryside, where even in the midst of war the village girls somehow manage to keep a white silk dress clean and pressed. In Saigon, too, a girl in a miniskirt can be seen sometimes walking beside her elder sister wearing the traditional garment.

The teenyboppers sometimes have to bear the ribaldry of Vietnamese soldiers on leave. "Chiu chiu?" they will shout at the girls. "Are you ready to play?" The girls, with a toss of their sometimes thigh length hair, flounce by.

Saigon newspapers have been taking notice of the miniskirted girls and attribute the fashion to French fashion magazines available on the local market.

A random survey of the miniskirts on an average Saigon street shows, however, that rather than being pot-smoking free lovers, the average Vietnamese teenybopper is just trying to look like Brigitte Bardot or Catherine Deneuve.

The traditional attitude to romance still survives. Daddy expects her home before curfew, and she is.

Apple Lovers Await Sept. 5 Opening Date

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — If that old health tip about an apple holds true — that day is about to start for McIntosh lovers.

The State Department of Agriculture and Markets, after an opinion survey of growers and other specialists — decided Sept. 5 would be the day some of the crop would be mature enough for market.

Incidentally, the department said its inspectors would "look with suspicion" on any apple offerings before the magic date. The dates for other major varieties included Sept. 16 for Cortlands and Sept. 27 for Delicious.

Delay in the Red China Test of ICBM Eases Urgency of U.S. Defense System

WASHINGTON (AP) — Red China is nearly a year late testing its first long-range missiles and Pentagon officials say the lag may allow the United States to put off starting a controversial defense system tailored to the Chinese threat.

"We don't see any evidence of Chinese preparations for an ICBM test," one official said. Defense sources said the U.S. government has information that elements pushing Mao Tse Tung's cultural revolution have been harassing nuclear and missile scientists and managers.

For a long time, U.S. authorities felt that these elite specialists were exempted from attack as China placed an apparent top priority on developing an intercontinental ballistic missile arsenal.

Back in January 1967, then Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara forecast to Congress that Red China might stage a long-range missile test before the end of 1967.

McNamara predicted last September that Red China would have "an initial intercontinental ballistic missile capability in the early 1970's."

With a slippage of nearly a year in testing the first Chinese ICBM, it is logical to assume that Red China might stage a full weapon system is lagging.

This, in turn, would seem to ease the urgency of going ahead with deployment soon of a U.S. system designed to guard the United States against a possible Chinese missile attack.

Officials said there has been some discussion in the Pentagon of whether or not the Sentinel antimissile system deployment should be stretched out.

There has been no change in the decision to go ahead with the $5-billion Sentinel, these officials said, but the possibility has been raised of deferring its start for some months.

The discussions have additional point at this time because the Defense Department is searching for ways to cut down on spending this fiscal year.

The Pentagon is under orders to come up with some $3 billion in spending reductions. The going has been slow.

A number of actions have been announced, but they add up to only about $500 million so far.

Viet Teenybopper—Tries for BB Look

SAIGON (AP) — Vietnam's conservative elders are shocked. Saigon's intellectual community is in an uproar.

Despite the war, the rain and the weight of tradition, the "mini-jupe"—known most often as the miniskirt—has arrived.

Saigon has spawned a generation of teenyboppers who cavort on the rain-splashed city streets in mod attire. They add brilliant splashes of color to the drab, war-tinted thoroughfares.

But most Vietnamese males don't seem to approve. Expressing an Oriental distaste for exhibitionism, particularly when the prying eyes of foreigners are around, one writer to a Saigon newspaper said: "These children, these flowers would wilt without their marijuana. They are obscene."

Like many others, he yearns for the continued use of the ao dai, Vietnam's traditional garb that girls strolled in along the once-graceful French boulevards of Saigon and Hanoi. A long white or flowered silk skirt slit at each side revealed loose white silk trousers and met, at a tiny waist, a bodice with a high collar and long sleeves.

Physical Exams Advised For the School Students

With the arrival of September and the sound of school bells again, the parent assembling pencils, books and stiff-starched frocks should also be thinking about a health check-up for the school-bound youngster, according to the Mid-Hudson Heart Association.

An examination now may detect some minor problem that could have become troublesome later. It could insure that the child goes to school in good health, and this, in turn, will allow the child to do his or her best work. Keeping healthy is the challenge.

One of the special hazards to which school age youngsters may be exposed is strep infection, which usually precedes rheumatic fever, which can lead to rheumatic heart disease. A strep infection—such as strep sore throat or scarlet fever—is contagious, while rheumatic fever is not, the Mid-Hudson Heart Association points out.

Prompt and thorough treatment of strep infections usually can prevent rheumatic fever, the Heart Association adds, and thus it is important that a physician gets to see the child early enough to control the infection before it can set off the rheumatic process.

Danger Signals

Parents and teachers are urged to look for these danger signals: poor appetite, failure to gain weight, pallor and fatigue, frequent colds and sore throats, unexplained nosebleeds, pains in arms, legs and joints, unusual restlessness or irritability, behavior or personality changes, and a fall off in school work by a good student.

Careful observation of the child is necessary for a few weeks after recovery from a strep infection, the Mid-Hudson Heart Association says, because there is a "silent" phase in the development of rheumatic fever, and one or more of the danger signals may reappear to warn of trouble.

The child who develops rheumatic fever does not necessarily suffer heart damage. Once recovered without heart damage, he will be placed on long-term medication that protects against repeated attacks, but he is not ill and should be permitted to take part in the normal school program, unless a physician orders a limit on activities.

Many children recover completely from rheumatic fever with little or no heart damage. In those who are left with rheumatic heart disease, the injury usually is the result of inflammation of either or both valves on the left side of the heart. In the healing process, scar tissue develops which prevents the proper opening and closing of the valve, and interferes with the normal flow of blood through the heart.

In some cases, injury to the heart does not become apparent until adolescence or young adulthood. Therefore, the Mid-Hudson Heart Association advises that children with a history of rheumatic fever be given regular physical examinations so that any developing heart disease can be detected.

Restaurateurs' Annual Bake Is Slated Sept. 10

"It looks like one of the finest in recent years," was the statement today of Robert Nuzzo, general chairman of this year's 19th annual clambake of the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association, Inc.

Nuzzo and the association's president, Eugene P. Whalen announced that the bake is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 10 at Max's Shady Lawn Hotel in Modena.

As in past years, the two pointed out, proceeds will help benefit various area charities.

The public is invited to this year's event again. Food will be served continuously starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continuing until 8. Dancing and entertainment also will be featured.

Reservations will close Friday, Sept. 6. Chairman Nuzzo stressed today.

Many children recover completely from rheumatic fever with little or no heart damage. In those who are left with rheumatic heart disease, the injury usually is the result of inflammation of either or both valves on the left side of the heart. In the healing process, scar tissue develops which prevents the proper opening and closing of the valve, and interferes with the normal flow of blood through the heart.

In some cases, injury to the heart does not become apparent until adolescence or young adulthood. Therefore, the Mid-Hudson Heart Association advises that children with a history of rheumatic fever be given regular physical examinations so that any developing heart disease can be detected.

Restaurateurs' Annual Bake Is Slated Sept. 10

"It looks like one of the finest in recent years," was the statement today of Robert Nuzzo, general chairman of this year's 19th annual clambake of the Ulster County Hotel and Restaurant Liquor Dealers Association, Inc.

Nuzzo and the association's president, Eugene P. Whalen announced that the bake is scheduled for Tuesday, Sept. 10 at Max's Shady Lawn Hotel in Modena.

As in past years, the two pointed out, proceeds will help benefit various area charities.

The public is invited to this year's event again. Food will be served continuously starting at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and continuing until 8. Dancing and entertainment also will be featured.

Reservations will close Friday, Sept. 6. Chairman Nuzzo stressed today.

Bronx Woman Is Charged In Dope Smuggling Try

A 30-year-old Bronx woman was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Fishkill State Police BCI officers at the Green Haven Prison in Stormville, after she was found in possession of dangerous drugs and implements used for administration of the drugs.

Investigator Joseph Culligan, who made the arrest with Investigator Michael McCauley, said Mrs. Elizabeth Martinez went to the prison to visit her husband, Joseph, an inmate. Culligan said the woman was a known addict and prison employee suspected something was wrong because of her actions.

Troopers were notified and an investigation got under way. Culligan reported a search of the woman disclosed 12 decks of heroin, a hypodermic needle, syringe, a cooking cap and other implements.

Mrs. Martinez was arrested on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs, promoting prison contraband, both felonies, and criminal possession of implements used for administration of drugs.

The accused woman was arraigned before a local justice and committed to the Dutchess County jail without bail pending further investigation. Troopers said the case will be presented to the grand jury in session by the office of District Attorney John R. Heilman Jr. A preliminary examination was deferred.

Newburgh Man Killed, Hit by Girder Load

EAST FISHKILL, N.Y. (UPI) — John Monnell, 48, of Newburgh was killed Tuesday when a crane apparently tipped over and he was hit by a load of steel girders at the IBM components division plant here, a plant spokesman said.

The accident occurred as the girders were being hoisted into place in the framework of an extension to the plant's main building, Monnell, a roofing company employee, was just leaving the building at the end of his shift.

Monnell lived at 648 Broadway.

Youth Charged In Car Rifling

Kingston police early today received a complaint that a youth was seen acting suspiciously near parked automobiles in the vicinity of Albany and Manor Avenues, and later an 18-year-old youth was taken into custody and charged with four counts of petit larceny.

Lawrence Wilson, of 63 Wrentham Street, was held for arraignment before City Judge Hubert A. Richter after police booked him at 2:50 a. m.

According to police several parked vehicles on Albany and South Manor Avenues, Ten Broeck and Wiltwyck Avenues had been ransacked. Owners of the cars rifled during the early morning hours were asked to call at police headquarters to identify the articles reportedly stolen from the cars.

Fire in Car

Kingston firemen were dispatched to Ferry Street at 12:03 a. m. today and on arrival they found fire in a 1963 car parked opposite the Miron Lumber Company. Firefighters from Cornell station extinguished the blaze under command of Captain Hugh Greer. The passenger area of the interior of the vehicle was completely gutted and other damage was caused to the car owned by Ronald Parker of 672 Broadway. All windows in the automobile were shattered. The cause of the fire was not determined.

LWV Reading Program of Voter Service

With national elections just eight weeks away, the League of Women Voters is gearing up for one of its major functions, with voter service information.

Members of the Saugerties, Woodstock, New Paltz and Kingston Leagues have jointly published a flyer entitled "Have You Registered?" which is packed with concise information about where, when, and how to register in order to be eligible to vote in November.

The pamphlet will be of particular value to those who have special registration problems such as the newly naturalized citizen or the new voter who has just recently turned 21.

There is also data on absentee registration, absentee voting, and registration procedure for those now in military service.

Town of Ulster Zoning Hearing Slated Tonight

One of three public informational meetings on a proposed zoning ordinance for the Town of Ulster will be held 7:30 o'clock tonight at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

It had been announced last week by Mrs. Doris E. Mulvin, chairman of the Town of Ulster Zoning Commission that copies of the proposed ordinance were available at the office of Supervisor Thaddeus Musial-kiewicz, 35 Vincent Street.

The Zoning Commission is conducting other informational meetings Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 7:30 p. m. in East Kingston Firehouse and Tuesday, Sept. 24 at 7:30 p. m. in Spring Lake Firehouse.

Plan Benefit

A public auction for the benefit of the Methodist Church of Shady will be held on the church grounds on Saturday, September 7, beginning at 2 p. m.

Rumor O'Connor May Quit Politics For State High Court Appointment

By C. J. SCHOENER

NEW YORK (AP) — The City's highest elected Democrat, Council President Frank D. O'Connor, is seriously considering leaving politics to take a State Supreme Court judgeship, it has been learned.

O'Connor, who tried unsuccessfully to unseat Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in 1966, has been offered one of the nine new Supreme Court positions allocated to Queens County, an aide said Tuesday.

It is expected that O'Connor would be endorsed by the Republican and Liberal parties as well as his own, making his nomination tantamount to election.

O'Connor, 58, has been considered a leading possibility for the Democratic mayoral nomination next year. He was elected to his present post in November 1965 for a four-year term.

O'Connor is expected to announce Thursday whether he will accept the offer for the post, Moses M. Weinstein, the Queens Democratic leader, confirmed the offer made to O'Connor.

Friday the Democrats will hold their judicial convention for the 11th Judicial District (Queens) and select nominees. There are few contests over the Supreme Court judgeships as major parties usually agree to endorse just one candidate per vacancy.

It is understood that O'Connor need only agree to receive the nomination in order to be named Friday.

He said Tuesday night he was interested in the post but added, "I haven't quite made up my mind."

The State Legislature created 125 new judgeships in the state last spring and designated 34 new Supreme Court judgeships for New York City.

If O'Connor accepts a judgeship, at $39,500 a year for a 14-year term, Majority Leader David Ross of the Bronx would believe the move would catapult him into a front-running position in line to succeed him as City Council president.

Ross, however, is also under nomination. Should Ross become council president, some observers believed the move would catapult him into a front-running position for the Democratic mayoral nomination.

Teachers Unit Sets Hearings On Certification 'Bottleneck'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Teachers Association will conduct a series of hearings throughout the state in an attempt to clear up what it terms the "certification bottleneck" for teachers.

Mrs. Catharine O'C. Barrett, the association's president, said Tuesday that educators in the state are "alarmed" by the growing number of uncertified teachers.

Last year, she said, about 15,000 uncertified instructors taught in the public schools of the state.

A spokesman for the certification section of the State Education Department, however, said the figure was "closer to 12,000" and involved more than just certification delays.

Another association spokesman, Leslie M. Lent, a member of the NYSTA board of directors, said that applications for certification have taken months—in some cases a year or more—for the state to process.

The association said it intends to compile a record of individual problems and suggestions to eliminate the bottleneck and propose corrective steps to the state.

The first of the hearings was scheduled for Sept. 20-21 at Hofstra University in Hempstead. Later hearings were set for Oct. 18-19 in Albany and Nov. 22-23 in Buffalo.

Boosts Service

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has increased service between the United States and the South Pacific from 10 to 16 flights per week in each direction, boosting the number of seats available each week from 1,350 to 2,160.

LWV Ready Program of Voter Service

With national elections just eight weeks away, the League of Women Voters is gearing up for one of its major functions, with voter service information.

Members of the Saugerties, Woodstock, New Paltz and Kingston Leagues have jointly published a flyer entitled "Have You Registered?" which is packed with concise information about where, when, and how to register in order to be eligible to vote in November.

The pamphlet will be of particular value to those who have special registration problems such as the newly naturalized citizen or the new voter who has just recently turned 21.

There is also data on absentee registration, absentee voting, and registration procedure for those now in military service.

Citizens new to Ulster County wishing to obtain copies will be helped by the section for distribution to its members dealing with registration for may contact Mrs. Bernard Paucitizens who have recently moved.

The flyer will be distributed without charge at local banks, post offices, libraries and by Welcome Wagon. Any organization.

Town of Ulster Zoning Hearing Slated Tonight

One of three public informational meetings on a proposed zoning ordinance for the Town of Ulster will be held 7:30 o'clock tonight at Lake Katrine Grange Hall.

It had been announced last week by Mrs. Doris E. Mulvin, chairman of the Town of Ulster Zoning Commission that copies of the proposed ordinance were available at the office of Supervisor Thaddeus Musiakiewicz, 35 Vincent Street.

The Zoning Commission is conducting other informational meetings Tuesday, Sept. 17 at 7:30 p. m. in East Kingston Firehouse and Tuesday, Sept. 24 at 7:30 p. m. in Spring Lake Firehouse.

Plan Benefit

A public auction for the benefit of the Methodist Church of Shady will be held on the church grounds on Saturday, September 7, beginning at 2 p. m.

Arthur MacDaniel is acting as chairman of the event.

Rumor O'Connor May Quit Politics For State High Court Appointment

By C. J. SCHOENER

NEW YORK (AP) — The City's highest elected Democrat, Council President Frank D. O'Connor, is seriously considering leaving politics to take a State Supreme Court judgeship, it has been learned.

O'Connor, who tried unsuccessfully to unseat Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in 1966, has been offered one of the nine new Supreme Court positions allocated to Queens County, an aide said Tuesday.

It is expected that O'Connor would be endorsed by the Republican and Liberal parties as well as his own, making his nomination tantamount to election.

O'Connor, 58, has been considered a leading possibility for the Democratic mayoral nomination next year. He was elected to his present post in November 1965 for a four-year term.

O'Connor is expected to announce Thursday whether he will accept the offer for the post. Moses M. Weinstein, the Queens Democratic leader, confirmed the offer made to O'Connor.

Friday the Democrats will hold their judicial convention for the 11th Judicial District (Queens) and select nominees. There are few contests over the Supreme Court judgeships as major parties usually agree to endorse just one candidate per vacancy.

It is understood that O'Connor need only agree to receive the nomination in order to be named Friday.

He said Tuesday night he was interested in the post but added, "I haven't quite made up my mind."

The State Legislature created 125 new judgeships in the state last spring and designated 34 new Supreme Court judgeships for New York City.

If O'Connor accepts a judgeship, at $39,500 a year for a 14-year term, Majority Leader David Ross of the Bronx would believe the move would catapult him into a front-running position for the Democratic mayoral race.

Ross, however, is also under nomination. He stood to be interested in and if both O'Connor and Ross were considered for one of the 12 new Supreme Court judgeships, there would be a scramble in the 1st Judicial District, covering Manhattan and the Bronx.

Teachers Unit Sets Hearings On Certification 'Bottleneck'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) —

The New York State Teachers Association will conduct a series of hearings throughout the state in an attempt to clear up what it terms the "certification bottleneck" for teachers.

Mrs. Catharine O'C. Barrett, the association's president, said Tuesday that educators in the state are "alarmed" by the growing number of uncertified teachers.

Last year, she said, about 15,000 uncertified instructors taught in the public schools of the state.

A spokesman for the certification section of the State Education Department, however, said the figure was "closer to 12,000" and involved more than just certification delays.

Another association spokesman, Leslie M. Lent, a member of the NYSTA board of directors, said that applications for certification have taken months—in some cases a year or more—for the state to process.

The association said it intends to compile a record of individual problems and suggestions to eliminate the bottleneck and propose corrective steps to the state.

The first of the hearings was scheduled for Sept. 20-21 at Hofstra University in Hempstead. Later hearings were set for Oct. 18-19 in Albany and Nov. 22-23 in Buffalo.

Boosts Service

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pan American World Airways has increased service between the United States and the South Pacific from 10 to 16 flights per week in each direction, boosting the number of seats available each week from 1,350 to 2,160.

Dr. Gorman's Reflections on Chicago Meet

Editor's Note: Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee, who filed stories for The Freeman during the recently completed national convention in Chicago, sums up the turbulent parley with the following reflections:

By DR. GERALD P. GORMAN

The Democratic National Convention of 1968 may be the last of its kind in the United States. The national primary idea seemed to be uppermost in the minds of many people at the close of the tumultuous proceedings in Chicago.

A national primary would settle the issue of who is to be the party's nominee through a nationwide primary, rather than through a convention.

The value of the primary system rests in the fact that it would be the enrolled voters who would decide who is to hold the banner of their party, rather than a handful of delegates who, all too often, think along strict organizational lines.

As for the convention itself, while I deplore violence and brutality whether it be from demonstrators or policemen, I do feel that the security system set up under Mayor Daley was necessary.

Threats Hang High

One must realize that hanging over the mayor's head were the assassination threats made against all the leading candidates for President. There was also the very real fact of the assassination of Robert Kennedy—a loss that deeply moved us all.

If the Chicago police overreacted—which, I am sure, some did—there are three factors to be considered here: one, the press buildup, prior to the convention, was fantastic, and this buildup spelled out the possibilities of violence and more violence. It helped to create an atmosphere wherein the unstoppable force was approaching the immovable object—the demonstrators versus the police. I don't think that anyone could escape the conclusion that something was going to happen, and it was this fantastic attitude, more so than any other single factor, that set the stage.

Two: Many policemen were working upwards of from 14 to 20 hours without sleep. They were fatigued. Their nerves were taut.

Three: the demonstrations were well-organized. They were set into motion by certain well-disciplined groups who appeared to know exactly what they wanted to do, where they wanted to go. The mass of demonstrators merely followed, so also the taunts. It was frightening to hear thousands of demonstrators screaming at the police, "Zeig heil, zeig heil," or, "The whole world is watching."

Contributing Factors

So it was these factors—the onerous atmosphere, the exhaustion of the policemen, and the well-directed taunting that brought to a head the inevitable clash.

Of course, the convention itself was not exactly a model of contained self control, and the caucus sessions of the New York delegation were incredibly boisterous.

The New York caucuses were held in the main ballroom of the Sheraton-Chicago Hotel, Michigan Avenue North, some 15 blocks or more from the Conrad Hilton Hotel where I was staying.

In fact, so unruly were the caucus sessions, that neither of the three major candidates, Vice President Humphrey and Senators McCarthy and McGovern, were able to appear at them, as they had appeared before the California delegation.

I attribute this lack of success to State Chairman John Burns who seemed unable to control the caucuses which were attended by as many as 600 people at any given time.

The New York delegation voted in favor of the minority or "peace" plank on the Vietnam War. (I believe the vote was 148 for the minority report and 42 against.) But when the vote on the presidential candidates went in favor of the Vice President, the outburst of the McCarthy people indicated that they weren't about to accept the rule of the majority.

I had attended the caucus hearings of both the California and Georgia delegations, but neither compared to the New York sessions.

Persistent in Views

The pro-McCarthy people were persistent, however, with their failure to abide by what the chair ruled, by their failure to agree with the majority.

They also weren't prepared for defeat—which, I feel, is a disastrous attitude.

There was, in the McCarthy group, a lot of brain power. Many of these people were educators, and I do feel that they represent the new kind of person who is being attracted to the party, and while I cannot go along with some of the undemocratic attitudes displayed by them, I must respect the depths of their feelings, and the eloquence which they often used to express themselves.

It was Wednesday night when most of the violence took place. The minority report on the war had been voted down, and Vice President Humphrey had become the nominee.

The crowds in Grant Park, situated across the street from the hotel, had been, I was told, harangued all day by various speakers, and particularly by one quite articulate and soft-spoken fellow whom I was later to learn was David Dellinger, head of the Mobilization for Peace.

The buses carrying the delegates from the amphitheatre stopped several blocks away from the hotels. I was informed that the reason for this was that they could very easily serve as targets.

The other delegates and I made our way as best we could through the milling crowds of onlookers and demonstrators to the Hilton.

Glass littered the sidewalks and streets between the Hilton and the Sheraton Blackstone, and already the chanting had begun.

Looking out from my sixth floor window, I could see the television strobe lights shining over the crowds below, the policemen charging and swinging their clubs, and the incessant chanting, "zeig heil, zeig heil."

Felt Fright

I have served in two wars—World War II and the Korean action—but never have I felt the particular kind of fright that I knew that night, hour after hour, I listened to the chanting and the screaming.

One thing must be made clear, and that is that I truly feel these young people decided they could only bring their grievances to the Democratic convention and not the Republican meeting in Miami.

True, there were the inevitable exhibitionists that the television cameras unfortunately played up to, and there were also those among the crowds whose stock and trade is agitation and revolution, but perhaps most of those who joined the demonstrations did so because they were really against the war and that their last recourse lay in lodging a protest against the party which had given them the nuclear test ban treaty, the civil rights act, the Peace Corps, and the war on poverty.

What was ironic was that the very man who had authored the nuclear test ban and the Peace Corps was the man whose nomination they opposed—Hubert H. Humphrey.

Still, with all the violent disorders in the streets, the frenzy of the caucuses and the occasional chaos on the convention floor itself, the Democratic party managed to end the ancient unit rule, make the racial balance of the southern delegations more equitable, pay a moving tribute to the fallen of Boss Tweed and Huey Long, is being replaced by a new and vocal minority which demands control and back room dealing.

Consolidated School Board on Tax Payments

Taxpayers in the Kingston City School District (Consolidated) having questions involving assessments on properties, are advised by school officials to direct them to local assessors in the City of Kingston and the towns within the district.

Questions involving individual equalization rates of the various towns (or parts of towns in the district) and the city, should be directed to the New York State Board of Equalization which is chaired by Mrs. Frank Moore in Albany.

Chairmen of the Boards of Assessors in the district are: Esopus — John G. Reynolds, Hurley — Percy Osterhout, Town of Kingston — Joseph Carcamo, Marbletown — Benjamin Van Wagenen, New Paltz — William Heidgerd, Rosendale — Ferdinand Fiedler, Saugerties — Paul Pavlovich, Ulster — Joseph Lohmaier, Woodstock — Birge H. Simmons, City of Kingston — Matthias G. Richardson.

Tag Day Is Success For Young Marines

A new Recruit Platoon will be formed at a meeting of the Ulster County Young Marines at 7 p.m. at the State Armory on Manor Avenue, according to Commanding Officer Gilbert E. Gray, who invites all boys between 8 to 15 interested in joining the program to attend.

Meanwhile, Gray reported a fund-raising event on Saturday in the form of a tag day, was a success. Donations will be used to purchase uniforms, flags and marching equipment. The unit has taken part in several area parades since it was organized earlier this year and the next public appearance of the Young Marines will be at the Loyalty Day Parade on Sept. 28.

Boys planning to join should be accompanied tonight by a parent or adult guardian. Application forms will be available and new recruits will take part in an orientation drill. A complete medical examination must be taken by new members within two weeks after they enroll.

The only cost to members will be the purchase of a uniform and boys are urged to earn their own money for this purpose. The program consists of 10 weeks of training at Boot Camp. Parents of the boys will be welcomed at tonight's session.

In addition to Gray, other Young Marine officers are Raymond Malecki, Eugene White, John Kerbert and John Ray Mayone.

Schwenk Differs With Cole On the Boulevard, Dix Seal

John J. Schwenk, former Mayor of Kingston, has taken exception to statements made by Charles J. Cole, the city's present Superintendent of Public Works.

The statements by Cole which drew fire from Schwenk appeared recently in "Let's Find Out," the new question-and-answer column in The Kingston Daily Freeman, and concerned street repairs undertaken with a mixture called Dix Seal.

Schwenk called Cole's explanation for the present condition of the Boulevard "a lengthy alibi" and asserted that "Superintendent Cole nearly sabotaged the Dix Seal program when he violated every instruction given him by the Dix Seal people in its application to the Boulevard."

The former mayor, a Republican, insisted that when Dix

Seal was "applied properly to streets with a good base, it was highly successful, in Kingston and many other cities throughout the States." It is Schwenk's contention that any failure of its application locally "must be attributed to Cole," who, he said, "selected the streets to be resurfaced with Dix Seal and was responsible for its proper application."

Schwenk said he had been supported in his use of Dix Seal by the then City Engineer, Arthur F. Hallinan, a Democrat, and former City Engineer and Superintendent and Commissioner of the Board of Public Works, James G. Norton. He said their "wide experience and advice" had had more value in his decision to use Dix Seal than had that of Cole, who he called "relatively inexperienced in Public Works at the time."

Amateur Photographers to Meet At Lake Mohonk in New Paltz

"Why all those Lenses," "Not Smiley. The extensive program of their Council. He is a member of a number of field trips, workshops and illustrated lectures will have its light side since Mr. Siska is known as a humorous as well as a knowledgeable speaker. "My friends all say it's corny," Mr. Siska commented, referring to his style of presentation, but his long list of honors, accomplishments, offices and interests in the amateur photography field suggest a high degree of sympathy with his subjects and skill in his craft. "Explaining his Thursday night lecture, "How to Capture your Captive Audience," Mr. Siska said, "A sub-title for this talk could be, 'How to look like an Expert in One Easy Lesson.'"

The idea is to take a newly-opened box of slides and show them without editing. This results in a showing of all kinds of subjects—from good to bad, or maybe awful."

Britain's Queen Vacations; Enjoys Scones and Cakes

By MARGARET SAVILLE
LONDON (UPI)—For a little while each summer, Queen Elizabeth II does what almost every woman occasionally longs to do—eat all the fattening goodies she wants.

The queen's six weeks vacation at Balmoral Castle in the Scottish Highlands provides the occasion for this indulgence—and then it's back on regime.

Elizabeth doesn't diet to keep her slender figure, actually, but she does "watch the menus," as she puts it.

At the age of 42, and after four children, she still has the same measurements she had at 18.

Her figure is what British haute couture calls "the small lady," an ideal 24 inch waist, 34 inch bust, 34 inch hips and a height of five feet four inches.

She rationes her starch and sweets, eats plenty of salads and fresh fruit. At her meals in the privacy of Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle at weekends, she drinks only tea or fresh orange juice diluted with soda water. Even at public parties, she accepts a single glass of sherry as a cocktail and often leaves her glass of champagne or wine half-empty on the table.

But at her Scottish retreat, she gets so much open air exercise that she does not worry about putting on extra weight by eating what she pleases.

She enjoys the Highland baking, the scones and cakes with honey and raisins. The freshly caught herrings are rolled in oatmeal before being fried. Salmon caught in the morning from the River Dee alongside the castle are served ui grilled.

She has coffee with cream, fruit pie with ice cream, and thick sandwiches filled with cheese and cold meat when she goes out on the moors surrounding Balmoral.

For all her necessary residence in London, the queen is essentially a fresh air lover and revels in the life at Balmoral. She rides every day, plays outside with her children, goes fishing, walks for hours stalking deer on the moors, scrambling over the rocks when an animal is sighted.

Every morning she exercises her four pet Corgi terriers, Heather, Whisky, Sherry and Jane, in Balmoral's big wooded gardens.

As often as not, she dances after dinner for an hour or two. Balmoral is many miles from the nearest town and entertainment is home-made.

Designers Show Variety of Belts In Top Paris Shows

PARIS (UPI)—Belts were either very wide or very narrow this year in the Paris fall fashion collections.

Yves St. Laurent, who started the whole chain belt craze, still shows them, often as the only jewelry on stark black evening clothes.

But just as often he shows leather belts as narrow as licorice whips, and just as pliable, knotted casually at the waist.

Courreges, Cardin and Feraud wrap the midriff in wide, wide belts. Feraud's wide belts are the loosest of the three, often tied together with laces on his peasant-inspired, full-skirted dresses.

Wide belted looks also were achieved by Balmain, who set leather midriffs into fur coats and then belted them like bathrobes with leather ties at the waist.

Dior did some interesting belt effects embroidered onto the simplest little evening dresses. One bright red dress had predominantly green and gold tear drop shapes that appeared to push the top of the skirt into soft pleats.

Cardin showed important stainless steel modernist scroll designs to form the buckles of many of his wide belts.

Before Czech Invasion Daughter Tells Of Svoboda's Loyalty to Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following interview with the daughter of the Czechoslovakian president Ludvik Svoboda took place before Russia marched on Prague. It ironically reveals the now betrayed leader's lifetime loyalty to the Soviets.

By DEE WEDEMAYER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The face chiseled with deep lines, topped with a full head of white hair looked out of a leather photograph frame. It was Gen. Ludvik Svoboda, the newly elected president of Czechoslovakia—but not the public figure of the 72-year-old man who is known in the western world as a Czechoslovakian Eisenhower.

The man in the photograph in the Manhattan apartment was Deda, a Czechoslovakian way of referring to grandfather connoting more strength than the traditional Dedek, which means "little grandfather." It was Deda with his shirttail out and surrounded by his grandchildren.

"He says he likes to be called Deda because Dedek means they think he is old," explained Mrs. Zoe Klusova Svobodova.

Mrs. Klusova-Svobodova is one of those remarkable European women with a young face and bright laughter which does not reveal that at 15 she worked in the underground movement transporting illegal documents.

Today as the wife of an ambassador she worries about time—too frequently used entertaining, too little for study and too much spent by her son, Miroslav, watching television.

Only occasionally does she stop to reminisce about the war years and when she does, a sad tilt creeps into her voice.

She can't remember the exact day her father went away to Poland and later to Russia or organized the Czech Legion. But she recalls vividly the escape she, her mother and brother made to Moravia when the underground movement was traced to her home.

"Miroslav (her son is named for her brother) went back to help a parachutist to escape," she explains. "He was captured and put in prison. He was executed. I know not how."

"The underground group finished quite tragically," she added. "I wouldn't like to explain the details but the fact is that the group was captured, including the parents of my mother and both their brothers."

Her grandmother died in a gas chamber in Ravensbrück, just days before the camp was liberated in April, 1945, and a short time before her father returned.

"It was in 1944, the eighth of May, just the day before the end of the war, she recalls. "There were flowers blooming. It was naturally very impressive, very touching, to meet him and in the same time it was quite sad after the war. My brother wasn't there."

MR. AND MRS. STEPHEN GLOWINSKI of 152 Wilbur Avenue, Kingston, celebrated their 59th wedding anniversary Sunday, Sept. 1, at a dinner party in their home. Born in Poland, Mr. and Mrs. Glowinski came to America in the early 1900's. They were married in Immaculate Conception Church, Delaware Avenue, by the Rev. Theodore Jaswaski. Mr. and Mrs. Glowinski have six children, Mrs. Stephen Butler, Mrs. Robert Gessex, both of Kingston; Mrs. Helen Krom of Yonkers; Walter, John and Joseph Glowinski, all of Kingston. They have 16 grandchildren and 16 great grandchildren. Among those attending was Steve Bybel of Yonkers. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Her figure is what British haute couture calls "the small lady," an ideal 24 inch waist, 34 inch bust, 34 inch hips and a height of five feet four inches.

She rations her starch and sweets, eats plenty of salads and fresh fruit. At her meals in the privacy of Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle at weekends, she drinks only tea or fresh orange juice diluted with soda water. Even at public parties, she accepts a single glass of sherry as a cocktail and often leaves her glass of champagne or wine half-empty on the table.

But at her Scottish retreat, she gets so much open air exercise that she does not worry about putting on extra weight by eating what she pleases.

She enjoys the Highland baking, the scones and cakes with honey and raisins. The freshly caught herrings are rolled in oatmeal before being fried. Salmon caught in the morning from the River Dee alongside the castle are served up grilled.

She has coffee with cream, fruit pie with ice cream, and thick sandwiches filled with cheese and cold meat when she goes out on the moors surrounding Balmoral.

For all her necessary residence in London, the queen is essentially a fresh air lover and revels in the life at Balmoral. She rides every day, plays outside with her children, goes fishing, walks for hours stalking deer on the moors, scrambling over the rocks when an animal is sighted.

Every morning she exercises her four pet Corgi terriers, Heather, Whisky, Sherry and Jane, in Balmoral's big wooded gardens.

As often as not, she dances after dinner for an hour or two. Balmoral is many miles from the nearest town and entertainment is home-made.

Designers Show Variety of Belts In Top Paris Shows

PARIS (UPI)—Belts were either very wide or very narrow this year in the Paris fall fashion collections.

Yves St. Laurent, who started the whole chain belt craze, still shows them, often as the only jewelry on stark black evening clothes.

But just as often he shows leather belts as narrow as licorice whips, and just as pillable, knotted casually at the waist.

Courreges, Cardin and Feraud wrap the midriff in wide, wide belts. Feraud's wide belts are the loosest of the three, often tied together with laces on his peasant-inspired, full-skirted dresses.

Wide belted looks also were achieved by Balmain, who set leather midriffs into fur coats and then belted them like bathrobes with leather ties at the waist.

Dior did some interesting belt effects embroidered onto the simplest little evening dresses. One bright red dress had predominantly green and gold tear drop shapes that appeared to push the top of the skirt into soft pleats.

Before Czech Invasion Daughter Tells Of Svoboda's Loyalty to Russia

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following interview with the daughter of the Czechoslovakian president Ludvik Svoboda took place before Russia marched on Prague. It ironically reveals the now betrayed leader's lifetime loyalty to the Soviets.

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The face chiseled with deep lines, topped with a full head of white hair looked out of a leather photograph frame. It was Gen. Ludvik Svoboda, the newly elected president of Czechoslovakia—but not the public figure of the 72-year-old man who is known in the western world as a Czechoslovakian Eisenhower.

The man in the photograph in the Manhattan apartment was Deda, a Czechoslovakian way of referring to grandfather connoting more strength than the traditional Dedek, which means "little grandfather."

It was Deda with his shirtdoll out and surrounded by his grandchildren.

his daughter, and mother of his grandchildren, Luda, 17, and Miroslav, 11.

Mrs. Klusova Svobodova, 43, the wife of the Czechoslovakian ambassador to the United Nations, was "picking from my memory" the stories about the man Czechoslovakian Communists selected to deal with the younger generation's cry for liberalization of the government and simultaneously reassure the Soviet Union of Czech loyalty.

"His preference for sport is climbing and his only partners are his grandchildren," says the attractive redhead with a smile. "Because he considers us a burden. We can't keep up with him."

She sees her father as a man who understands the younger generation.

"The future life belongs to them, because they will lead their own life," she says. "We must know how to make a place for the younger generation. This he knows and he has the willingness to do it."

He has "more than understanding" of the Soviet Union, she adds.

"Because my father spent the first World War and also the second World War in Russia," she recalls, "he knows and understands their political intentions in the world. Besides that I think he quite well understands our history—in all our history the solution of our political life can't be seen without the background of our Velky Bratr (Big Brother) in Russia."

"But I would say at the same time, though he is 72, my father is very young in his spirit and he is always open to realistic and very modern solutions to problems."

"Democracy isn't an empty word for him," she continues. "He's a member of the Communist party but even though he was a Communist, he always tried to hear and to listen to non-members and to try and to understand their problems and their needs."

Mrs. Klusova Svobodova is for her brother) went back to help a parachutist to escape," she explains. "He was captured and put in prison. He was executed. I know not how."

"The underground group finished quite tragically," she added. "I wouldn't like to explain the details but the fact is that the group was captured, including the parents of my mother and both her brothers."

Her grandmother died in a gas chamber in Ravensbrück, just days before the camp was liberated in April, 1945, and a short time before her father returned.

"It was in 1944, the eighth of May, just the day before the end of the war, she recalls. "There were flowers blooming. It was naturally very impressive, very touching, to meet him and in the same time it was quite sad after the war. My brother wasn't there."

Concert-Lecture Presented at Woodstock

MME. ISABELLE BYMAN

The Isabelle Byman Twilight Concert-Lecture held recently at the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen Hall and concluding with a champagne reception at Jarvis Gallery, Woodstock, has been termed a "flawlessly enchanting" evening.

Arnold Blanch and Margo Gordon started the program by paying a grateful tribute to Mrs. Gertrude Jarvis for making the evening possible. Mr. Blanch spoke briefly about Burr House and Margo Gordon talked about the Woodstock guild of Craftsmen, for which the benefit was held.

A tape, produced by Avner Carmi, was presented of Mme. Byman playing examples of three centuries of music: Beethoven's "Seven Variations on God Save the King," John Field's "Nocturne," and "The Three Marias" by Villa-Lobos. These were played on the unique instrument called "The immortal piano." The Siena. Mme. Byman's lucid commentary on The Siena convinced one of her opinion that this was indeed a "singing" piano. Perfected about 1800, The Siena was a step in keyboard transition created by three generations of Italians which had an involved Odyssey last discovered buried in plaster in the sands of North Africa.

Mme. Byman has given many first performances of contemporary music in solo and chamber music recitals, has appeared on television and has recorded for victor and for stereophonic tapes. As guest artist with the Kohon String Quartet (New York University Quartet in Residence), she appeared on several occasions at the Town Hall Chamber Music Series and at Southampton College and Staten Island Community College. This summer she recorded the Hadley Piano Quintet with the Kohon String Quartet. Her unusual vigor was sustained through three live performances: Brahms' "Sonata in E," and his "Intermezzo In A," a tour de force, Isabelle Byman's encore was the demanding "Leyenda" by Albeniz.

After the concert-lecture, guests enjoyed the grandeur of the Jarvis Gallery on Broadway Road in Woodstock where champagne was served on the terrace. Guests wandered through the sculptured gardens, passed a fountain and pool, and in the galleries through the display of primitive paintings and the beautifully presented collection of African sculpture and masks. Mme. Byman demonstrated the great difference between today's piano and the delicate, hand painted spinetta (C. 1690) on display at the Jarvis Gallery.

Among those responsible for the distinctive evening were: Katherine Wangler, Joan Pond, Nubar Nouryan, and Anne Berk. Mme. Byman donated her performance as Barnett Byman donated his services, and the Jarvis premises for this

Mary Ellen Miller Will Speak At GOP Women's Club Luncheon

Mary Ellen Miller, special assistant to the chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee in Washington, D.C., will act as guest speaker at the fourth annual luncheon of Wawarsing Republican Women's Club, which is scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 12, at noon in the Nevele Country Club, Ellenville.

Mrs. Miller, listed in Who's Who of American Women, and Who's Who in American Politics, has been a delegate to two Republican National Conventions and has successfully managed a mayoralty and a congressional campaign.

In addition to her duties in Washington, D.C., she is education director of the Tulsa Republican Party and Precinct Committeewoman of Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. Miller's experience in politics has been long and varied and it is anticipated she will be an interesting speaker. The guest list includes county holders and those hopeful of gaining office in November. Although some tickets will be available at the door, reservations are suggested and may be made by contacting Mrs. Gordon Jansen, Mrs. Albert Lonstein or Mrs. Ronald Elias, all of Ellenville, before Friday, Sept. 6.

Mrs. Robert Kuhlmann, president of the Wawarsing Republican Women's Club, has appointed Mrs. Richard Craft chairman of the arrangements committee, assisted by the Mes. Olive Burlison, Lawrence Craft, Guy Davenport, Ronald Elias, Frank Greco, Frank Harkin, Edwin Hoat Jr., Gordon Jansen, Albert Lonstein, Clyde Matthews, James Murray and E.E. Slater.

Mrs. Lane Reports on National Convention of VFW Auxiliary

"It was a convention I'll long remember," was the way Mrs. Sidney Lane of 8 Barmann Avenue, Kingston, who is the immediate past president of the Department of New York, described her trip to Detroit's Cobo Hall for the 55th National Convention of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, August 18-24.

Both President Lyndon B. Johnson and Richard Nixon, Republican presidential candidate, spoke at the Distinguished Guests Banquet on Monday, Aug. 19. Other distinguished guests in attendance were General William C. Westmoreland, Army Chief of Staff; Brig. Gen. Robert Olds, Commandant of the Air Force Academy; Joseph Scerra, Commander in Chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; and Mrs. Walter Bogacz, National President of the Ladies Auxiliary to the VFW. President Johnson signed a bill to increased disabled veterans' compensation in the presence of approximately 2000 members of the VFW and its Auxiliary. General Westmoreland was presented with the VFW's Gold Medal of Merit and a check for $85,000 to be used for the Tet Aggression Relief Project. General Olds was the recipient of the VFW National Armed Forces Award. Governors Wallace and Agnew were among others who visited the convention.

Mrs. Lora Waters of Seattle, Wash., was elected national president, and Richard Homan of West Virginia was elected commander in chief for the coming year.

Auxiliary convention highlights included presenting a $10,000 check to the Child Research Center of Michigan; a talk by Dr. Earl L. Green of the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Me.; the keynote speech of Betty Furness; and the life story of Francine Neubauer of Topeka, Kansas.

As immediate past department president of New York, Mrs. Lane accepted several awards for her Department including Americanism, Rehabilitation, Buddy Poppy, and Jr. Units, as well as special awards for Hospital, Extension and Membership. Mrs. Lane served as Assistant National Guard while at the convention and attended all business sessions.

Mrs. Lane is a member of Joyce-Schirick Auxiliary No. 1386, VFW, and served as its first president. She has served on all levels and been most active since 1947 when the local group was formed after the end of World War II. She is now serving as membership chairman and intends to recruit relatives of Vietnam veterans the coming year.

OFFICERS ELECTED — The Ladies Society of Santa Maria held their first meeting of the season Tuesday, Aug. 27, at St. Mary's Hall, North Street, Kingston. Officers who were elected recently include, seated (l-r) Carmella Kelderhouse, vice president; Joan Sinagra, president; Michelle Weider, secretary; standing (l-r) Angeline Carputo, treasurer; Carol Wisner, financial secretary. ## Wholesale Meat Prices Showed Tendency For Change After Recent Steady Period

Wholesale meat prices showed a tendency for change following the relatively steady period of the past few weeks, according to the Market Information Service of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets. The current changes are significant of a trend but as yet not sufficient to alter prices at the retail level.

Beef, especially forequarters, firmed somewhat at wholesale. However, retailers will continue with an excellent selection of specials at last week's price level. Steak will be featured in all areas, with chuck steak around 49 cents, boneless 79 cents, sirloin 95 cents to 99 cents, porterhouse 99 cents to $1.29, club and rib steaks also 99 cents, round steak ranging from 95 cents in central and western stores to $1.19 in eastern areas. Chuck roasts will special from 39 cents to 59 cents and boneless 69 cents to 79 cents, boneless Boston roasts 89 cents to 99 cents, boneless cross rib 99 cent, and standing rib roasts 79 cents to 99 cents, depending on cut. Here and there top round and top sirloin roasts will special at 98 cents. Ground beef at 55 cents and hamburger at 49 cents will also be featured.

Pork, steady to slightly weaker at wholesale level, will see more retail features during the next few days. Some special in some stores. Also, 39 cents, loin ends 49 cents and center cut roasts at 59 cents will be found. Fresh pork butts at 59 cents and fresh rolled boneless butts at 69 cents will special in some stores. Also, smoked picnics from 35 cents to 39 cents. Occasional sales on smoked hams, whole or butt half, 69 cents and shank half 49 cents Bacon will get a big play in the 59 cents to 79 cents range.

Lamb and veal are still expensive but there is an indication that these items may be lower. Retailers are hoping for this so that they can give consumers some change-of-pace specials.

Poultry continues steady at a low level and is an excellent consumer purchase.

Y-Wives Club Will Open New Season Thursday, Sept. 19

The Y-Wives Club will open its 1968-1969 season September 19 at 7:30 p.m. with an annual covered dish supper. Guest speaker for the evening will be Len Cane of WBAZ radio.

Officers for the coming year are: president, Mrs. Frank DiPietro; vice president, Mrs. Thomas Palmer; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Murray; Mrs. Raymond Peterson, recording secretary; treasurer, Mrs. William Schreiber.

The program committee have planned a variety of different and interesting programs for the coming year.

The membership tea is scheduled for October 3 members are asked to bring a list of prospective new members to September 19 meeting. All married women of the community interested in joining Y-Wives are invited to the membership tea.

The YWCA is a member of the Community Chest.

Earns Masters

Robert Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brown Sr. of this city, has completed his work toward the degree, Master of Music in Piano, at Indiana University. Brown studied piano locally with Miss Helen Turner and James Sweeney; at State University of New York at Fredonia with Richard Patterson; and at Indiana University with Walter Robert. As a composition minor, he studied with Thomas Beversdorf. A number of Brown's compositions and arrangements were performed this spring by various student soloists, the Indiana University brass band and the university jazz ensemble.

Brown will enter the U. S. Army soon. After basic training in Fort Campbell, Ky., he and his wife Mary will reside near Kansas, where he has been assigned as pianist in that unit's band.

Steak will be featured in all areas, with chuck steak around 49 cents, boneless 79 cents, sirloin 95 cents to 99 cents, porterhouse 99 cents to $1.29, club and rib steaks also 99 cents, round steak ranging from 95 cents in central and western stores to $1.19 in eastern areas. Chuck roasts will special from 39 cents to 59 cents and boneless 69 cents to 79 cents, boneless Boston roasts 89 cents to 99 cents, boneless cross rib 99 cents, and standing rib roasts 79 cents to 99 cents, depending on cut. Here and there top round and top sirloin roasts will special at 98 cents. Ground beef at 55 cents and hamburger at 49 cents will also be featured.

Pork, steady to slightly weaker at wholesale level, will see more retail features during the next few days. Some special in some stores. Also, 39 cents, loin ends 49 cents and center cut roasts at 59 cents will be found. Fresh pork butts at 59 cents and fresh rolled boneless butts at 69 cents will special in some stores. Also, smoked picnics from 35 cents to 39 cents. Occasional sales on smoked hams, whole or butt half, 69 cents and shank half 49 cents. Bacon will get a big play in the 59 cents to 79 cents range.

Lamb and veal are still expensive but there is an indication that these items may be lower. Retailers are hoping for this so that they can give consumers some change-of-pace specials.

Poultry continues steady at a low level and is an excellent consumer purchase.

Kingston-Football-A State of Cautious Optimism-

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Sports Editor)

Every pre-season sign points to a new era in Kingston High school football fortunes this fall, but for newly-installed head coach Frank Modica this is a period of watchful (and hopeful) waiting.

By every standard, the return of 15 lettermen, including three quarters of the 1967 backfield, should create an atmosphere of confidence and optimism in the Maroon camp.

But at this point, as the Maroon hopefuls complete their pre-conditioning workouts and move into regular sessions, Coach Modica is revealing a not wait-and-see attitude. He says it is difficult to prognosticate on the season's outlook.

"Once the boys put on the pads and start contact play, we'll have a better chance to evaluate our prospects," said the former freshman coach who succeeded Bill Hurley as head coach when the latter moved up to the athletic director's post left vacant by Bill Burke's retirement.

Quarterbacks Return
Among the 15 returning lettermen are quarterback Mike Hoffman, fullback Pete Hel-mich and halfback Marshall Byrd. The fourth starter will come from a group of backs who had limited experience in 1967. Among them are Dana Clearwater Gary Short, Bruce Brown, Greg Rios, Steve Beverly and Jesse Adams.

There is always the possibility, of course, that some of the group might out one or more of the 1967 starters.

Returnees in the line include John Berardi, Bob Clausi, Fred Kachura, Mike Perry, Mike Rosinski and Dale Whitman.

Among the more promising newcomers appear to be Anthony Cicoria, a back, and John Rosebrook, Pete Stahl and Ronald White in the line, along with Vinnie Guido, Mike Belisio, Joe Holland, Al McClinton, and Mike Savino.

Modica, 35, is basically a slot-T and split-T quarterback and brings an extensive coaching background to his new post with the Maroons.

Returning to Kingston High from McColl, S.C. in 1963, he compiled a 13-2 record with the frosh. He coached in 1964-67, skipping his first year back.

After Army service and a degree at the Citadel, he took a job as Jayvee line coach at St. Stevens, S.C. High. His work paid off as two of his linemen went to college on athletic scholarships.

He got off to a poor start at McColl's, with a 1-8-1 opener. The next season he was 7-3, then topped it off with a conference title on a 9-1 record in his final year in 1962.

He also piloted McColl's track

squad, guiding them to the state championship in 1959. His mile relay team still holds the South Carolina state record.

A former sprint star at KHS, Modica joined Bill Hurley on the track staff at Kingston, in addition to his freshmen grid duties. He was clocked in a 10.2 century dash and 021.3 in the low hurdles.

Open With Vincennes
Kingston opens its eight-game slate against Vincennes Institute of Albany on Saturday, Sept. 21 at Dietz Stadium.

Newcomers on the 1968 schedule are Johnstown and Hudson. What is expected to be the final DUSO Leagues in KHS history will be played against Middletown, Newburgh and Port Jervis. Kingston is expected to be admitted to the Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) for the 1969 season.

The 1968 schedule:

Date	Opponent	Place
Sept. 21	Vincennes	Home
Sept. 28	Linton	Away
Oct. 5	Johnstown	Away
Oct. 12	Port Jervis	Home
Nov. 2	Hudson	Home
Nov. 9	Louderes	Home
Nov. 16	Middletown	Away
Nov. 23	Newburgh	Away

Why the Pitchers Dominate Kiner Pinpoints the Reasons: No Practice and Communications

By GEORGE THOMSON
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Ralph Kiner, one of the all-time great National League sluggers, came to town Tuesday with some pretty strong convictions about why major league pitchers are completely dominating the hitters these days.

The popular New York Mets broadcaster and custodian of Kiner's Korner blamed it on three factors in a luncheon address before the Kingston Lions Club.

First, he singled out Casey Stengel for creating the two-platoon system. A second reason, he said, was the lack of communication between hitters.

Praising Stengel for his ability to "turn the pain of losing into humor," Kiner said the two-platoon system hurt the batters.

"It has not been good for the hitters," said Kiner. "To be a good hitter, a player can't be platooned. Take a look at the top clubs. The same players are in there every day."

Old Times Missing
Kiner said the old time communication between hitters is missing these days.

Kiner said the hitters just aren't getting enough practice these days.

"It is harder to get somebody to pitch to you, somebody to shag balls, than it is to play catch," he quipped.

Kiner interspersed his serious discussion with several stories about famed personalities, particularly Stengel, then fielded several questions from the audience.

When will the Mets crack the first division? he was asked.

"How long is your life span?" he replied.

Sees Met Future
In a serious vein, he said the Mets had a hitter who could hit 30 homers a year (Swoboda) and predicted a bright future for the club.

Among the 15 players he felt the Mets would "protect" in the expansion draft, he listed the fine young pitchers like Tom Seaver, Cal Koonce, Nolan Ryan, Jerry Koosman, along with Tommy Agee, Swoboda, Cleon Jones and Ed Charles. The Mets are still high on Agee despite his disappointing season, said Kiner. He was doubtful about Ed Kranepool's future and was very high on a rookie at Jacksonville called Amos Adios.

Reminiscing about his own career, Kiner credited Hall of Famer Hank Greenberg with exerting the most influence on him.

rGreenberg taught him a whole new philosophy about life, Kiner said. Mainly it was that you had to work hard to be a success. He tipped Kiner off on the significance of pitchers changing their stance.

On days off, Greenberg and Kiner would go out and have batting practice under real game conditions. That was a time, of course, when you could get somebody to pitch and somebody to shag.

His advice to youngsters: they should hit for an hour, at least five times a week, if they love the game and plan a future in it. Little League, he said, simply doesn't give the kids enough chance to improve their batting with its twice-a-week schedule.

Len Cane, program chairman of the Lions introduced Kiner at the luncheon. Richard Rochford made arrangements for his visit.

The Pro Shuffles
Mira Is Second Fiddle, But Trull Gets Bounced

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

George Mira may have to play second fiddle, but it's better than being in the shoes of unemployed Don Trull.

Mira, reserve quarterback with the San Francisco Forty Niners, lost out to veteran John Brodie again as coach Dick Nolan decided to go with the man who engineered a million dollar contract with the club several years ago.

Trull, the top collegiate passer at Baylor in 1962-63, never realized his full potential, first with Houston and then with Boston. He was a reserve to George Blanda most of his Oilers career and when sent to the Patriots played in the shadow of Babe Parilli. Boston finally released him.

Nolan, a former defensive halfback with the New York Giants and later on the Dallas coaching staff, gave the 26-year-old Mira an opportunity to find gold in the Forty-Niner backfield. But the former Miami (Fla.) signal caller couldn't get the team rolling in pre-exhibition games.

Moved Team Better
Brodie failed to do much better as San Francisco dropped four of five starts, but Nolan said he moved the team more consistently. Nolan balked at Brodie's pass-catching brigade as the Forty Niners acquired speedster Clifton McNeil from the Cleveland Browns earlier this week for a high draft choice.

Trull became expendable with Houston when the Oilers obtained Pete Beathard from the Chiefs and was reduced in stature in Boston after Mike Taliaferro impressed coach Mike Holovak as starting quarterback material. Taliaferro was Joe Namath's understudy.

Other veterans were dropped by the way as National and American Football League clubs scrambled to meet player limits.

Giants Drop Bolin
The New York Giants cut offensive guard Bookie Bolin, a seven-year player, defensive end Jeff Smith and tight end Dick Kotite. The Buffalo Bills reached the AFL's 40-player limit by slashing four players, including fullback Wray Carlton, a member of the original 1960 team. Carlton holds the club ground gaining record of 3,368 yards.

Ray McDonald, Idaho's celebrated fullback of several seasons ago, failed to last with the Washington Redskins. Signed for a $70,000 bonus contract in 1967, McDonald never lived up to the expectations of performing in the Jimmy Brown fashion.

Washington also dropped center Dave Crossan and defensive back Jim Burson and placed offensive tackle Mitch Johnson on the injured waiver list. Johnson dislocated his hip in last Thursday's pre-season game with Detroit and will be out eight weeks.

Cuts Down to 44
Elsewhere, the Baltimore Colts reduced their roster to 44 as Jim Welch, primarily a safety man, and defensive back George Harold lost their jobs. The Philadelphia Eagles placed defensive end Len Persin on the injury list, after he underwent surgery for torn ligaments of the left knee, and waived linebacker Fred Brown. The St. Louis Cardinals traded running back Charley Bryant to the Atlanta Falcons for a future draft choice and Karl Noonan was named to replace injured Jack Clancy at split end with Miami.

dy on the New York Jets three seasons.

Other veterans were dropped by the way as National and American Football League clubs scrambled to meet player limits.

The Detroit Tigers had their usual touch in their last chance Tuesday night because Jim Northrup made good in his second chance.

The Tigers, who've now pulled out 27 of their 88 victories in their last at bats, did it this

Whitworth Tops LPGA on $44Gs
CINCINNATI (UPI) — Carol Mann, bidding to dethrone Kathy Whitworth as the champion money-winner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, soared to a new LPGA record in total earnings this week with $44,934.

Miss Mann, who boosted her official earnings to $36,060, also broke Mickey Wright's old record of most rounds in the 60s in one season and there are several tourneys left on this year's tour.

Miss Mann fired three consecutive rounds in the 60s to win the LPGA Invitational at Calgary, Canada, Sunday. She now has 16 such rounds this year to surpass Miss Wright's previous record of 14.

Miss Mann leads second-place Miss Whitworth by nearly $3,000 in their two-gal race for the LPGA official earnings championship this season.

The top 10 with tourney victories in parentheses:

1. Carol Mann (8) $36,060
2. Kathy Whitworth (5) $33,260
3. Sandra Haynie (0) $19,024
4. Mickey Wright (4) $17,147.50
5. Marilyn Smith (1) $14,294
6. Clifford Ann Creed (0) $13,954.50
7. Sandra Spuzich (0) $12,899
8. Shirley Englehorn (1) $11,624.50
9. Sandra Palmer (0) $10,757.50
10. Judy Kimball (0) $10,016.50

Giants Acquire Lane of Browns
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League announced today the acquisition of Quarterback Gary Lane from the Cleveland Browns in return for surrendering a draft choice, probably a high one.

Lane has been the No. 2 quarterback of the Browns and is expected to take a similar position with the Giants behind Fran Tarkenton.

The Giants were led to make the deal after Gary Wood, their regular second string quarterback, badly sprained his right ankle in practice last week. He may be out of action for several weeks.

Lane, who comes from the University of Missouri, is a three-year man in pro ranks. He is 6-1, weighs 210, and is 25 years old. He is expected to report today. The Giants will need to cut someone from the squad to make room for him.

Angels Offer Rigney Big Deal
ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels' owner Gene Autry has offered Manager Bill Rigney a multiyear contract and a chance to own stock in the American League club, informed sources said today.

Rigney, now wrapping up his 12th year as a major league manager and the senior pilot in the junior circuit, reportedly broke a golf date today to confer with a tax consultant and stock broker about the offer.

The 50-year-old manager has worked under one-year contracts with the Angels since their birth in the league's 1961 expansion.

Stewart, Mrs. Daley Lead Wiltwyck's Zaharias Play
Ralph Stewart and Mrs. 18-hole playoff from Mrs. John Hall, with 95-22-73 net after they had tied for second place with net 146's.

All entry fees from the tournament were turned over to the American Cancer Society. This year, 73 men and 28 women played or donated to the tournament fund. Mrs. Seymour Werbalowsky was tournament women's golf chairman.

The women's winner, Mrs. Daley, will have her name engraved on the Sylvia Voss Memorial plaque, in memory of one of Wiltwyck's former outstanding members.

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers had their usual touch in their last chance Tuesday night because Jim Northrup made good in his second chance.

The Tigers, who've now pulled out 27 of their 88 victories in their last at bats, did it this time by erupting for four runs in the ninth inning to down the Oakland A's 6-3 and stretch their American League lead to eight games.

The key hit was by Northrup, who stepped to the plate in the ninth with the bases loaded and one out and the Tigers trailing 3-2. He stroked a two-run single to put the Tigers ahead to stay 4-3.

But it was Northrup's fault the Tigers were behind in the first place. In the last of the eighth with the Tigers leading 2-1 and runners on first and second with two out, Joe Keough singled to tie the game—but when the ball caromed off Northrup's ankle for an error, Sal Bando scored the go-ahead run for Oakland all the way from first.

"You usually don't get the opportunity to make up for it when you kick one like that," Northrup said. "I was happy to get the opportunity. I was even surprised the manager (Mayo Smith) let me hit against the lefty."

Stays With Southpaw
The A's brought in lefthander Warren Bogle to face Northrup but Smith decided to stick with the lefthanded hitting Northrup. Smith said he wanted to go with Northrup and then if the outfielder failed, he'd pinch-hit for the next batter, lefthander Norm Cash.

The Tigers, who haven't won the pennant since 1945, reduced their "magic number" to 15 Cisco Carlos suffered the loss.

Maye Paces Indians
Lee Maye collected three hits, scored three runs and drove in two as Cleveland drubbed Oakland. Maye led off the game with a homer and scored twice more after singling. Russ Snyder added a two-run homer in the ninth for the Indians. Sam McDowell, 14-11, got the win and Jim McGlothlin, 10-13, took the loss.

Reggie Smith hit a two-run homer and Joe Foy collected three singles and knocked in two runs as the Red Sox beat the Twins in the five-inning game. Dick Ellsworth allowed six hits in the five innings to gain the victory while Jim Merritt was the loser.

Pinch-hitter Tim Cullen's two-run single with the bases-loaded and two out in the sixth inning carried Washington past Chicago. Joe Coleman pitched a four-hitter to gain the triumph and his "magic number" to 15 Cisco Carlos suffered the loss.

since Baltimore fell eight games back by losing to New York 6-1.

Elsewhere in the American League, Cleveland topped California 7-2. Washington edged Chicago 2-1 and Boston whipped Minnesota 4-1 in a game called by rain after five innings.

The Tiger victory went to Pat Dobson, 5-5 while Ed Sprague suffered the loss. In the ninth, Eddie Mathews walked, Dick McAuliffe singled and Mickey Stanley walked to load the bases against Sprague before Bogle came on and was tagged for Northrup's hit. A wild pitch and fielder's choice scored the other two runs.

Bench Seems Cinch For Rookie of Year

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds is making as much of a runaway race for rookie of the year honors as the St. Louis Cardinals are making of the National League pennant race.

Bench's selection has become almost automatic in recent weeks as he has staged a late-season spurt while pitcher Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets, the Cincinnati catcher's principal rival for the award, has lost four straight games and "slumped" to a 16-10 record.

The 20-year old native of Oklahoma City has the most impressive credentials among the NL rookies with a .279 batting average, 12 homers, two triples, 34 doubles and 72 runs batted in. He is a slow runner but as manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals remarked Tuesday night, "if he could run, he'd be a combination of Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth."

Does It Second Time
Bench hit his second game-tying two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning in as many games Tuesday night although the Cardinals pulled out a 5-3 11-inning victory and increased their league lead to 14 games.

Curt Flood singled home the tie-breaking run in the 11th after two walks and a wild pitch and Roger Maris, who also had three doubles, drove in the second run of the frame with a sacrifice fly. Joe Hoerner, who pitched only 1.3 of an inning, received credit for the victory, raising his record to 7-2. Pete Rose homered for the Reds' first run.

The Chicago Cubs downed the San Francisco Giants 8-3, the Atlanta Braves shaded the New York Mets 7-6 after a 4-3 loss, the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Houston Astros 3-2 and the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 10-9 in other National League games.

Ernie Banks hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning and Randy Hundley drove in three runs to highlight a 12-hit Cub attack.

Giants Acquire Lane of Browns
NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League announced today the acquisition of Quarterback Gary Lane from the Cleveland Browns in return for surrendering a draft choice, probably a high one.

Lane has been the No. 2 quarterback of the Browns and is expected to take a similar position with the Giants behind Fran Tarkenton.

The Giants were led to make the deal after Gary Wood, their regular second string quarterback, badly sprained his right ankle in practice last week. He may be out of action for several weeks.

Lane, who comes from the University of Missouri, is a three-year man in pro ranks. He is 6-1, weighs 210, and is 25 years old. He is expected to report today. The Giants will need to cut someone from the squad to make room for him.

Angels Offer Rigney Big Deal
ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels' owner Gene Autry has offered Manager Bill Rigney a multiyear contract and a chance to own stock in the American League club, informed sources said today.

Rigney, now wrapping up his 12th year as a major league manager and the senior pilot in the junior circuit, reportedly broke a golf date today to confer with a tax consultant and stock broker about the offer.

The 50-year-old manager has worked under one-year contracts with the Angels since their birth in the league's 1961 expansion.

Kingston-Football-A State of Cautious Optimism-

By CHARLES J. TIANO
(Sports Editor)

Every pre-season sign points to a new era in Kingston High school football fortunes this fall, but for newly-installed head coach Frank Modica this is a period of watchful (and hopeful) waiting.

By every standard, the return of 15 lettermen, including three quarters of the 1967 backfield, should create an atmosphere of confidence and optimism in the Maroon camp.

But at this point, as the Maroon hopefuls complete their pre-conditioning workouts and move into regular sessions, Coach Modica is revealing a not wait-and-see attitude. He says it is difficult to prognosticate on the season's outlook.

"Once the boys put on the pads and start contact play, we'll have a better chance to evaluate our prospects," said the former freshman coach who succeeded Bill Hurley as head coach when the latter moved up to the athletic director's post left vacant by Bill Burke's retirement.

Quarterbacks Return
Among the 15 returning let-termers are quarterback Mike Hoffman, fullback Pete Helmich and halfback Marshall Byrd. The fourth starter will come from a group of backs who had limited experience in 1967. Among them are Dana Clearwater, Gary Short, Bruce Brown, Greg Rios, Steve Beverly and Jesse Adams.

There is always the possibility, of course, that some of the group might oust one or more of the 1967 starters.

Returnees in the line include John Berardi, Bob Clausi, Fred Kachura, Mike Perry, Mike Rosinski and Dale Whitman.

Among the more promising newcomers appear to be Anthony Cicoria, a back, and John Rosebrook, Pete Stahl and Ronald White in the line, along with Vinnie Guido, Mike Belsito, Joe Holland, Al McClinton, and Mike Savino.

Modica, 35, is basically a slot-T and split-T quarterback and brings an extensive coaching background to his new post with the Maroons.

Returning to Kingston High from McColl, S.C. in 1963, he compiled a 13-2 record with the frosh. He coached in 1964-67, skipping his first year back.

After Army service and a degree at the Citadel, he took a job as Jayvee line coach at St. Stevens, S.C. High. His work paid off as two of his linemen went to college on athletic scholarships.

He got off to a poor start at McColl's, with a 1-8-1 opener. The next season he was 7-3, then topped it off with a conference title on a 9-1 record in his final year in 1962.

He also piloted McColl's track

squad, guiding them to the state championship in 1959. His mile relay team still holds the South Carolina state record.

A former sprint star at KHS, Modica joined Bill Hurley on the track staff at Kingston, in addition to his freshmen grid duties. He was clocked in a 10.2 century dash and 021.3 in the low hurdles.

Open With Vincincentian
Kingston opens its eight-game slate against Vincincentian Institute of Albany on Saturday, Sept. 21 at Dietz Stadium. Newcomers on the 1968 schedule are Johnston and Hudson. What is expected to be the final DUSO Leagues in KHS history will be played against Middletown, Newburgh and Port Jervis. Kingston is expected to be admitted to the Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) for the 1969 season.

The 1968 schedule:

Date	Opponent	Place
Sept. 21	Vincincentian	Home
Sept. 28	Linton	Away
Oct. 5	Johnstown	Away
Oct. 12*	Port Jervis	Home
Nov. 2	Hudson	Home
Nov. 9	Lourdes	Home
Nov. 16*	Middletown	Away
Nov. 28*	Newburgh	Away

Why the Pitchers Dominate

Kiner Pinpoints the Reasons: No Practice and Communications

By GEORGE THOMSON
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Ralph Kiner, one of the all-time great National League sluggers, came to town Tuesday with some pretty strong convictions about why major league pitchers are completely dominating the hitters these days.

The popular New York Mets broadcaster and custodian of Kiner's Korner blamed it on three factors in a luncheon address before the Kingston Lions Club.

First, he singled out Casey Stengel for creating the two-plate system. A second reason, he said, was the lack of communication between hitters.

Praising Stengel for his ability to "turn the pain of losing into humor," Kiner said the two-plate system hurt the batters.

"It has not been good for the hitters," said Ralph. "To be a good hitter, a player can't be platooned. Take a look at the top clubs. The same players are in there every day."

Old Times Missing
Kiner said the old time communication between hitters is missing these days.

Kiner said the hitters just aren't getting enough practice these days.

"It is harder to get somebody to pitch to you, somebody to shag balls, than it is to play catch," he quipped.

Kiner interspersed his serious discussion with several stories about famed personalities, particularly Stengel, then fielded several questions from the audience.

When will the Mets crack the first division? he was asked. "How long is your life span?" he replied.

Sees Met Future
In a serious vein, he said the Mets had a hitter who could hit 30 homers a year (Swoboda) and predicted a bright future for the club.

Among the 15 players he felt the Mets would "protect" in the expansion draft, he listed the fine young pitchers like Tom Seaver, Cal Koonce, Nolan Ryan, Jerry Koosman, along

Stewart, Mrs. Daley Lead Wiltwyck's Zaharias Play

Ralph Stewart and Mrs. Robert Daley won their respective divisions of the annual Babe Didrikson Zaharias Memorial Golf tournament.

Stewart, a telephone company engineer, fired a net 65 on 44-39 83 gross and 18 handicap. Mrs. Daley posted a 36-hole net of 139 for first place. She had net rounds of 68 and 71. The women played 36 holes, the men 18.

Runnerup to Stewart was Dr. Milton Ratner, a dentist who subtracted 32 handicap from a gross 49-49-98 for 66 net. Mrs. Ivan Whitmore won an 18-hole playoff from Mrs. John Hall, with 95-22-73 net after they had tied for second place with net 146's.

All entry fees from the tournament were turned over to the American Cancer Society. This year, 73 men and 28 women played or donated to the tournament fund. Mrs. Seymour Werbalowsky was tournament women's golf chairman.

The women's winner, Mrs. Daley, will have her name engraved on the Sylvia Voss Memorial plaque, in memory of one of Wiltwyck's former outstanding members.

On days off, Greenberg and Kiner would go out and have batting practice under real game conditions. That was a time, of course, when you could get somebody to pitch and somebody to shag.

His advice to youngsters: they should hit for an hour, at least five times a week, if they love the game and plan a future in it. Little League, he said, simply doesn't give the kids enough chance to improve their batting with its twice-a-week schedule.

Len Cane, program chairman of the Lions introduced Kiner at the luncheon. Richard Rochford made arrangements for his visit.

Mira Is Second Fiddle, But Trull Gets Bounced

By GARY KALE
UPI Sports Writer

George Mira may have to play second fiddle, but it's better than being in the shoes of unemployed Don Trull.

Mira, reserve quarterback with the San Francisco Forty Niners, lost out to veteran John Brodie again as coach Dick Nolan decided to go with the man who engineered a million dollar contract with the club several years ago.

Trull, the top collegiate passer at Baylor in 1962-63, never realized his full potential, first with Houston and then with Boston. He was a reserve to George Blanda most of his Oiler career and when sent to the Patriots played in the shadow of Babe Parilli. Boston finally released him.

Nolan, a former defensive halfback with the New York Giants and later on the Dallas coaching staff, gave the 26-year-old Mira an opportunity to find gold in the Forty-Niner backfield. But the former Miami (Fla.) signal caller couldn't get the team rolling in pre-exhibition games.

Moved Team Better
Brodie failed to do much better as San Francisco dropped four of five starts, but Nolan said he moved the team more consistently. Nolan bulwarked Brodie's pass-catching brigade as the Forty Niners acquired speedster Clifton McNeil from the Cleveland Browns earlier this week for a high draft choice.

Trull became expendable with Houston when the Oilers obtained Pete Beathard from the Chiefs and was reduced in stature in Boston after Mike Taliaferro impressed coach Mike Holovak as starting quarterback material. Taliaferro was Joe Namath's understudy.

Colts Down to 44
Elsewhere, the Baltimore Colts reduced their roster to 44 as Jim Welch, primarily a safety man, and defensive back George Harold lost their jobs; the Philadelphia Eagles placed defensive end Len Persin on the injury list, after he underwent surgery for torn ligaments of the left knee, and waived linebacker Fred Brown; the St. Louis Cardinals traded running back Charley Bryant to the Atlanta Falcons for a future draft choice and Karl Noonan was named to replace injured Jack Clancy at split end with Miami.

Miss Mann leads second-place Miss Whitworth by nearly $3,000 in their two-gal race for the LPGA official earnings championship this season.

Whitworth Tops LPGA on $44Cs

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Carol Mann, bidding to dethrone Kathy Whitworth as the champion money-winner of the Ladies Professional Golf Association, soared to a new LPGA record in total earnings this week with $44,934.

Miss Mann, who boosted her official earnings to $36,060, also broke Mickey Wright's old record of most rounds in the 60s in one season and there are several tourneys left on this year's tour.

Miss Mann fired three consecutive rounds in the 60s to win the LPGA Invitational at Calgary, Canada, Sunday. She now has 16 such rounds this year to surpass Miss Wright's previous record of 14.

Miss Mann leads second-place Miss Whitworth by nearly $3,000 in their two-gal race for the LPGA official earnings championship this season.

The top 10 with tourney victories in parentheses:

1. Carol Mann (8) $36,060
2. Kathy Whitworth (5) $33,260
3. Sandra Haynie (0) $19,024
4. Mickey Wright (4) $17,147.50
5. Marilyn Smith (1) $14,294
6. Clifford Ann Creed (0) $13,954.50
7. Sandra Spuzich (0) $12,899
8. Shirley Englehorn (1) $11,624.50
9. Sandra Palmer (0) $10,757.50
10. Judy Kimball (0) $10,016.50

Giants Acquire Lane of Browns

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Giants of the National Football League announced today the acquisition of Quarterback Gary Lane from the Cleveland Browns in return for surrendering a draft choice, probably a high one.

Lane has been the No. 2 quarterback of the Browns and is expected to take a similar position with the Giants behind Fran Tarkenton.

The Giants were led to make the deal after Gary Wood, their regular second string quarterback, badly sprained his right ankle in practice last week. He may be out of action for several weeks.

Lane, who comes from the University of Missouri, is a three year man in pro ranks. He is 6-1, weighs 210, and is 25 years old. He is expected to report today. The Giants will need to cut someone from the squad to make room for him.

time by erupting for four runs in the ninth inning to down the Oakland A's 6-3 and stretch their American League lead to eight games.

The Key hit was by Northrup, who stepped to the plate in the ninth with the bases loaded and one out and the Tigers trailing 3-2. He stroked a two-run single to put the Tigers ahead to stay 4-3.

But it was Northrup's fault the Tigers were behind in the first place. In the last of the eighth with the Tigers leading 2-1, and runners on first and second with two out, Joe Keough singled to tie the game—but when the ball caromed off Northrup's ankle for an error, Sal Bando scored the go-ahead run for Oakland all the way from first.

"You usually don't get the opportunity to make up for it when you kick one like that," Northrup said. "I was happy to get the opportunity. I was even surprised the manager (Mayo Smith) let me hit against the lefty."

Stays With Southpaw
The A's brought in lefthander Warren Bogle to face Northrup but Smith decided to stick with the lefthanded hitting Northrup. Smith said he wanted to go with Northrup and then if the outfielder failed, he'd pinch-hit for the next batter, lefthander Norm Cash.

The Tigers, who haven't won the pennant since 1945, rededicated their "magic number" to 15 Cisco Carlos suffered the loss.

Lee Maye collected three hits, scored three runs and drove in two as Cleveland brushed Oakland. Maye led off the game with a homer and scored twice more after singling. Russ Snyder added a two-run homer in the ninth for the Indians. Sam McDowell, 14-11, got the win and Jim McGlothlin, 10-13, took the loss.

Reggie Smith hit a two-run homer and Joe Foy collected three singles and knocked in two runs as the Red Sox beat the Twins in the five-inning game. Dick Ellsworth allowed six hits in the five innings to gain the victory while Jim Merritt was the loser.

Pinch-hitter Tim Cullen's two-run single with the bases-loaded and two out in the sixth inning carried Washington past Chicago. Joe Coleman pitched a four-hitter to gain the triumph and his "magic number" to 15 Cisco Carlos suffered the loss.

Thomas Top Braves Hurler With 9-1 Record and 145 Ks

Ron Thomas, the bellwether of the Kingston Braves pennant winning pitching staff in the Hudson Valley Rookie League, fanned batters at the rate of almost two per inning en route to a 9-1 record.

Thomas struck out 145 batters in 72 2/3 innings in 11 games, just a fraction under the 2-mark. He hurled six shutouts, two no-hitters and one 1-hitter, narrowly missing three consecutive no-hitters.

The statistics compiled by Art Altheiser, official club statistician, follow:

Bench Seems Cinch For Rookie of Year

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds is making as much of a runaway race for rookie of the year honors as the St. Louis Cardinals are making of the National League pennant race.

Bench's selection has become almost automatic in recent weeks as he has staged a late-season spurt while pitcher Jerry Koosman of the New York Mets, the Cincinnati catcher's principal rival for the award, has lost four straight games and "slumped" to a 16-10 record.

The 20-year old native of Oklahoma City has the most impressive credentials among the NL rookies with a .279

batting average, 12 homers, two triples, 34 doubles and 72 runs batted in. He is a slow runner but as manager Red Schoendienst of the St. Louis Cardinals remarked Tuesday night, "if he could run, he'd be a combination of Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth."

Bench hit his second game-tying two-run homer with two out in the ninth inning as many games Tuesday night, although the Cardinals pulled out a 5-3 11-inning victory and increased their league lead to 14 games.

Curt Flood singled home the tie-breaking run in the 11th after two walks and a wild pitch and Roger Maris, who also had three doubles, drove in the second run of the frame with a sacrifice fly. Joe Hoerner, who pitched only 1.3 of an inning, received credit for the victory, raising his record to 7-2. Pete Rose homered for the Reds' first run.

The Chicago Cubs downed the tie-breaking run in the 11th after two walks and a wild pitch and Roger Maris, who also had three doubles, drove in the second run of the frame with a sacrifice fly. HOOPLE, N.D. (NEA)—Yes, friends, there is indeed a Hoople, North Dakota, a perfectly charming little community of 334 upright, honorable, virtuous citizens.

Located on the Great Northern Railroad, some 15 miles from thriving Grafton, the township was settled—hak-kaff—by one of my illustrious ancestors.

Periodically, to escape the pressures of industry, the hustle-bustle of Wall Street, and to feel the pulse of the people, I slip away for a fortnight in this rustic retreat.

But, to coin a phrase, all good things must come to an end! And the nip in the air this morning reminded me it was time to end this pleasant sojourn in captivating Hoople and get about the business of capturing the elusive collegiate pigskin winners.

What does the 1968 season have in store? Our preliminary surveys, computations, and on-the-spot investigations indicate that, like upset-laden 1967, this fall's campaign is well nigh unpredictable.

However, my dear readers, consider your good fortune in having available to you the peerless Hoople System which compiled a phenomenal .700 average (300 victories, 130 misses) in 1967—har-rumph! And, consider if you will, this remarkable record was achieved while prognosticating only the top college encounters—matching the best coached, the most evenly matched independent eleven and those from the major conferences—um-kumph!

To this sparkling record add the astonishing upsets pegged for you by the Hoople System last year—Houston to stun Michigan State, Northwestern to shock powerful Miami (Fla.), and underdog Tennessee to end Alabama's 25-game unbeaten string, to name just a few.

In this era of new politics, new leadership, new ideas, your correspondent has no desire to dwell on the past, so on to the new!

gent Tulane and follows with rugged Texas. N. C. State starts with tough Wake Forest and then tangles with traditional rival North Carolina, while Terry Hanratty and his friends at Notre Dame take on bruising Oklahoma and Prude's Boilermakers, featuring Leroy Keyes, on succeeding Saturday.

A word of warning to Ohio State foes: my pupil Woody Hayes tells me the freshman squad was his best ever and enough of them will matriculate to the varsity to keep the Buckeyes in the Big Ten title chase. Ivy Leaguers had best keep both eyes on my beloved Yale—Boola-Boola—where the brilliant Brian Dowling will lead the Bulldogs as captain and quarterback.

Out in sunny California, O.J. (Orange Juice) Simpson is getting ready to put the squeeze on Trojan opponents, while making a personal assault on the Heisman Trophy.

Neither time nor space permit me to run down the schedules and merits of the many, many other fine teams that will thrill you this year.

White's triple with the bases filled in the ninth inning and the combined five-hit pitching of Fritz Peterson and Dooly Womack carried the New York Yankees to a 6-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night.

Peterson, who retired 10 Orioles batters in a row at one point, recorded his ninth win even though the Yankee southpaw left the game in the ninth inning when he was struck on the right wrist by a pitched ball. The victory shoved the Yankees over the .500 mark.

Nip Lasher, the winner, and Ken Benjamin combined for a 2-hitter for Schrade's and were backed by 13 hits, including a two-run homer by Charlie Page during a nine-run outburst in the fourth inning.

Page had two singles in addition to his home run. Darmstadter stroked two doubles for the winners. Dick Conklin was tagged with the loss.

Mets Split With Braves

NEW YORK UPI — J.C. Martin slammed his third homer of the season and drove in three runs Tuesday night to pace the New York Mets to a 4-3 victory over the Atlanta Braves in the first game of a two-night doubleheader.

Tommie Aaron dropped a bases-loaded single into short right field with nobody out in the 12th inning to give the Braves a 7-6 win in the second game.

Ron Taylor blanked the Braves over the final two innings of the opener while recording his 13th save of the season. The starter, Tom Seaver, was credited with the victory, his 14th against 9 defeats.

First Playoff Games To Barbers and Boo's

SAUGERTIES—Pennant runnerup Michael's Barber Shop downed pennant winner Glasco Athletic Club, 6-3, in the opener of the best-of-three playoff finals in the Yankee division of the Saugerties Softball League.

In the Met division, the champion Boo's Tavern survived a three-inning scare to nip Ted's Esso, the runner-up, 8-7, in their first playoff game.

Frank Allen's homer behind Frank Secreto's single sent AC ahead 2-0, in the top of the first, but the Barbers bounced back with three in their half. Two walks, two errors, a sacrifice fly by Mickey Lannone and the first of three hits by Paul (Boots) Euytkins accounted for the trio.

Michael's added a pair of tainted tallies in the third when Lannone doubled in runners who had singled and reached on an error. Glasco also got an unearned tally in the fifth, as Bunny Rios singled, stole second and came all the way home when the centerfielder bobbled the catcher's throw.

Speirs' single behind a walk and pitch closed out the Barber scoring in the sixth.

made a leaping catch to rob Mouse Woven of a potent homer.

The second game of the series is scheduled Friday at 7:30 p.m. Boo's opened up a 5-2 lead over Ted's in the Met playoff, but Esso's stormed back with three in the sixth and two in the seventh to fall one tally short.

Control Trouble

Maurice Hinchey had control trouble, walking 10 Boo's and he was raked for 12 hits, including six for extra bases.

The score:

Boo's Tavern (6) Ted's Esso (7)

Major HOOPLES FOOTBALL FORECAST

Hoople Returns for Gridiron Forecasts; Predicts Roughest Sailing for Pickers

HOOPLE, N.D. (NEA)—Yes, friends, there is indeed a Hoople, North Dakota, a perfectly charming little community of 334 upright, honorable, virtuous citizens.

Located on the Great Northern Railroad, some 15 miles from thriving Grafton, the township was settled—hark!—by one of my illustrious ancestors.

Periodically, to escape the pressures of industry, the hustle-bustle of Wall Street, and to feel the pulse of the people, I slip away for a fortnight in this rustic retreat.

But, to coin a phrase, all good things must come to an end! And the nip in the air this morning reminded me it was time to end this pleasant sojourn in captivating Hoople and get about the business of capturing the elusive collegiate pigskin winners.

However, my dear readers, consider your good fortune in having available to you the peerless Hoople System which compiled a phenomenal 700 average (300 victories, 130 misses) in 1967—har-rumph! And, consider if you will, this remarkable record was achieved while prognosticating only the top college encounters—matching the best coached, the most evenly matched independent eleven and those from the major conferences—um-kumph!

To this sparkling record add the astonishing upsets pegged for you by the Hoople System last year—Houston to stun Michigan State, Northwestern to shock powerful Miami (Fla.), underdog Tennessee to end Alabama's 25-game unbeaten string, to name just a few.

In this era of new politics, new leadership, new ideas, your correspondent has no desire to dwell on the past, so on to the new!

gent Tulane and follows with rugged Texas. N. C. State starts with tough Wake Forest and then tangles with traditional rival North Carolina, while Terry Hanratty and his friends at Notre Dame take on bruising Oklahoma and Prude's Boilermakers, featuring Leroy Keyes, on succeeding Saturdays.

A word of warning to Ohio State foes: my pupil Woody Hayes tells me the freshman squad was his best ever and enough of them will matriculate to the varsity to keep the Buckeyes in the Big Ten title chase. Ivy Leaguers had best keep both eyes on my beloved Yale—Boola-Boola—where the brilliant Brian Dowling will lead the Bulldogs as captain and quarterback.

Out in sunny California, O.J. (Orange Juice) Simpson is getting ready to put the squeeze on Trojan opponents, while making a personal assault on the Heisman Trophy.

The Hoople Forecasting Force has been fortunate in securing the services of Chet Thinkley, the human computer, this season. "Think" earned his human computer appellation while working at the NASA lab in Cleveland. He continually confounded his co-workers with lighting like mental gyrations that solved intricate mathematical problems faster than the computers could crank out the answers. All of my regular assistants—Dr. I. M. Inorbit, Red Beard Daily, and Hannibal Wottabur—will be back on duty.

The opening game on the TV tube matches strong Georgia and Tennessee. The winner will be—well, watch this newspaper for my forecast of the games of Saturday, Sept. 14.

Egad! A man of lesser intellectual fortitude than this writer would be tempted to toss in the towel before the first kickoff! However, the more challenging the task, the more appealing it is to a Hoople!

UCLA Swimmer Shatters Record

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—Mike Burton, a 21-year-old senior at UCLA, splashed his way to victory in the 1,500-meter freestyle in the world-record shattering time of 16:08.5 Tuesday night in the windup of the men's Olympic Swimming Trials.

Burton's clocking topped nearly 20 seconds off the former world standard of 16:28.1 set by Guillermo Fchevarria earlier this year.

Burton, who competes for the Arden Hills Swim Club of Sacramento, Calif., led all the way in his easy victory.

John Kinsella, a 16-year-old high school student from Hinsdale, Ill., and John Nelson, of Pompano Beach, Fla., finished second and third respectively to earn places on the U.S. Olympic team at Mexico City along with Burton.

Another world record was set when the 400-meter freestyle relay team which will compete in Mexico next month was clocked in 3:32.5 to shave one-tenth of a second off the former mark set last year in Tokyo.

Yanks Clip Orioles, 6-1

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Roy White's triple with the bases filled in the ninth inning and the combined five-hit pitching of Fritz Peterson and Dooley Womack carried the New York Yankees to a 6-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night.

Peterson, who retired 10 Oriole batters in a row at one point, recorded his ninth win even though the Yankee southpaw left the game in the ninth inning when he was struck on the right wrist by a pitched ball. The victory shoved the Yankees over the .500 mark.

White's triple came in the ninth inning as New York scored four times.

If you think hunting isn't frustrating at times, it may be interesting to note that it took 5,282 hunters to harvest 122 turkeys in the first Spring Turkey season conducted by the State Conservation Department in five western counties of the state.

The hunt was held May 6-May 11 in Chataqua, Cattaraugus, Allegany, Steuben and Chemung counties. A total of 11,300 permits were issued and only bearded turkeys (even have hippies in game!) could be taken from sunrise to 10 a. m.

The reported kill of 122 birds indicates that 2.3 per cent of the hunters were successful. Twenty seven per cent (1,449) reported sighting a bird. Of these, 398, or seven per cent, shot at turkeys. It is believed that the inexperience of many of the hunters, and the wariness of the turkeys, may have been a big factor in the relatively low kill.

Only one banded bird was taken during the hunt. That gobbler was banded in January, 1963, at which time it weighed 11 lbs., one ounce. When taken it was about six miles from the trap release site and weighed 24 lbs., 3 ounces.

And, if you think hunters don't travel, how's about this for distance: New York City and Long Island were represented by 51 applicants; Pennsylvania by 22; New Jersey by 13; Ohio by 4 and from way down south in Florida came two. Seems like a long way to go for that holiday bird.

For local hunters planning to hunt the wary gobblers come Oct. 7 in Delaware County, Old Rip prefers the white meat with chestnut dressing.

WE ARE LOOKING forward to the first fall meeting of Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County at the High Woods Sportsman Club. At that time some very important matters are to be discussed and representatives of the Catskill Chapter of Trout Unlimited are expected to attend.

Seems like the Federation and T-U don't quite understand the objectives of each other's organization. We're confident a constructive discussion may be the only way to resolve the differences.

We do know that better cooperation on the part of both groups would go far in stepping up improvement of stream conditions and a fight to rid area streams of pollution problems which daily worsen all over the county.

We're grateful to Richard Nace, chairman of the Lower Esopus Creek Committee and county legislator, for the invitation to sit in at a round table discussion on solving problems in the lower Esopus area. Color films of the area will be shown and some of the problems involved will be explained.

The meeting will be open to the public and is scheduled next Thursday at 8 p. m. at the county office building, fifth floor. Both Nace and Huyler Van Wagenen and their committees are to be commended for their sometimes frustrating efforts to bring this fine stretch of water to its original state which provided good recreation for many sportsmen.

West Esopus Landowners Association have set a Sunday, Sept. 15, date for its annual turkey shoot at their club grounds. All types of shooting for the public will be available.

Still on the turkey scene, Phoenicia Fish and Game Association will hold its gala turkey shoot on Sunday, Oct. 13, at the clubhouse grounds. The Phoenicia club is still awaiting final papers for their move to the Silver Hollow sector.

IT WAS MIGHTY SLIM pickings for those IBMers who set sail recently in search of bluefish. As is almost always the case, the fish were few and far between, although all agreed they had a nice boat ride in the wild blue yonder.

Reports from Olivera, one of the finest deer hunting areas in the county, indicate not nearly as many deer as in the past. Where herds of 50 and 60 deer were once commonplace, now only a few have been seen in that area.

From an old native comes this quote: "If they don't get rid of those party permits, the deer in this area will be few and hard to find." The unwanted killing of button bucks and collie dog fawns has gone a long way toward depleting the deer herd around Olivera.

OLD RIP SEZ: After that Labor Day highway death toll, we wonder what the law makers will do. Remember, those cars were licensed and registered!

Drysdale's Victory: The Tennis Shocker

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Cliff Drysdale of South Africa has set back the game of tennis by 20 years—or is it 100?

The 27-year-old sharpshooter with a two-flisted backhand wrecked top-seeded pro king Rod Laver of Australia in five sets Tuesday, with stay-in-the-backcourt tactics of a sort that even most of the gals disdain these days.

"Contrary to what everyone, including myself, has been thinking all these years, I realized you don't have to rush the net all the time to win on fast grass if you have ground strokes that are good enough," said Drysdale.

Wide Open Race
They were eminently good enough to blast Wimbledon open to reach them today against champ Laver, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, 6-1, to give Cliff a berth in the quarter-finals of the $100,000 top professional prize into a wide open winding.

Laver insisted his service let him down and that, indeed, contributed to the wildest upset of the year. He was almost as pitiful in the last two sets, trying to hold off Drysdale while running up his total double faults in the match to 14. Five came in the last set.

Army Lieut. Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Clark Graebner of New York, both amateurs and surprise semi-finalists at Wimbledon, romped into the quarter-finals along with pro John Newcombe of Australia.

Larsen's Two-Hitter Keeps Jets in Pursuit of Toledo

By United Press International
Although Columbus is 1 1-2 games behind Toledo in the International League pennant race, the Jets are actually one game up in the loss column and Ken Larsen kept their pennant hopes alive Tuesday night.

Larsen (19-6) spun a two-hitter as the Jets topped the Richmond Braves 4-1 to boost their season record to 77-67; Toledo has four more victories, 81, but has lost 62 games. Larsen lost his bid for a shutout when Dave Nicholson clubbed his 31st homer in the second inning. The big righthanded slugger now leads the league in home runs.

In other action Toledo defeated Buffalo 7-2. Syracuse beat Rochester 1-0 and 3-2 in a two-

If you think hunting isn't frustrating at times, it may be interesting to note that it took 5,282 hunters to harvest 122 turkeys in the first Spring Turkey season conducted by the State Conservation Department in five western counties of the state.

The hunt was held May 6-May 11 in Chataqua, Cataraugus, Allegheny, Steuben and Chemung counties. A total of 11,300 permits were issued and only bearded turkeys (even have hippies in game!) could be taken from sunrise to 10 a. m.

The reported kill of 122 birds indicates that 2.3 per cent of the hunters were successful. Twenty seven per cent (1,449) reported sighting a bird. Of these, 398, or seven per cent, shot at turkeys. It is believed that the inexperience of many of the hunters, and the wariness of the turkeys, may have been a big factor in the relatively low kill.

Only one banded bird was taken during the hunt. That gobbler was banded in January, 1963, at which time it weighed 11 lbs., one ounce. When taken it was about six miles from the trap release site and weighed 24 lbs., 3 ounces.

And, if you think hunters don't travel, how's about this for distance: New York City and Long Island were represented by 51 applicants; Pennsylvania by 22; New Jersey by 13; Ohio by 4 and from way down south in Florida came two. Seems like a long way to go for that holiday bird.

For local hunters planning to hunt the wary gobblers come Oct. 7 in Delaware County, Old Rip prefers the white meat with chestnut dressing.

WE ARE LOOKING forward to the first fall meeting of Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County at the High Woods Sportsmen Club. At that time some very important matters are to be discussed and representatives of the Catskill Chapter of Trout Unlimited are expected to attend.

Seems like the Federation and T-U don't quite understand the objectives of each other's organization. We're confident a constructive discussion may be the only way to resolve the differences.

We do know that better cooperation on the part of both groups would go far in stepping up improvement of stream conditions and a fight to rid area streams of pollution problems which daily worsen all over the county.

We're grateful to Richard Nace, chairman of the Lower Esopus Creek Committee and county legislator, for the invitation to sit in at a round table discussion on solving problems in the lower Esopus area. Color films of the area will be shown and some of the problems involved will be explained.

The meeting will be open to the public and is scheduled next Thursday at 8 p. m. at the county office building, fifth floor. Both Nace and Huyler Van Wagenen and their committees are to be commended for their sometimes frustrating efforts to bring this fine stretch of water to its original state which provided good recreation for many sportsmen.

West Esopus Landowners Association have set a Sunday, Sept. 15, date for its annual turkey shoot at their club grounds. All types of shooting for the public will be available.

Still on the turkey scene, Phoenicia Fish and Game Association will hold its gala turkey shoot on Sunday, Oct. 13, at the clubhouse grounds. The Phoenicia club is still awaiting final papers for their move to the Silver Hollow sector.

IT WAS MIGHTY SLIM pickings for those IBMers who set sail recently in search of bluefish. As is almost always the case, the fish were few and far between, although all agreed they had a nice boat ride in the wild blue yonder.

Reports from Olivera, one of the finest deer hunting areas in the county, indicate not nearly as many deer as in the past. Where herds of 50 and 60 deer were once commonplace, now only a few have been seen in that area.

From an old native comes this quote: "If they don't get rid of those party permits, the deer in this area will be few and hard to find." The unwanted killing of button bucks and collie dog fawns has gone a long way toward depleting the deer herd around Olivera.

OLD RIP SEZ: After that Labor Day highway death toll, we wonder what the law makers will do. Remember, those cars were licensed and registered!

Drysdale's Victory: The Tennis Shocker

By STEVE SNIDER
UPI Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI)—Cliff Drysdale of South Africa has set back the game of tennis by 20 years—or is it 100?

The 27-year-old sharpshooter with a two-fisted backhand wrecked top-seeded pro king Rod Laver of Australia in five sets Tuesday, with stay-in-the-backcourt tactics of a sort that even most of the gals disdain these days.

"Contrary to what everyone, including myself, has been thinking all these years, I realized you don't have to rush the net all the time to win on fast grass if you have ground strokes that are good enough," said Drysdale.

Wide Open Race

They were eminently good enough to blast Wimbledon open to reach them today against champ Laver, 4-6, 6-4, 3-6, 6-1, Nicola Pilic of Yugoslavia, but 6-1, to give Cliff a berth in the two other Americans still quarter-finals of the $100,000 top "alive" in men's singles face professional prize into a wide rugged Australian pros.

Laver insisted his service let him down and that, indeed, contributed to the wildest upset of the year. He was almost pitiful in the last two sets, trying to hold off Drysdale while running up his total double faults in the match to 14. Five came in the last set.

Army Lieut. Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Clark Graebner of New York, both amateurs and surprise semi-finalists at Wimbledon, romped into the quarter-finals along with pro John Newcombe of Australia.

Ralston Seeks Berth

Dennis Ralston, a touring pro from Bakersfield, Calif., hopes enough to blast Wimbledon open to reach them today against Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., was paired against third-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia while Pancho Gonzales of Malibu, Calif., goes against second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia, in a match that couldn't get on the court Tuesday because of the length of previous duels in the main arenas.

Billie Jean plays Maryna Godwin of South Africa.

Larsen's Two-Hitter Keeps Jets in Pursuit of Toledo

By United Press International
Although Columbus is 1 1/2 games behind Toledo in the International League pennant race, the Jets are actually one game up in the loss column and Ken Larsen kept their pennant hopes alive Tuesday night.

Larsen (10-6) spun a two-hitter as the Jets topped the Richmond Braves 4-1 to boost their season record to 77-62; Toledo has four more victories, 81, but has lost 62 games. Larsen lost his bid for a shutout when Dave Nicholson clubbed his 31st homer in the second inning. The big righthanded slugger now leads the league in home runs.

In other action Toledo defeated Buffalo 7-2. Syracuse beat Rochester 1-0 and 3-2 in a two-

Dolly Dime Cops Raceway Feature

MONTICELLO — Dolly Dime, a bay mare that enjoyed success early in the season, got right back on that winning form last night at Monticello Raceway, taking the featured trot, a $1,000 Class C-2 event, by a half length in 2:09.4.

Driven by Ed Lohmeyer, Jr., Dolly Dime left from post five and cut out the early speed. The daughter of Jody Hanover-Lady Dime, Dolly Dime led at the first quarter in :31.3, but lost the lead the top to Miss Nat (7-Marcel Lebevre) in the paddock turn. The half found Miss Nat on the front end in 1:05.1 with Dolly second.

In the backstretch, Lohmeyer made his move, passing Miss Nat before the three-fourths pole, and hit the mark in 1:38.1 on the outside.

Coming home, Dolly held off a dual challenge by Mr. Gordon (2-Ken Henney) and Caballero (3-Mike Dolan), beating out Mr. Gordon by a half length while Caballero was another neck back.

Sent off at 7-2, Dolly Dime paid $9.40, 3.80 and 4.60. Mr. Gordon was worth $3.60 and 3.60 for place while Caballero had a $7.20 show payoff.

The daily double found a pair of fours, Bellissima and Shenadore, clicking for an $88.40 return.

Vaudevillians used to stutter."I'm from Walla Walla, the t-town they named twice."
The latest comedy-celebrated community is Burbank, population 97,000, whose chamber of commerce threw big civic luncheon the other day to honor television's Dan Rowan and Dick Martin for references to "beautiful downtown Burbank"on their "laugh-in" series. The comedians tape the show at the NBC studios in Burbank.
The "lunch-in" had all the trimmings: Rowan, Martin and their cast arriving on shrieking
Burbank fire trucks... about 1,000 diners... a congressman and several state legislators onthe dais... honorary chamber memberships and ambassadorial sashes for Dan and Dick ... kisses from Miss Burbank, Terry Murphy."You have made 'beautiful downtown Burbank' a nationally recognized slogan," Mayor John
B. Whitney intoned.The honors actually represented a turning of the other cheek. Rowan and Martin—ignoring the town's $1 million shopping mall, starlight theater and other attractions—had filmed and shown the national audience a dilapidated motel, trash-littered alleys and other views as "beautiful downtown Burbank.""Luckily," said Rowan, "we have a community with a sense of humor."
The reverse of praise has paid off in tourist-attracting publicity
"you couldn't afford to buy," said the mayor. A tourist wrote him, "we drove all the way from Cleveland to see beautiful downtown Burbank."New York comics still get cheers with Brooklyn. And a grateful Waukegan, Benny's off-mentioned home town, named a junior high school for him.Other aspects of show business also publicize towns:
—Television series titles: Laramie, Laredo and Gunsmoke's Dodge City.
—Songs: "San Francisco,"
"Chicago," "Memphis Blues,"
"Kalamazoo"—the list is almost endless.Plaques and awards express Tijuana's gratitude to Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass for worldwide attention.And producer-emcee Ralph Edwards literally put Truth or Consequences, N.M., on the map in 1950 by persuading Hot Springs, N.M., to change its name to that of his radio-TV show. Every year since, he has taken a troupe of stars there for a four-day fiesta.The town has grown in population from 4,700 to 6,700 and twice voted down proposals to change its name back to Hot Springs, most recently by about

Lady Is Common Thief

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We own a small high grade market in one of the better neighborhoods. Our problem is a very stylish lady of about 50 who patronizes us regularly. We've seen her slip small cans of button mushrooms, caviar, smoked oysters, and similar delicacies into her coat pocket.

She can well afford to pay for the items she steals. We've considered asking her to do her shopping elsewhere, but we haven't the nerve. She is such a respected lady that we can't follow her out of the store and demand that she empty her pockets like a common thief. Perhaps if you print this in your column she'll realize she's not getting away with anything. In the meantime, what is your advice?

DEAR UNSIGNED: Unless you want to continue to keep this "respected lady" in button mushrooms, caviar, smoked oysters and similar delicacies, I suggest that you follow her out of the store and demand that she empty her pockets like the common thief that she is. And until you do, she is indeed getting away with plenty.

DEAR ABBY: After 9 years of marriage my wife wants twin beds. I can't understand it and neither can our seven kids. Do you think she's getting tired of me? She says she will sleep better in twin beds. Frankly, if she slept any better, she would be dead. Please tell me how to handle this problem. I like to have her next to me.

DEAR ST. LOUIS: The desire for twin beds is no proof that your wife is "getting tired" of you. Seven kids in nine years may mean she's getting just plain "tired."

DEAR ABBY: There is a local hangout in our small town where I met a boy from another state. We just rode around and talked and he asked to see me the next night. I liked him so I did. That night he told me he was married and had two kids. I should have told him good-bye right then and there, but I liked him so much, I just couldn't.

Abby, I only intended to have a good time and forget about him, and he said he had the same intentions, but it wasn't that simple for either of us. He says he's in love with me, and I know I love him. I just can't stop seeing him. He says he's thinking about divorcing his wife and marrying me. Its gone beyond the point of turning back. I think about him night and day and I worry my poor mother to death—but I can't give him up, even if he is another woman's man. Please help me.

MIXED UP: As long as you keep telling yourself you CAN'T give him up, you won't be able to. Tell yourself you CAN give him up because you must. Wipe the stardust out of your eyes, little girl. If he should divorce his wife and marry you, what would you have? A guy who romances another girl when his wife is out of sight. If that's your idea of a good husband, you have a lot to learn.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOT-TIE: Everyone has his "ups and downs." When you are "up" make it a point to help someone who is "down." It will lift you to even loftier heights, and surely help the one you've lifted.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ABBY'S NEW BOOKLET "WHAT TEEN-AGERS WANT TO KNOW," SEND $1.00 TO ABBY, BOX 69700, LOS ANGELES, CAL. 90069.

It's In The Stars

("The wise man controls his destiny . . . astrology points the way.")

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 5

ARIES (March 21-April 19): During afternoon hours you may find yourself closeted in meeting. Express yourself. Don't be intimidated by one who really is a paper tiger.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Today you are gratified at expression of appreciation. Friends are spotlighted—so are hopes, wishes. You are spurred to greater effort because you feel needed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Perceive meanings of subtle nuances. Means read between the lines—study fine print. Promote your own interests. Others may promise, but you must follow through.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Favorable lunar aspect today coincides with ability to reach beyond immediate environment.

MEANS you can communicate through writing, creative endeavors. Enlarge horizons.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Much today appears to be a mystery. You may have some difficulty penetrating layers of pretense. Know this and be patient. Some are covering up for financial reasons. Stay with it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Stress on papers, legal documents. Realize you are responsible for your own actions. Heed rules, regulations. Arrive at more mature understanding with mate, partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Health, job, basic policies are accented. News of a relative taking a journey could be one of day's highlights. Key is to maintain steady pace—avoid excess.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good moon aspect today coincides with love relations with children, expending creative energies. Be flexible.

Analyze your emotions. Choose quality over tinsel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Events may proceed to unravel at slow pace. Day represents a testing period. If you rush or panic, you lose. If mature, patient and wise, you emerge with profit and wisdom.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accent on short journey. Day to review ideas. Don't be afraid to change your mind. Creative thinking demands that you be flexible. Message from close relative deserves attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If observant you could make valuable discovery. Day to add to possessions. Throw out mediocrity. You are worth more than you may think.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You sparkle—personality intrigues and attracts. Your sense of humor, mystery are accented. Put yourself forward—refuse to take back seat. You are a winner today.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are a natural communicator, writer, teacher. You are attracted to fields such as photography and psychology. Before year is over you will make self-discovery of value.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Lunar position favorable for fishing. Cycle high for PISCES, ARIES. Special word to SCORPIO: be original—take a chance.

One Trick Less Avoids Danger

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Anyone can make five odd in hearts with today's cards. All he has to do is draw trumps, finesse successfully against West's queen of spades, discard one diamond on the long spade and wind up losing one club and one diamond.

Anyone can make five hearts, but a good player will make only four odd. He will see that his game contract is safe provided his opponents can't take a club, a spade and two diamonds, and he will guard against two diamonds losers by keeping East out of the lead.

He will start his campaign against East by letting West hold the first trick. Then he will win the club continuation and draw trumps with three leads, making sure he winds up in dummy. His next play will be to lead the jack, 10 or eight of spades from dummy and let it ride.

West will be happy to cash his queen but this won't interfere with South winning game and rubber. On the other hand, if the finesse were taken the other way and East got in the almost-automatic diamond shift it would gibe the defense four tricks.

The bidding of the hand illustrates the use of a limit raise. North has 11 points in support of hearts, not enough to force to game but enough to invite game strongly. In the early days of contract everyone used limit raises. Then, they disappeared for quite awhile only to start coming back into expert bidding. We rather expect they will get back into ordinary bidding also although they do indicate an unusual trend—a move toward simplicity.

After discovering that her boy friend had really given her a brummagem ring instead of the diamond he had promised the angry girl swore revenge.

Massive Dose of Statistics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — CBS wound up its ambitious series of seven programs, "Of Black America," with a massive dose of statistics—impressive, dismaying, hopeful and sometimes overwhelming.

Television is partial to polls and surveys and CBS in particular has been fiddling around for several seasons trying to find a way to handle percentages, majorities and minorities in some illuminating visual manner. One try was its series of do-it-yourself quizzes, in which the viewer scored himself on the basis of a poll.

While it has not yet found a really satisfactory method, a poll on the nation's attitudes on what narrator Charles Kuralt called its "two greatest fears, white racism and black extremists" was a logical and precise means of winding up the series.

Producers of the hour program did the only thing they could to dress up the visual proceedings surrounding the load of numbers and percentages. They put a camera on some of the persons polled and let them present their viewpoints—from extremists on both sides to the sympathetic middle-of-the-roaders.

It helped, but not enough. Television, by its very nature, has trouble handling statistics, whether it is reporting activity on the New York Stock Exchange or presenting the results of a poll. Such material is much easier handled on the printed page.

Generally, the series has been instructive, enlightening and purposeful. CBS can be proud of its thoughtful approach to a tough subject.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius Trade Mark Reg.

The things that will destroy America are peace at any price, prosperity at any price, safety first instead of duty first, love of soft living, and the get-rich-quick theory of life.

A couple, visiting New York City decided to take their 10-year-old son to a musical. They began to feel a little uneasy, however, when the chorus girls appeared, clad only in a scanty green and white ribbon. As the number ended, the boy leaned over and said to his mother: "Bobby—Mom, did you see that?"

Mrs. Brown (the mother)—Did I see what?
Bobby—Those girls. They're wearing our school colors!

Middle age is when you look forward to a dull evening.

A dumb movie starlet was a guest at the home of a music lover. While everyone was waiting for dinner and listening to the offerings of a string quartet, the starlet floated around imbibing in cocktails. At last the hostess approached her and asked: "Mrs. Gray—Would you care for a sonata before dinner?" Dolly (the would-be actress)—Well, I've already had a couple, but I guess I could stand another.

Summer's that time of year the kids slam the doors they left open all winter.

A Sunday school class was being quizzed on the prodigal son. The teacher asked one youngster: "Mrs. Smith—Who was sorry when the prodigal son returned home?" The boy gave it a lot of deep thought, then said: "Johnny—The fattest calf?"

BARBS

By PHIL PASTORET

There is no one more anonymous 24 hours after a political convention than a "favorite son."

No, Gwendolyn, a press conference isn't where the delegates gather to get their suits spruced-up.

Now is the season when you can drive 50 miles into the country to pick up produce available at the local supermarket.

The best way to keep a secret is quietly.

Friend of ours in going to have his television fixed, now that the conventions are over.

Bowling is said to have originated in Egypt some 7,000 years ago, and to this day mummy goes bowling every Monday night.

A government run by women is called a gynarchy—and the name has absolutely nothing to do with either the card game or the beverage.

Mack — These musical horns scare me half to death.
Jack — Why?

Prejudice is a loose idea tightly held.

Waitress — We have practically everything on the menu.
Driver — So I see. Can you bring me a clean one?

One mother confiding to another:
Mrs. Smith — My kid's been a little uneasy about starting back to school this term. He got the summer job one of his teachers wanted.

Every spotted apple is not rotten.

A woman was reaching for her second helping of dessert:
Mrs. Long — You know, I've just got to watch my waistline. Her friend replied:
Mrs. Lee — And, how lucky you are to have it right out there where you can.

Two Hippies were married in a bath tub. It was a Double Ring Ceremony.

Larry (to a friend) — Hear about the mortician who stole a motorcycle. They couldn't arrest him because he was licensed Hondabaker.

The poll, by an independent organization, was conducted among 1,000 persons in May and June.

Impressive were the findings that 9 of 10 Negroes disapprove of violence.

Dismaying were statistics showing one-third of whites sampled were, to some degree, racists—projected by Kuralt and his co-narrator, Hal Walker, to add up to between 35 million 40 million.

Hopeful were what the narrators called "areas of commonality"—agreement that overcrowding and resentment were the causes of the disturbances; that in time racial equality will be a reality. And also hopeful was the report that only a small minority of Negroes approve the extreme positions—five per cent, for instance, in the case of Rap Brown.

Producers of the hour program did the only thing they could to dress up the visual proceedings surrounding the load of numbers and percentages. They put a camera on some of the persons polled and let them present their viewpoints—from extremists on both sides to the sympathetic middle-of-the-roaders.

It helped, but not enough. Television, by its very nature, has trouble handling statistics, whether it is reporting activity on the New York Stock Exchange or presenting the results of a poll. Such material is much easier handled on the printed page.

Massive Dose of Statistics

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS wound up its ambitious series of seven programs, "Of Black America," with a massive dose of statistics—impressive, dismaying, hopeful and sometimes overwhelming.

Television is partial to polls and surveys and CBS in particular has been fiddling around for several seasons trying to find a way to handle percentages, majorities and minorities in some illuminating visual manner. One try was its series of do-it-yourself quizzes, in which the viewer scored himself on the basis of a poll.

While it has not yet found a really satisfactory method, a poll on the nation's attitudes on what narrator Charles Kuralt called its "two greatest fears, white racism and black extremists" was a logical and precise means of winding up the series.

The poll, by an independent organization, was conducted among 1,000 persons in May and June.

The things that will destroy America are peace at any price, prosperity at any price, safety first instead of duty first, love of soft living, and the get-rich-quick theory of life.

Mack — These musical horns scare me half to death.

Jack — Why?

Mack — Well the guy who ran off with my wife had one on his car and everytime I hear one I think he's bringing her back.

A couple, visiting New York City decided to take their 10-year-old son to a musical. They began to feel a little uneasy, however, when the chorus girls appeared, clad only in a scanty green and white ribbon. As the number ended, the boy leaned over and said to his mother:

Bobby — Mom, did you see that?

Mrs. Brown (the mother) — Did I see what?

Bobby — Those girls, they're wearing our school colors!

Middle age is when you look forward to a dull evening.

Prejudice is a loose idea tightly held.

Waitress — We have practically everything on the menu.

Driver — So I see. Can you bring me a clean one?

Mrs. Brown (the mother) — Did I see what?

Bobby — Those girls, they're wearing our school colors!

Middle age is when you look forward to a dull evening.

Prejudice is a loose idea tightly held.

A dumb movie starlet was a guest at the home of a music lover. While everyone was waiting for dinner and listening to the offerings of a string quartet, the starlet floated around imbibing in cocktails. At last the hostess approached her and asked:

Mrs. Gray—Would you care for a sonata before dinner?

Dolly (the would-be actress) — Well, I've already had a couple, but I guess I could stand another.

Summer's that time of year the kids slam the doors they left open all winter.

A Sunday school class was being quizzed on the prodigal son. The teacher asked one youngster:

Mrs. Smith—Who was sorry when the prodigal son returned home?

The boy gave it a lot of deep thought, then said:

Johnny—The fattest calf?

Reds Kayo Three Copters, Shell Key Coastal Cities

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist guerrillas shot down three U.S. helicopters, shelled two major coastal cities and ambushed an American convoy in a series of countrywide attacks announced by Saigon headquarters today.

U.S. Navy sources, meanwhile, disclosed that the Viet Cong have developed a "flying trashcan" rocket 10 times as powerful as their 100-pound, six-foot 122mm rocket to harass Saigon's shipping channel.

For the fourth day, U.S. spokesmen described ground action as "light and scattered" following heavy fighting last week which left 4,474 Communists dead according to South Vietnamese spokesmen.

But the Communists kept up a string of small hit-and-run actions.

Three Choppers Downed

The three downed helicopters—one in the Central Highlands, the second 60 miles northwest of Saigon, and the third in the Mekong Delta—brought to 833 the number of U.S. choppers shot down in South Vietnam, spokesmen said.

Three Americans were killed and a fourth was wounded in the Mekong Delta crash, the communists said. In addition, a U.S. brigade commander, a colonel, died leading his men into Viet Cong fire in an attempt to rescue the chopper's crewmen. His identification was withheld.

The helicopter brought down northwest of Saigon was on a mission to rescue the pilots of an Air Force F4 Phantom shot down minutes earlier. The entire helicopter crew and the two Phantom crewmen were all rescued, the announcement said.

The shelling of Quang Ngai on the northern coast and Nha Trang on the central coast killed two Vietnamese civilians and wounded 27. Ten rounds hit Quang Ngai. At least 20 slammed into Nha Trang, the first time in months it has been shelled.

Springing from ambush, guerrillas attacked an American convoy moving through the flatlands 40 miles northwest of Saigon with rockets, mortars and heavy machinegun fire, used for the first time against an American merchant ship, the SS Transglobe, in an attack along the Saigon shipping channel Aug. 30. Four were fired and one hit the ship, killing one crewman.

The new rockets were nicknamed "trashcan" because they look like an ordinary trash can mounted atop the seven-nozzle motor of a 122mm rocket.

Just Misery for the Viet Folk: Harriman on Red Raids in South

PARIS (UPI)—U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman charged today that renewed Communist attacks in South Vietnam had accomplished "nothing except misery for the people."

Harriman, on his way to the 20th session of the Paris talks on Vietnam which opened May 13, said he would have little to say to the North Vietnamese negotiators.

"I am demanding that the North Vietnamese stop their propaganda and answer a very simple question which the President asked... what would happen if the bombing (of North Vietnam) stopped entirely?" he said.

Called Inconsistent

Harriman said the Communists were using North Vietnamese soldiers almost entirely in South Vietnam. He said that was "inconsistent" with the program of the Viet Cong's probing in an effort to find independence day, promised a some way of getting Hanoi to accept some of our proposals for de-escalating the conflict," a high U.S. official said.

Harriman asked his North Vietnamese counterpart, Xuan Thuy, last week what North Vietnam was prepared to do if the United States quit bombing North Vietnam.

Thuy declined to answer then but a response came Monday from Premier Pham Van Dong of North Vietnam.

Czech Premier Calls Cabinet To Map the Economic Revival

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czechoslovakia today felt the other, softer Soviet hand of persuasion—economic compromise—exactly two weeks after it awoke in the military grip of the Warsaw Pact allies.

Premier Oldrich Cernik today summoned his cabinet to chart a course to economic revival. Political sources said the agenda included a Soviet offer of a $300 to $500 million hard currency loan, possible reparations for occupation damage and a nine-year Soviet-Czechoslovak trade pact.

Part of Agreement These benefits, the sources said, were part of the agreement reached in the Kremlin discussions between Soviet leaders and the Czechoslovak officials taken to Moscow just after the Aug. 20 invasion.

Cernik and his cabinet were constructing the new Czechoslovak economy without the counsel of self-exiled former Deputy Premier Ota Sik—mastermind of the liberal economic reform program that outraged orthodox Communists. Czechoslovak radio announced Tuesday night that President Ludvig Svoboda had relieved Sik of his post at Sik's request, confirming an earlier report from the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

The ouster of Sik, who is reported to be in Belgrade, followed the earlier downgrading of prominent liberals Cestmir Cisar and president member Frantisek Kriegel. The position of Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek, who was attacked in the Russian press as an alleged former Nazi collaborator, is also clouded. He is in Switzerland.

Reds Keep Out of Sight Without Sik's aggressive economic leadership, there was serious question whether the economic establishment would succeed in abandoning the unwieldy system of central planning that brought stagnation during the Stalinist years of deposed President Antonin Novotny, sources said. Sik planned much decentralization and possible Western ties.

"Normalization" heightened in Prague today with Soviet troops bivouaced in city parks and keeping mostly out of sight.

Mansfield Spells Out the Key Emotional Issues for Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield says Congress has about four weeks to clean up legislation which includes such emotional issues as gun control, foreign aid and President Johnson's Supreme Court nominations.

Mansfield said Tuesday on the eve of Congress' return from a month-long recess that by October campaigning will probably lure away congressmen necessary for quorums in the chambers.

Committee to be Busy Mansfield said Congress could recess and return in November. But he added that another extra session could possibly affect only the Senate, which is confronted by President Johnson's nomination of Justice Abe Fortas as chief justice of the Supreme Court and by the nuclear nonproliferation treaty whose future is clouded by Soviet moves in East Europe.

Nothing major is scheduled for callup this week in either the House or the Senate. But committees will be busy, especially the Senate Judiciary which is considering the Fortas nomination.

Major unfinished business in both branches on which some action is likely includes a $72.7-billion measure for the Defense Department and probably a record low $1.96 billion foreign aid bill, control of interstate sales of shotguns and rifles, aid to education, extension of the basic farm programs, congressional reorganization and possibly some changes in election laws.

Since all 435 House seats and 34 of the 100 Senate chairs will

688 Holiday Traffic Deaths Top Previous Record of '66

Ike Gets Better; Cancel Bulletins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's progress recuperating from his seventh heart attack reached the point where doctors have stopped issuing daily bulletins.

For the second straight day doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital said Tuesday, "His progress continues to be favorable."

They then added there would be no further word on the 77-year-old general and former president until there is a significant change in his condition.

His latest attack was Aug. 16, the fourth in a series that started April 29.

The toll exceeded the previous Labor Day record of 636 set in 1966. It compared with 518 traffic deaths during a recent non-holiday weekend of the same length surveyed for comparison purposes by The Associated Press.

The National Safety Council had estimated that 575 to 675 persons might die during the holiday period, which ran from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Monday.

Harriman said the Communists were using North Vietnamese soldiers almost entirely in South Vietnam. He said that was "inconsistent" with the program of the Viet Cong's

National Liberation Front (NLF) "which is demanding an independent and neutral South Vietnam."

"These new attacks in the last couple of weeks in South Vietnam have had no success," he said. "They have been senseless, they have killed many hundreds per day of North Vietnamese soldiers and achieved nothing except misery for the people of South Vietnam."

A U.S. source said Harriman will keep probing in efforts to find a way to get Hanoi to scale down the Vietnam war.

The talks were designed to cool down the war enough to provide a basis for actual peace negotiations to end the war. "All we can do is to keep probing in an effort to find some way of getting Hanoi to accept some of our proposals for de-escalating the conflict," a high U.S. official said.

Harriman asked his North Vietnamese counterpart, Xuan Thuy, last week what North Vietnam was prepared to do if the United States quit bombing North Vietnam.

Since all 435 House seats and 34 of the 100 Senate chairs will be filled in November, members are anxious to get the pending business done so they can go home and campaign.

Visits home during the recess that started Aug. 2 have convinced many members that this is not the year to take the voters for granted.

President Johnson submitted Aug. 5 a list of 40 items he said cry out for action this year. But time and election fever are decimating the list.

Among the items for which chances appear to be dimming are reciprocal trade legislation, a child health program, a drug control bill and a measure to lower the voting age to 18.

Ike Gets Better; Cancel Bulletins

WASHINGTON (AP)—Dwight D. Eisenhower's progress recuperating from his seventh heart attack reached the point where doctors have stopped issuing daily bulletins.

For the second straight day doctors at Walter Reed Army Hospital said Tuesday, "His progress continues to be favorable."

They then added there would be no further word on the 77-year-old general and former president until there is a significant change in his condition.

His latest attack was Aug. 16, the fourth in a series that started April 29.
